Descendants of Capt. John Underhill

FIRST GENERATION

1 JOHN UNDERHILL, son of John and Honor (Leonora) (Pawley) Underhill, was born in England, traditionally in 1597, and married in The Hague, Holland, Dec. 12, 1628, Heÿlken (Helena), daughter of William (son of John) and Govertge (Emonts) de Hooch of Gorinchem, Holland. He arrived in Boston, Mass., after Feb. 26, 1630, and died in Killingworth, Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y., 21, 7, 1672, as per the Flushing records of the Friends. His wife Helena is first mentioned Dec. 15, 1633, in New England, when she joined the First Church in Boston. She died in Southold, L. I., before Aug. 19, 1658. Shortly after her death, he married Elizabeth, born in 1633, probably in Watertown, Mass., daughter of Lieut. Robert and Elizabeth (Fownes-Winthrop) Feake. She died in Killingworth, L. I., before Nov. 4, 1675.

For fully one hundred years the first wife of Capt. John Underhill was supposed to have been Helena Kruger, but no documentary proof or suggestive evidence has been found to sustain it. Tradition connected her with Leiden, Holland, and at various times correspondence was conducted by members of the family with certain individuals of that city, with no definite results, until the search was undertaken in a systematic manner by Dr. Morton of Philadelphia, who in trying to establish the marriage in that city, received the following reply to his query, from Ch. M. Dozy, City Archivist, dated May 26, 1900: "The undersigned certifies that, according to the alphabetical indices, no entry is made in the old marriage records of the city of Leiden, of a marriage between John Underhill and Helena Kruger."

The translations given below are of Dutch documents found at The Hague, in the summer of 1928, by Francis Jay Underhill, President of the Underhill Society of America, and Col. Philip Lache de Beré.

"Nov. 19, 1628, Jan Jansen Onderhill (Onderberch), cadet in the guard of His Excellency the Prince of Orange, young man, bethrothed with Heÿlken, daughter of William de Hooch, young woman of Gorcum (Gorinchem) both residing at The Hague." (Extract from Survey of Marriage Proclamations, 1624-1628.)

"Nov. 26, 1628, Jan Jansz Onderhill (Onderberch), young man, cadet in the guard of His Excellency the Prince of Orange, betrothed with Heÿlken, daughter of William de Hooch of Gorinchem, both residing at The Hague." (Extract from the Marriage Book of the Low Dutch Reformed Church of Gorinchem, 1615-1635, deposited in the Algemeen Ryksarchief.)

"Jan Jansz Onderhill (Onderberch), young man, cadet under the guard of His Excellency the Prince of Orange, was married in the Kloosterkerk, by Dom. Ludovicum, Dec. 12, 1628, to Heÿlken, daughter of William de Hooch of Gorinchem, both residing at The Hague." (Extract from the Marriage Record of the Ministers of Kloosterkerk, 1624-1628, at The Hague.)

The following article is translated from a Dutch instrument found in the collection of wills, codicils, gifts, etc., of the legal archives of Gorinchem, deposited in the Algeneen Ryksarchief. (Manuscript No. F, XIV, 28):

"Feb. 26, 1630, appeared before J. Vervoorn Jacobson and J. van Der Drept, Willem Claesz van Outhuysen, as husband and guardian of Baalke Willems de Hooch, and Jan Onderberch, as husband and guardian of Heÿltge Willems de Hooch, both children and heirs of Willem Jansz de Hooch and Govertge Emonts, their deceased father and mother, and acknowledged hereby that they have received from the hands of Gerrit Claesz Leve and Bastiaen Bastiaens Glimmer, together the next of kin and guardians over the other five minor children of Willem de Hooch and Govertge Emonts, the sum of two hundred and thirty Corolus gulden: that is to say, the aforesaid Willem Claesz one hundred and thirty guldens; and the aforesaid Jan Onderburch one hundred gulden; in full payment of their aforesaid wives' paternal and maternal property. They acknowledge hereby that the aforesaid sums resulted from the deaths of both and they are satisfied and paid, the first penny with the last. They renounce hereby all right and claim belonging to them therefrom and in part, leaving the same for the profit of their aforesaid brothers, sisters and heirs and the aforesaid.

Guardians in the aforesaid capacity also appeared before us the schepens and declared that they accepted the renunciation in behalf of the aforesaid minor children with the express consent of Mr. Drossard of this city and the land of Arkel, by virtue of his office as Over Guardian of the same minors, promising to pay all obligations and debts of the estate without burden on the first two aforenamed parties, for as much as the same are at present known and no more.

All without deceit or guile.

JACOB VAN PASSENRODE."

The above translations were made by Frank L. Van Cleef, Dutch translator for the City of New York, for the County of Kings, from photostat copies of the original documents in Holland.

Issue: (by first wife). Probably others.

2 Deborah, who has been omitted in every list of his children the editor has seen. In the Calendar of Historical Manuscripts of the State of New York, Part I, Dutch Mss., p. 106, is the following statement: "Dec. 17, 1646, Court Proceedings. John Underhill against Jan Jadduwe (Hathaway?) for slandering plaintiff's daughter; defendant declares that he knows nothing of her but what is honorable and virtuous and is ordered to acknowledge, in the presence of Deborah, the plaintiff's daughter, that he did wrong and to ask her pardon. Defendant begs Mr. Underhill's pardon in court and is condemned to pay costs."

Deborah must have been at least 15 years old to have her father enter such a suit, and therefore it is fair to assume that she was born not later than 1631, and may easily have been the first child of John and Helena.

That she died before her father's second marriage may also be taken for granted, as her mother died in 1658 and on 29, 9, 1659, John had a daughter by his second wife whom he named Deborah. Tradition states that he lost a daughter in Southold, where it is known his wife Helena died, but no proof has been found to sustain it.

3 Elizabeth, baptized in the First Church of Boston, Mass., 14, 12, 1635. No further mention of her has been found.

+4 John, baptized in the First Church of Boston, Mass., 24, 2, 1642, aged about 13 days.

It may be noted here that no authenticated list of children of John and Helena Underhill, excepting the above three, has been found, owing probably to his frequent removals and his voyages to England in 1634-5 and 1638.

Issue (by second wife):

+5 Deborah, born 29, 9, 1659.
+6 Nathaniel, born 22, 12, 1663.
+7 Hannah, born 2, 10, 1666.
+8 Elizabeth, born 2, 5, 1669.
+9 David, born 2 mo., 1672.

The above births are taken from the Flushing Quaker Records.

It is not definitely known when John Underhill arrived in New England, but he was in Holland Feb. 26, 1630, when his wife received her share of her father's estate and is first mentioned in New England on Sept. 7, 1630, when the Court of Assistants met at Charlestown and ordered that Mr. Patrick and Mr. Underhill be allowed one-half year's provision, two hogsheads of meal, four bushels of malt and about ten pounds in money for other provisions. "The public to stand the charge and the year to commence from the time they begin to keep house." (Records of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, Vol. 1, p. 75.) On Sept. 28, 1630, the Court ordered that Mr. Patrick and Mr. Underhill should have a certain allowance in money, to purchase household stuff and for help to wash, brew and bake. (Ibid., p. 76.) At this same meeting it was decided that there "shall be levied and collected out of the several plantations, the sum of fifty pounds for the maintenance of Mr. Patrick and Mr. Underhill." (Ibid., p. 77.)

John Underhill and Daniel Patrick were in the Guard of the Prince of Orange in Holland and were brought to New England by John Winthrop, where they became the first paid military officers to direct the colonists. On May 18, 1631, they were made freemen (New England Register, vol. 3, p. 90) and before that time the title of Captain had been conferred upon them. The fact that they were accepted as freemen indicates that they had joined the church and taken the oath of allegiance and Savage states that the name of John Underhill was No. 57 in the list of members of the First Church in Boston. On July 26, 1631, the court ordered a general training of Capt. Underhill's Company, on every first Thursday in every month in Boston and Roxbury.

Daniel Patrick had also married a Dutch woman, Anneke van Beyeren, who after the tragic death of her husband in 1644, in Capt. John Underhill's home in Stamford, Conn., became the wife of Tobias Feke of Flushing, where on Aug. 14, 1649, she gave power of attorney also the Blue Tower

to Adraien van der Donck, who was about to "depart for the Fatherland," to investigate the state of her affairs there and to collect whatever "may be coming to me." As late as Jan. 13, 1662, a letter from the Court of Holland to the Directors at Amsterdam, recommended a petition of Cornelis van Delvendeep and others, regarding property at The Hague, belonging in part to the children of Anna Aelbrechts van Beyeren, widow of Daniel Patrick, an Englishman, residing in New Netherland, praying the Directors at Amsterdam to institute inquiries in New Netherland, for any heirs or children of said Anna. (Dutch Manuscript, pp. 48, 297.)

In May, 1634, John Underhill was elected Deputy to the General Court and on 7 mo., 1 day, 1634, is listed as one of the Selectmen, which record is the earliest existing of the town of Boston. (New England Register, Vol. 4, p. 124.)

At a court held at New Town, Sept. 3, 1634, he served on a committee with others to locate convenient places for forts on Castle Island and in Charlestown and Dorchester. (Records of Colony of Massachusetts Bay, Vol. 1, p. 125.) On Nov. 6, 1634, he was about to sail for England and carried with him a letter to Winthrop's son and was given permission to visit his friends in Holland, although there is no evidence to show that he did so. When he returned is not known, but before September, 1635.

The Massachusetts Bay Colony Records, Vol. 1, p. 191, state that on 1 mo., 9 day, 1636/7, John Underhill was chosen Captain for Boston and for the "country's service" doubtless preparatory to participation in the Pequot War, through which he so ably served that John Fiske in writing of his valor there as well as of that of Capt. John Mason, considered their "overthrow of the Pequots a cardinal event in the planting of New England and removed the chief obstacle in colonizing the Connecticut coast." In August 1637, the court consented to allow Capt. Underhill continued maintenance for three months at Saybrook. (Ibid, vol. 1, p. 200).

No one escaped the religious controversies of the day and Capt. John Underhill with his liberal views was no exception. He had fallen under the influence of the teachings of Ann Hutchinson and her husband's brother-in-law, Rev. John Wheelwright, who was tried for a sermon he preached in the Boston church on fast-day 1637 and declared guilty of sedition and contempt and sentenced to be banished and disfranchised. Capt. John Underhill with his love of justice signed a petition in his behalf and in consequence he was discharged from further service (and was to have a quarter's pay for a gratuity), by the court held 2 of 9 mo. 1637, but for putting his hand to a seditious writing was ordered disfranchised, put from the Captain's place and disarmed (Mass. Bay Colony Records, Vol. 1, pp. 208, 211). It is of interest to note in the list of Boston men who signed the petition for Rev. Wheelwright, that twenty of them already were, or shortly became members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of that place.

It was probably about this time in 1637, that the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston was formed, although it did not receive its charter until 13 of 1 mo., 1638. It is the oldest military organization in America and a direct offspring of the Honourable Artillery Company of London, England. Its publication states that Capt. John Underhill was the eleventh signer on the original membership roll, but although one of its founders he never became an officer in the organization. In its list of members were enrolled forty-one veterans, members of the Honourable Artillery Company of London, among them being the name of John Underhill who was admitted Sept. 27, 1614. The Boston Company is "a living link between generations past and present and has outlived every institution, excepting the Christian Church and the Public Schools, that was in existence on the American continent, when it was chartered."

The first charter of the Honourable Artillery Company of London, was granted Aug. 25, 1537 by King Henry VIII, to certain of his subjects belonging to the fraternity of St. George, as a "Guylde of Artillary of Longbowes, Crossbowes and Handegomes" and a piece of ground was set apart for their use and known as "The Artillery Garden." During the reign of Queen Elizabeth, important services were rendered there by the Company, by fitting citizens for the command of the City train-bands and drilling private soldiers for general musters. In 1598, the Artillery Company as it was then styled, numbered six hundred members and in 1632 was addressed by King Charles I. as the "Voluntary Company of the Artillery Garden" and it was granted by him its armorial bearings. The Honourable Artillery Company as it is known today, with its original parade ground still flourishes in London, taking part in all wars in which England has since been engaged. It is said to be the oldest existing military organization in the British Empire.

Late in 1637, Capt. John left for England, where the Calendar of State Papers, Colonial Series, London, 1574-1660, page 267, have the following notice of him: "Brooke House, March 24, 1638. Minutes of a Committee for Providence Island. Capt. Underhill was this day entertained on these conditions: To go by next ship to Providence; to have his own and one servant's transportation, borne by the company; to have one hundred pounds sterling for one year, whereof seventy pounds in hand, the rest to his assigns, immediately on the first notice that the year is expended, the said year to commence from May 12 next; to have meat and drink found him and his servant, in the Island." (Colonial Entry Book, Vol. 3, pp. 228-9.) He evidently never went there, and under date of April 26, 1638, in the ancient register of Stationers Hall in London, is: "Entered for his copy, under the hands of Mr. Clay and Mr. Apsley, warden, a book called 'Newes from America,' by Capt. John Underhill."

The title page states it was printed for Peter Cole and that the books were to be sold at the sign of the Glove in Corne-hill near the Royale Exchange.

There are four original copies now known to exist, owned by the British Museum in London and two New York Libraries and a Boston Library.

There have been several reproductions, the latest being in 1902, by D. Harris Underhill, the family historian, the remaining copies of which are owned by the Underhill Society of America.

The book contains forty-four pages and gives a dramatic account of his activities in the Pequot War and an enlightening opinion of a woman, as follows: "My selfe received an arrow through my coate sleeve, a second against my Helmet on the forehead, so as if God in his providence had not moved the heart of my wife to persuade mee to carrie it along with me which I was unwilling to doe, I had been slaine. Give me leave to observe two things from hence first when the houre of Death is not yet come, you see God useth weake means to keepe his purpose unviolated. Secondly, let no man despise advise and Counsell of his wife though shee be a woman; it were strange to nature to thinke a man should be bound to fulfill the humour of a woman, what armes hee should carry, but you see God will have it so, that a woman should overcome a man; what with Daliahs flattery and with her mournful teares must and will have their desire, when the hand of God goes along in the matter," etc.

That he was in Boston again by Aug. 1, 1638, is evidenced by the fact that on that day he sold to Thomas Makepeace of Dorchester, his house in Boston with 100 acres of upland at Muddy River (now Brookline), etc., and "his share of woodlands in the Islands with a garden at the house and another behind Parker's house to the quantity of one-half acre and somewhat more and also near half an acre upon the Fort Hill, for one hundred pounds."

Because he still believed he was right in his religious convictions and would not retract what he had proclaimed in signing the petition previously mentioned, he was on 6 of 7 mo., 1638 (p. 237, Massachusetts Bay Colonial Records), sentenced to be banished, as Mr. John Underhill; to leave within fourteen days and not to return except to take passage for England in the ship Salem. He followed Wheelwright, leaving Boston late in September, 1638, for the neighborhood of Exeter, now in New Hampshire, and became Governor of Dover and Exeter, serving about a year. That he was early considering changing his residence is evidenced by the fact that on Sept. 8, 1639, the Dutch records of New Amsterdam have the following minute: "Whereas Governor John Underhill residing towards the North requests permission to dwell with some families here under our protection. On condition of enjoying such Freedom as the other inhabitants residing here, said Underhill's request is granted, provided that he and the people accompanying him shall take the oath of allegiance to their High Mightinesses the States General and His Highness the Prince of Orange."

That he thought of New Amsterdam for a new home was but natural, for there is every evidence that his sister and his mother were residing there at the very period of his request. The first mention made of Petronella Underhill is in the Dutch Colonial Manuscript, when on May 16, 1638, J. de Voocht gave her a note for 300 guilders and on Sept. 17, 1638, he paid 50 guilders on account. Before Aug. 6, 1639, she was the wife of Ulrich Lupold and the Dutch Baptisms in New Amsterdam, Vol. 1, page 10, state that Lupold had a son baptized Aug. 2, 1640, one of the witnesses being Leonora Onderhyll. The grandparents, if available, always witnessed the baptism of a grandchild in the Dutch Church of that period.

This baptism with its witness more than strongly suggests that Petronella was the daughter of Leonora, therefore making Petronella a sister of Capt. John. Ulrich Lupold was appointed Provincial Schout Fiscal in Holland in 1637 and in New Amsterdam, March 28, 1638. (New Netherland Register, p. 38.) On March 14, 1641, he was about to be sent to Holland to answer for his delinquences as a store keeper, but on Sept. 12 of that year, on petition of "some respectable Englishmen," he was permitted to remain in New Amsterdam. Petronella Lupold on Dec. 22, 1641, witnessed in the Dutch Church, the baptism of Jannetje, daughter of Theunis Nyssen, whose wife was Phoebea Faelix from "Jarleston," England.

The walled town of Gorinchem, Holland, with its moat, about 1630

On Aug. 28, 1642 (Dutch Mss. Vol. 1, p. 81) Lupold was again in trouble with the authorities and the probabilities are that he and his wife sailed for Holland shortly after, as they are not again mentioned in the records of New Amsterdam. Leonora, had doubtless, before their departure, returned to Exeter, N. H., the exile home of herself and husband.

Why John Underhill did not take advantage of the permission to reside in New Amsterdam at this time cannot now be determined. The General Court at Boston, on 13, 1 mo., 1638/9, had granted him safe conduct to come and answer certain charges against him and gave him until the 22nd of the 3 mo., to comply. (Col. of Massachusetts Bay, Vol. 1, p. 251.) On the 29 of 11 mo., 1639, the request was renewed at his solicitation and he was assured by the authorities that he could come and return in safety, provided the time he was to be in Boston, would be the first week of the first month next, or the second week of the third month and not stay more than ten days, after receiving notice to depart. (New England Register, Vol. 16, p. 158.) The Court held at Boston, 7 of 8 mo., 1640, shows that he delayed accepting the privilege accorded him, but that he was there at that time and openly and humbly acknowledged his sins and errors and was again received into the church, but his banishment was to continue until the end of the next Court of Elections, when it was to be further considered. (Col. of Massachusetts Bay, Vol. 1, p. 301.) And at the meeting of the General Court held in Boston, 14, 4, 1641, the order of his banishment was repealed. (Ibid., p. 329.)

On his return to Dover in 1640, he found Thomas Roberts had been elected in his place.

The records of the First Church of Boston, under date of Aug. 22, 1641, state: "Our brother Capt. John Underhill and our sister Helena, his wife, were this day granted letters of recommendation to the church at Exeter." This gives us the knowledge that he was still lingering in New England, but the West India Company's records state that they received a letter from him dated New Amsterdam, Jan. 6, 1642, and the Dutch records of that place give evidence again of his intention of residing under its jurisdiction, for on Jan. 16, 1642, he leased from Andries Hudde, the latter's house and plantation in Flatlands, for two years from May, 1642, the yearly rental being two hundred pounds of tobacco, well cured. He may have occupied this plantation during that summer, but it appears doubtful.

The records of the First Church of Boston, page 76, show that it was his desire "to go to the Dutch," but the church wished him to locate with the English at Stamford, Conn., near the Dutch. "He had been restored into favor with the church sufficient to induce them to fit him out with a pinnace to take him and his family to some place where he could find better employment," and at a Town Meeting held in Stamford, in October, 1642, he was given eight acres of land and on 5 of 2 mo., 1643, he was elected Deputy from that place to the General Court of New Haven (New Haven Colony Records, 1639-1649, p. 85), proving conclusively that he had decided to establish his residence there.

During 1643, the fear of an Indian uprising was felt among the Dutch and English Colonists and on Oct. 27, 1643, as per the General Court of the Jurisdiction of New Haven, Conn., a proposition and request were made "by Capt. Underhill and Mr. Allerton, by instruction from the Dutch Governor and some freemen of that jurisdiction, for the raising of one hundred soldiers out of the plantation of the English and armed and victualled, to be led by Capt. Underhill against the Indians, now in hostility against the Dutch, to be paid by bills of exchange into Holland." (New Haven Colony Records, 1639-1649, page 116.)

As the Court did not deem it advisable to send Capt. Underhill and the Englishmen who would have to serve under him, against the Indians, without the consent of the other members of their Confederacy (Massachusetts, Plymouth and Connecticut), Underhill requested a loan of twenty pounds, to be repaid by the town of Stamford out of the salary they allowed him yearly. This was duly considered and the loan made, provided Stamford would agree to its payment and "to prevent the snares of larger offers for his remove." (Ibid., 117.) It is not known that he finally accepted this loan, but it certainly seems apparent that he gathered a body of men to train, preparatory to an Indian attack.

Capt. Patrick of Greenwich, had sworn allegiance to the Dutch, and as an inhabitant of that place had been killed by the Indians, a force was sent from New Amsterdam in search of the slayers. They were unsuccessful and marched to the home of Capt. Underhill in Stamford, where one of them after an argument with Capt. Patrick drew a pistol and shot him. Shortly after, a conspiracy among the Indians to slaughter both Dutch and English became known and the rumor not losing ground as time went on, the combined forces under Underhill marched on Hempstead, where a division was made, he having fourteen men to attack one Indian village. Each division returned successful, killing over one hundred Indians. On his return to Stamford, he was informed of a large Indian encampment near Greenwich, and journeying to New Amsterdam, advised an immediate attack.

The New York Colonial Manuscripts, Vol. 1, pp. 186/7, by Brodhead, states that it was resolved to send one hundred and twenty men against the Indians, "the Burgher's in their company and the English under Sergeant Major van der Hyl." (Capt. John (in note), who later is called "General van der Hill," and he styled himself "General" in the Spicer conveyance, mentioned later in this article.) This Dutch minute may refer to the fight at Hempstead.

However, in February, 1644, they left New Amsterdam and attacked the Indians in their encampment near Greenwich, killing fully five hundred of them and destroying their homes by fire, taking very few prisoners, and numbering only fifteen wounded among their own men. As the result of this engagement John Fiske states that "it would not be extravagant to call John Underhill the savior of New Netherland."

After a short period of rest at Stamford, they returned to New Amsterdam, where upon their arrival "a Thanksgiving was proclaimed," which probably was the cause of the following depositions being taken before Cornelis Van Tienhoven, Secretary of New Netherland:

Appeared .....

(Nicolaes Coorn, aged about 38 years), Hans Kierstede aged about 32 years, (Jan Jacobsen) aged about 30 years, Gysbert Opdyc aged 37 years, who conjointly at the request of Cornelis Van Der Hoykens, Fiscal, attest, witness and declare, in place and stead of solemn oath, if need be and at request, that they on the 15th of this (month) were invited in the evening with their wives to the public tavern of Philip Gerritssen, the landlord, where about one hour after the meal Jan Onderhil entered with his lieutenant Bacxter and his drummer, to whom the aforesaid Philip Gerritssen said: "Friends, I have invited these persons here with their wives. For that reason I beg you to withdraw into another room, where you may purchase wine." This they finally did after many words. A little after their withdrawal the said Jan Onderhil and his company (among whom Tomas Willet had likewise come in) came out and begged our witnesses that they have a drink with them; which was done. Then George Bacxter at the order of Onderhil came and asked that Opdyc be pleased to come in with them, which he refused to do. Thereupon Onderhil and his company came into the tavern to the mugs that hung upon the wall, struck them down with unsheathed swords, as appears by the evidence, stopped and hacked them away and stuck them into posts and doors, and with their unsheathed swords in their hands they came into the room where the invited guests were. This the guards could not prevent. The guard resisted for a time holding closed the door. But finally Jan Onderhil and his aforesaid company by hook or by crook came into the room, where after using many words Captain Onderhil, his sword in his right hand and the scabbard in the left hand, the blade bared about one foot from the scabbard, said to the minister, as it is reported: "Go away from here or I cut you into a hundred pieces." Presently a number of English soldiers came to his assistance, whereupon the aforesaid Onderhil showed great insolence with his company. Then the Fiscal and the watch were summoned, upon whose arrival the English and the aforesaid Onderhil were compelled to retire, saying to the minister: "Let the director come hither. That is good. I should rather talk to a wise man than to a devil."* And so in order to avoid further and greater harm, even an outpouring of blood, our good company left unseasonably. This we declare to be the truth. Done the 17th of March, in the year 1644, in Fort Amsterdam.

*This witnesses say they did not hear.

It is probably about this time also that Director Kieft presented Underhill with the land on Manhattan Island, the ground-brief of which has not been found. He never returned to Stamford, Conn., to reside, but must have permanently left shortly after April 16, 1644, when he met many Indian chiefs in conference there (Dutch Manuscripts, p. 88), who solicited him to sue for peace in their names, to which he agreed on condition "that they in future keep quiet." At a court proceeding in New Amsterdam on May 25, 1644, his absence is noted but the court "expects his return." The Dutch Manuscripts also state that on June 6, 1644, he was a referee in New Amsterdam in a case of Henry Sately against Adam Mot for debt; that on Nov. 26, 1644, he was a referee with Isaac Allerton in a difference "between Moor and Wedderly respecting a bark" and that on March 21, 1645, another court case was referred to him.

The Register of New Netherland, 1626-1674, by O'Callaghan, page 15, states that on May 24, 1645, John Underhill was elected a member of the Council of New Amsterdam. This Council body acted in a twofold capacity: as an Executive Council and as a Court of Justice. The members could not be sued before, and were not amendable to, a Court of inferior jurisdiction. (Ibid., p. 11.)

During the same year he became one of the eight men who were elected to adopt measures against the Indians. Five was a quorum and these delegates met every Saturday for deliberation. (Ibid., pp. 53, 54.)

All of the above notes prove conclusively that Capt. John Underhill had established his home and was residing in New Amsterdam during the periods stated.

His property on Manhattan Island, which was without doubt the location of his home, is mentioned in the Calendar of Historical Manuscripts, Part 1, Dutch, 1630-1644, page 49, and reads in the original entry still extant in Albany, N. Y., as follows:

Power of Att'y. Cornelis Groesens to Cornelis Melyn, to demand from the director and council a ground brief of a certain lot of land sold to him by John Underhill and situated on the Island of Manhattan and to sell the same.

Appeared before me, Cornelis Van Tienhoven, Sec'y of New Nederland, Cornelis Groesen, supercargo on the "Power of Enckhuysen," for the purpose of ordering and demanding in his client's name, the ground brief from the Director and Council for a certain piece of land, sold by Jan Onderhill to the aforesaid Groesen, situate upon the Island of Manhatans, that he may dispose thereof in full accordance with the order of the aforesaid Groesen, as though he himself were present, and pay the price according to the bill of sale. Done the 20th of Sept., 1644. The sales price amounts to two hundred guldens to be paid through Cornelis Melyn to Jan Underhill, viz., twenty-five guldens at once and the balance in May next, 1645.

It is indeed strange that the above mentioned document is not found in Stokes's Iconography of New York. but the editor is assured by the researchers of that publication for that district, that the Underhill property could have been no other than that mentioned below, found in Vol. 2, page 363, of that publication, under Lot 18, which reads as follows:

"Ground brief to Cornelis Groesens. Not found of record, but recited in deed as set forth below. (Note—The ground-brief Groesens asked for on Sept. 20, 1644, has not been found.)

1649 (April 29)

Deed. Cornelis Groesens to Lubbertus Van Dincklagen (Dutch Manuscripts in Albany, 111, p. 33). Description: Lot of land bounded east by the Great Highway, 5½ acres. Recites ground-brief to Groesens, Jan. 10, 1645, for piece of land bounded easterly by the Great Highway, westerly by the shore of the North River, adjoining southerly the Company's Garden and northerly on the land of Jan Damen; extending in breadth along the Highway 25 rods, 8 feet; along Jan Damen's land, on the north side to the Strand, 38 rods; along the Strand or on the west, 26 rods; along the Honorable Company's Garden or on the south side, 30 rods or thereabouts, amounting altogether to 880 rods, 6 feet."

The following is the translation of the above description, made from a photostat of the original Dutch document in Albany:

In the year of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ one thousand six hundred and forty-nine, the 29th of April, appeared before me Cornelis Van Tienhoven, Secretary of New Netherland, CORNELIS GROESENS, who in the presence of the hereunder named commissioned councillors declared and acknowledged, by virtue of the grontbrief granted on date the 10th of January, 1645, by the Lord Director and Council of New Netherland, have conveyed and transported a piece of land lying easterly on the great highway, westerly on the strand of the North River, bounded southerly on the grantor's garden and northerly by the land of Jan Damen; large along the road and wide twenty-five rods, eight feet; along the land of Jan Damen on the north side up to the strand thirty-eight rods, along the strand or on the west side twenty-six rods; wide along the grantor's garden or upon the south side thirty rods or thereabouts; amounting in all to eight hundred and eighty rods, six feet. The said land they have transported to and in behalf of Sir Lubbertus Dincklagen in a lawful, free and true ownership (on the condition that the same or whoever shall acquire his right shall be subjected to the reservations and conditions placed in the grontbrief). This land the said Sir Dincklagen shall enter upon and make use of as his legally acquired patrimonial property and estate, without the grantor, in capacity as aforesaid, retaining therein any right or pretense of possession, but giving up all claim from now on forever. He promises to hold this transport firmly binding, irretragable and irrevocable and to observe and carry out everything under bond according to laws thereunto pertaining. Without deceit or guile this has been signed by the grantor in presence of the commissioned councillors, the 29th of April, in the year 1649, in New Amsterdam in New Netherland.

CORNELIS GROESENS.

On the 21st of Feb., 1650, this transport was approved by the Director General of New Netherland at the meeting. Date as above.

P. STUYVESANT, Director.

(New York Colonial Manuscripts, 3, 33, Albany)

The above property was leased by Director Kieft to Jan Damen on April 19, 1638, for the term of six years, thus expiring April 19, 1644. (Stokes, Vol. 6, p. 86.) On April 25, 1644, Damen had a new lease, but it was not for this property, but for land north of it and the part situated north of the Company's Garden was granted to Cornelis Groesens Jan. 10, 1645, and covered Trinity Churchyard. (Ibid., Vol. 2, p. 190.) Capt. John Underhill returning a victor and covered with glory, from the Indian battle at Greenwich and for the successful issue of his conference with the Indian chiefs, was without doubt, granted the above land for his services, even though the actual document has not been found, for the above power-of-attorney is a convincing argument that the property was his and that he sold it to Groesens.

Betrothal and Marriage Notice as recorded in The Hague, of Capt. John Underhill's mother and her second husband (Vol. I, page 14)

Stokes's Iconography, Vol. 6, page 102, in describing the Cornelis Groesens farm, says that the land was in the possession of Jan Jansen Damen in 1638, etc. (which is shown as above stated to have been leased to Damen for six years and lease not renewed), and continues: "Cornelis Groesens received a ground-brief from Kieft for 5½ acres of the tract. The Wall was built across it and the First Lutheran Church stood on part of it, just inside of the Wall near the Land Gate. Before July, 1673, 'the next burial place without the Town' occupied part of it just outside the Wall. Johannis Van Brugh, who had bought the land at the northeast corner of the farm, had a formal Dutch garden there for which he was still taxed in August, 1673. Finally the City of New York acquired the whole farm, probably by purchase, as recited in the Dongan Charter, April 27, 1686, which ratified the city's title. April 22, 1703, the Corporation of New York conveyed it all to Trinity Church. The south wall of the building at 111 Broadway is co-incident with the north line of the farm."

That Capt. John Underhill contemplated a removal to now Long Island is evidenced by the fact that on May 14, 1646, Director Kieft "has given and granted to Capt. John Onderhill, a small Island, formerly called Meutelaer's Island, separated from Long Island by two kills, containing about 50 morgens besides the meadows, which are granted to said Onderhill with said small Island, etc." Dated as above at New Amsterdam. (Documents relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York, Vol. 14, p. 66, and Dutch Manuscripts, p. 371.)

He certainly resided there for he sued John Jones on a contract to serve him until the end of haying and he also sued Srgt. Huybert for the hiring of said Jones and on Dec. 22, 1647, he wrote John Winthrop from Flatlands and mentioned his wife and daughter, who must have been Deborah, as stated in his list of children. He also asked for a pear tree and one or two plum trees, indicating that he expected to become a permanent resident of that place, but on April 27, 1648, he was appointed Sheriff of Flushing (by Director Stuyvesant and his Council at a meeting held by them in New Amsterdam) "for the assured peace and unity of the said village." (New York Colonial Manuscripts, Vol. 4, p. 382.) He held that position as late as Aug. 24, 1651, when he wrote Stuyvesant and the Register of New Netherland, 1626-1674, page 88, states he was elected a Magistrate at Flushing in 1651 and was certainly serving as such in April, 1652. (Colonial History, New York, Vol. 14, p. 177.)

Owing to the destruction by fire in 1789 of the Town Clerk's home in Flushing, where the records were kept, it is impossible to gather information concerning Underhill or the location of his property, if he had any, but it was while he was residing there that he sold his Flatlands property to Thomas Spicer, the original conveyance being at the bottom of a copy of a deed wherein the Indians sold the same property to Spicer July 20, 1652. The Underhill conveyance as well as the copy of the Spicer one is written in the well known hand of John Tilton of Gravesend and reads as follows: "The above said Island (called Metler's in the Spicer document) being given unto mee Gen'l John Underhill by the dyceased Govr. Kift as part of recompense for my service in warr, which Island of ye sd John doe by these presents acknowledge to have sold unto Thomas Spicer of the fflatlands, with all my rite and title given me by the said Kift, as is specified uppon ye book of records, and this transport to bee of full force and power unto him, ye sd Thomas, his heirs or assigns forever in testimonial hereof I have subscribed my hand."

"JOHN UNDERHILL."

"Teste me Jo. TILTON, Clerk."

This document, while written by Tilton, was signed personally by John Underhill. On the back of it is written "Copy of Indian Deed and the transfer to Spicer from Capt. Underhill." This deed was put up at auction in 1918 and catalogued in the sale of the library of Van Brunt Bergen of Brooklyn, N. Y., and was purchased by John Hill Morgan of New York City, one of Underhill's descendants, who had it framed and who donated a photostat copy of it to the editor of this publication and which will appear in its pages. The original Indian deed to Spicer is mentioned in several publications and the Island recorded in it as "Metler's" was later known as Bergen's Island but when patented to Capt. John in 1646, was described as "Meutelaer's Island."

Entry of Capt. John Underhill's "Newes from America" in the Register of Stationers Hall, London, Eng.
(Vol. II, page 7)

There is a full description of it in the Bergen Genealogy and in Keskachauge by Van Wyck.

In 1653 John Underhill was arrested by the Dutch at his home in Flushing and imprisoned in Fort Amsterdam, for hoisting the Parliament Colors and addressing a so-called seditious paper to the people of Long Island, after hearing of contemplated war between the Dutch and the English. He wrote among other grievances that, "this great autocracy and tyranny is too grevious for any good Englishman or brave Christian to bear." The charges against him were dismissed and shortly after he left for Newport, R. I., where, in a letter to the Commissioners of the United Colonies, he had offered his services in the "common cause of England against the Dutch." On the very day his offer was received, May 19, 1653, it was agreed by the General Assembly of Rhode Island that it was necessary to defend themselves and they gave Capt. John Underhill and Capt. William Dyre full power and authority to take all Dutch ships and vessels that should come into their territory and the Assembly further resolved that Capt. Underhill be constituted Commander-in-Chief on land and Capt. William Dyre Commander at sea.

Support from all the Colonies was not forthcoming and Newport could provide but little, but Underhill thought of the isolated Dutch post between Saybrook and Hartford, known in 1653 as The House of Hope, which had been fortified by Director Kieft in 1641. It being owned by the Dutch, hampered the development of Hartford and on June 27, 1653, Capt. Underhill seized it for the English, with permission from the General Court of Hartford. This fort he finally sold, excepting "the State's part" and this sale annoyed him in many ways for practically the remainder of his life.

Peace with the Dutch was declared in July, 1654, and probabilities are that when he left Flushing he established his home in Southold, L. I., for on June 10, 1653, he and Capt. John Young, a Southold man, sailed for Boston, although he made deposition in Easthampton, L. I., Oct. 18, 1653, he certainly was residing in Southold in March, 1654, when he sought advise from the New Haven Colony, under whose jurisdiction Southold then was; also at a testimony, given in Huntington, L. I., in 1665, when he styled himself High Constable of Oyster Bay, he stated he was living in Southold in 1654.

On April 12, 1656, he wrote John Winthrop from Southold, asking him to prescribe for his wife, as Winthrop at times administered to the sick. He said, "she daily continues in great pain, receiving last year a pain in her back with lifting a heavy stone and daily increases her pain and descends into her left leg so that she cannot turn in bed, nor go upright by day."

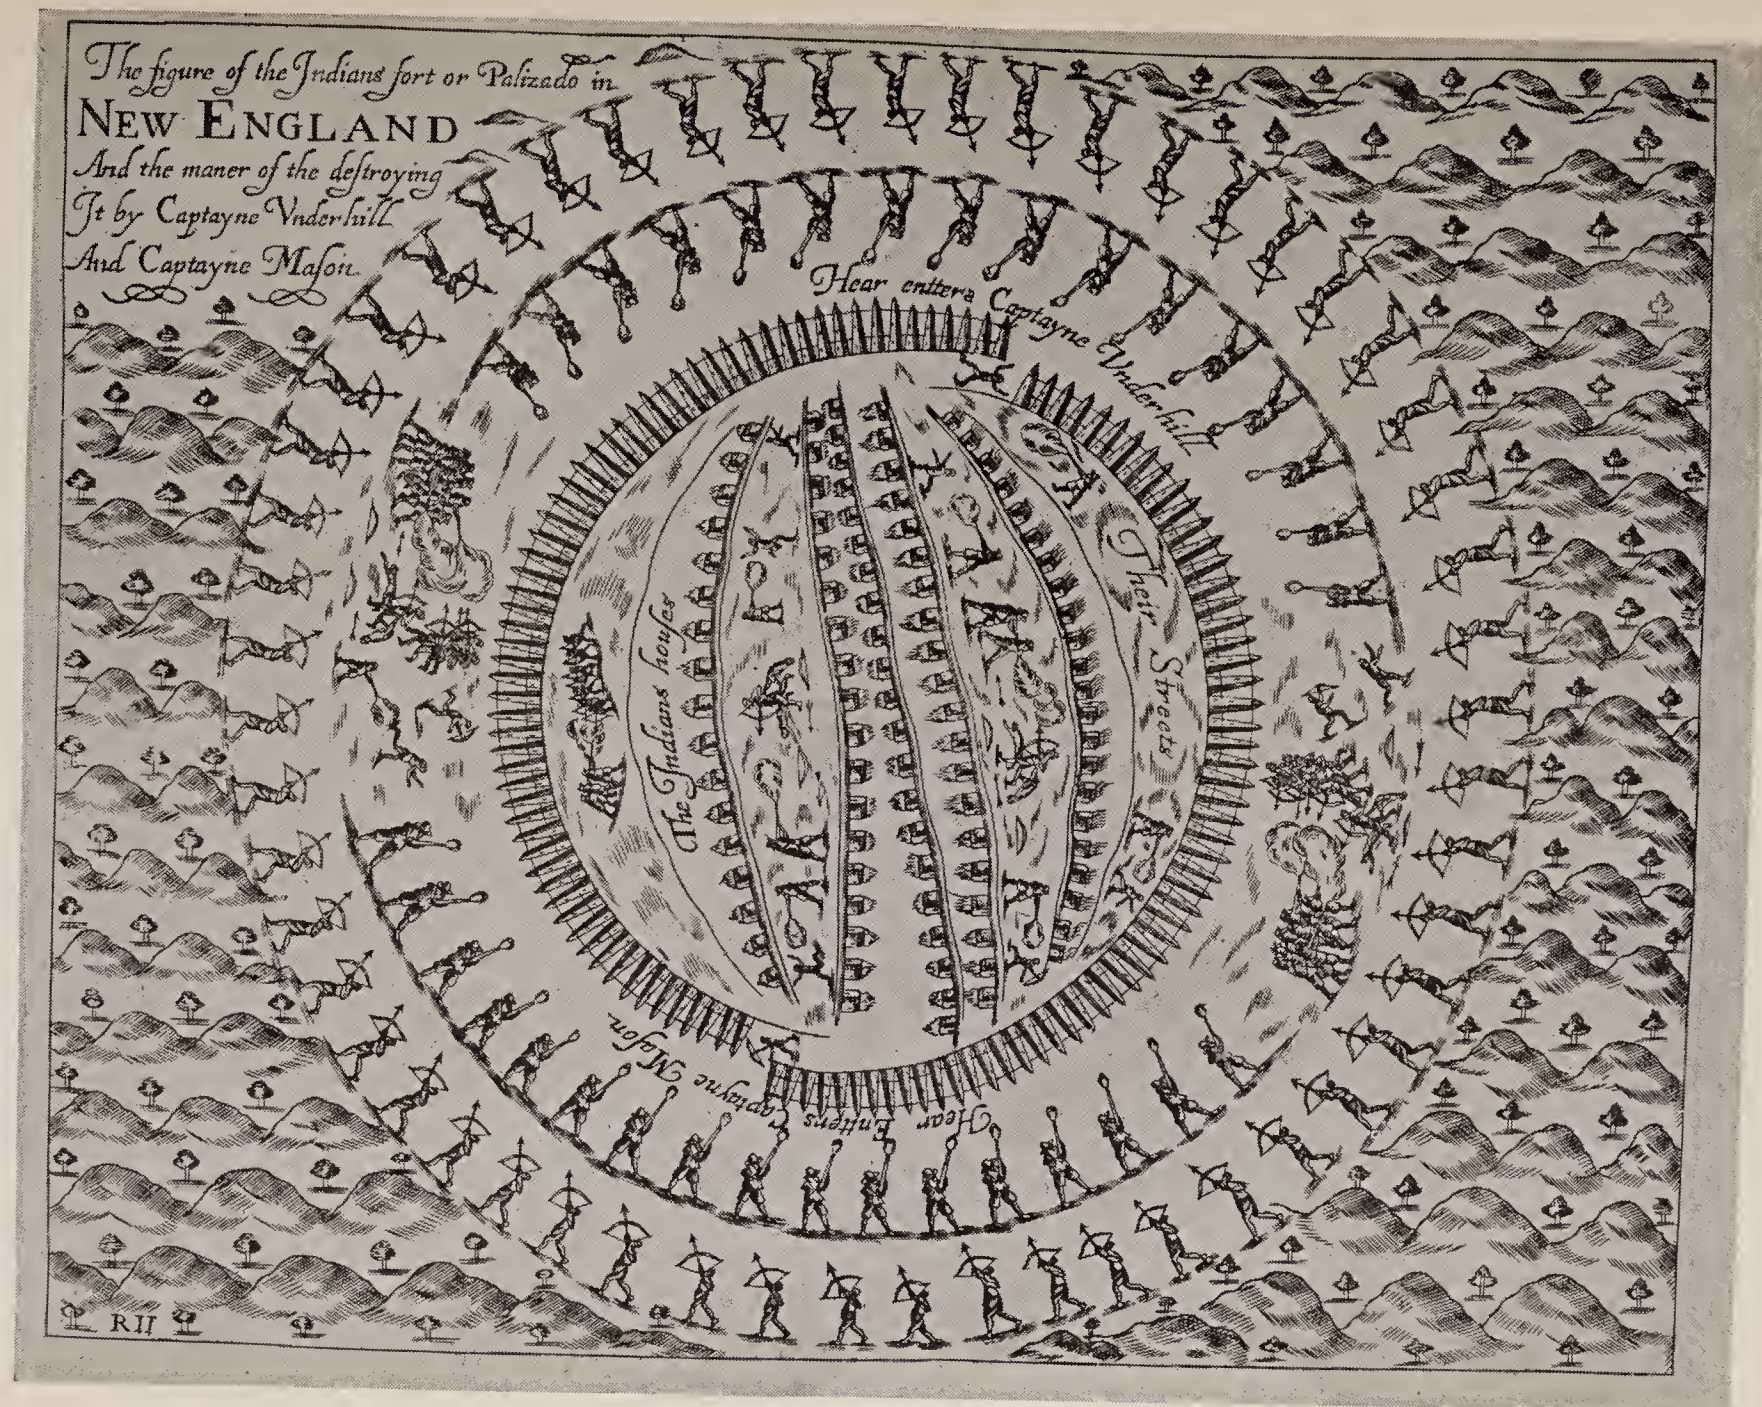
In the same letter he wrote "I was late at Flushing. Hannah Feke is to be married to a verri jentiele young man of gud abilitie, of a lovli fetture and gud behafior." Capt. John's second wife was a sister of the above Hannah, who married John Bowne, the young man referred to.

After the death of his wife Helena, in Southold, between Jan. 1 and Aug. 19, 1658, he sold his property there (which he had registered Jan. 12, 1658) to Thomas Moore, on April 1, 1659. The deed of the sale is evidently not recorded but when Moore made it over to his son Thomas Moore he states: "Thomas More, mariner of Southold, purchased of Capt. John Underhill, some tyme an Inhabitant in Southold, for the consideration of Twenty and nine pounds to him payed: All that his dwelling house scituate in Southold, together with the Barne, orchard, Garden, home lott and fence thereof and all other outland meadows, marshes, woodlands, commons and common pasture, etc. . . . belonging to said John Underhill . . . as per by his deed under his hand and seal bearing date the first day of Aprill in the yeare, One thousand, six hundred fiftye and nine." The deed describing the above is dated Feb. 16, 1662, and was recorded in Southold, March 19, 1679/80. (Printed Town Records of Southold, Vol. 1, pp. 182-184.)

The first town records of Southold are lost, but on Jan. 12, 1658, Capt. John Underhill's property there is recorded as follows: Four acres more or less, the land of John Conckelyne on the east and Joseph Youngs, Jr., on the west; three acres of meadow, more or less, in the east end of the old field next the fence with a little Island therein; one acre and a half of land in the same field, lying next the South sea; six acres in the Neck adjoining Toms Creek, more or less, William Wells north, William Purrier, south; nine acres of Woodland in the Hogneck ———?; one-half of the meadow being four acres and one-half adjoining the meadows of William Purrier, lying near the old cellar, running towards a spring in the head of the Creek; one acre and a half of land in the Old field adjoining the south beach. (Ibid., pp. 75, 77, 78.)

According to a map drawn in 1882, of the homes of the early settlers, by J. W. Case, editor of the Town Records of Southold, the home lot of John Underhill was owned by D. T. Conkling and Wm. C. Buckingham and the Savings Bank stood upon part of it.



Map of the Indian Fort in Capt. John Underhill's "Newes from America," 1638
(Vol. II, page 7)

Before January, 1659, he had married the second time and as per a petition presented to the General Court in Connecticut by the inhabitants of the plantation at Cromwell's Bay, as follows, he considered that place his home, prior to its date.

"Cromwell Bay, alis Setauke, August ye 6, 1659."

"It having pleased God to dispose the harts of us the inhabitance of the place aforesaid, to subject our plantation, persons and estats under the pertection and government of the Colloney of Coneticoke, for the full accomplishment of the promises, wee the said inhabitance doe request the faviour of our trusty and beloved associats Ensigne Alixander Brian and Samuell Sherman to solicit our union with the sayd Colloney that wee may be accepted a member of the sayd body pollitick; the terms specified in all humblenesse, three years rate fee, in respect of our low estate and charge in poynt of purchas, secondly, in regard of our remotenes from the head Court, and the uncertaine passage over the Sound, that like privilege might be granted us liveing on Long Island equall with South and East Hampton; the aforesaid terms being granted unto us, wee the sayd inhabitance author the sayd Alixander and Samuell to ratifie and conclud the sayd union as if wee the said inhabitance were personally present. Subscribed with a unanimous consent, day and date above written." Signed by John Underhill, Richard Wodhull, Roger Cheston, John Jenner, William Frost, Thomas Harlow, James Coke, Johon Diar, Edward Rous, Thomas ——— ?, Thomas Mabbes, George Wood, Henry Rogers, Robert Acrely. "These in the name of the rest." (Colonial Records of Connecticut, 1636-1665, p. 341.) The original of this petition may still be seen in the Archives in Hartford.

On Oct. 6, 1659, "Cromwell Bay" was received under the government of Connecticut, and the inhabitants of Setauket were invited to attend the next sitting of the Commissioners at New Haven and, "if they think meet, to act for and in their own behalf in ye premises." (Ibid., p. 40-1.)

Just when Capt. John Underhill located in Oyster Bay is not definitely known, but it is claimed by some that he was there as early as 1661. Unfortunately the first land record there mentioning him is undated. He was to have ten acres between Nicholas Wright's land by the way to Hempstead and the Highway. It was to be 80 poles long and 20 broad. (Oyster Bay Town Records, Vol. 1, p. 7.)

Whether this refers to the "House-lot," etc., mentioned under John, Jr., dated 25 of 1st month, 1663/4, is difficult of determination.

On March 1, 1664/5, he was appointed a delegate from Oyster Bay to the Convention held in Hempstead, where a body of laws and ordinances for the future government of the Province was promulgated. They were commonly known as the "Duke's Laws," a copy of which was furnished each delegate to be filed in the clerk's offices of the several counties. They continued the laws of the colony until October, 1683. (Colonial History, State of New York, Vol. 14, p. 565; Thompson's History of Long Island (1839), p. 101.) On April 22, 1665, he was appointed Surveyor of Customs for Long Island (Colonial History, State of New York, Vol. 14, p. 567), and was holding that office on April 9, 1666. (Ibid., p. 576.)

The following year he was appointed by "His Highness, the Duke of York," High Constable and Under Sheriff of the North Riding of Yorkshire on Long Island, with full power and authority to execute all laws made for good government in the Duke's territory. All other persons within the said Riding charged and required to take notice thereof. He was also to take the oaths of the Constables and Overseers of the town of Oyster Bay. (Dept. of State, Albany, Deeds, 2, page 16.)

Governor Richard Nicolls, having received a petition from the Matinecock Indians complaining of the "wrong done them by the inhabitants by keeping their land from them without giving them satisfaction," appointed John Underhill of Oyster Bay Attorney for the Indians, Sept. 21, 1666. (Colonial History of the State of New York, Vol. 14, p. 589.) The following document shows how quickly Underhill responded to his appointment:

October 1, 1666.

By order of the Governor and Court of Assizes. A petition was brought in by Capt. Underhill, on behalfe of the Matinicock Indyans, against the Inhabitants or Hempsteed, that they encroached upon their Lands, having never paid for it; Hereupon Issued forth the following Order (Vizt.) (Ibid., p. 589.)

(Vol. II, page 21)

The Indians must have been completely satisfied for the work he did for them as their attorney, for on Feb. 20, 1667, the Matinecock tribe conveyed to John Underhill 150 acres of land, as per the following deed, the original of which is preserved in the summer home of Myron C. Taylor (a descendant), located on part of the same property. It is recorded in Oyster Bay Town Records, Vol. 1, page 681.

MATTHIAS NICOLLS. Sect. Seal.

The following conveyances on the Town Records of Oyster Bay, contain Underhill's few real estate transactions, not otherwise mentioned. The localities are now quite indefinite.

On April 26, 1667, John Underhill, Sr., and Thomas Townsend, both of Oyster Bay, made an exchange of meadow, i.e., John Underhill gave Thomas Townsend one-half share of meadow at the south for his share of meadow at Matinecock. Both sign. (Ibid., p. 29.)

On Aug. 10, 1667, John Underhill, Sr., of Oyster Bay, conveys from himself, his heirs and assigns, to his son John Underhill, Jr., his half share of the South Meadow and the whole planting field containing ten acres and his whole share of Oakneck meadows and all his common meadows. (Ibid., p. 36.)

On Dec. 21, 1667, John Underhill, Sr., of Killingworth, conveyed to George Dennis of Oyster Bay, "my house and home lot, with commonage, thereunto belonging, etc., lying in the Town of Oyster Bay." Witnessed by Matthias Harvy and Daniel Coles. (Ibid., pp. 32, 33.)

On June 3, 1672, Thomas Townsend of Oyster Bay, conveyed to William Thorneycraft and Richard Kirby, the privilege of timber and grazing, "upon ye right of comon I bought of John Underhill, belonging to ye House Lott, that I bought of him, for mine owne use," etc. (Ibid., p. 70.)

The following letter shows that Capt. John Underhill had applied for release from military duty prior to March 14, 1666-7:

Capt. Underhill.

I have received some writings from the Indians of Matinicock, wherein I find that they are not disposed to sell their lands to the Towne of Hempsteed, but say they will with all civility respect the seven families already settled there: I understand likewise that they have given you that part of their land which was spoken of before mee, when Mr. Hicks & Mr. Gildersleeve and those Indyans were here; I shall bee ready to confirme ye same, upon condicon that the said Indyans doe give assurance that those seven families shall quietly and peaceably enjoy what they have, untill the said Indyans can bee induced for their owne conveniency to admitt of a greater number of families. I have written to this purpose to those of Hempstead. In answer to yor letter wherein you desire to bee discharged of yor military employment, by reason of yor yeares, & other cares that attend you: I do allow of your excuse, and leave you to your owne Liberty being

Yr lo: friend,

R. NICOLLS.

New Yorke, Mar: 14th, 1666-7. (Col. Hist. of State of New York, Vol. 14, page 595.)

In Deeds, Albany, 2, page 59, is one deed of a conveyance of land to John Underhill from the Indians, recorded April 6, 1668, and a second deed almost identical in wording is among the Colonial Patents in Albany (4, p. 199). This second copy states that it was recorded for Capt. John Underhill, Dec. 23, 1672. This has been confusing to the lay mind as Capt. John of all the foregoing statements died 21, 7, 1672, but there is in the deeds in the Secretary of State's Office, Albany,

Seal of Captain John Underhill as displayed on the Indian deed of 1667
(Vol. II, page 21)

N. Y., Vol. 2, page 27, a Commission of John Underhill as Captain in Oyster Bay, dated June 21, 1666, which could mean no other than John, Jr., as his father had been Capt. many years.

The second paragraph of the letter below indicates that Capt. John was seeking the opportunity of naming the locality in which he lived and Killingworth as a territorial designation first appears on the Town Records in the form of Kelenworth, at the heading of each of the "Seven Purchase Deeds," on June 22, 1667, and not only applied to Underhill's own possessions but included that of the other seven purchasers as is amply shown in sundry places on the public records.

Capt. Underhill. Apr. 19th, 1667.

The Generall having recd yor lre with the inclosed from those at Matinicocke hath given mee Order to write this in answr both to you and them: That hee is very glad to heare of the friendly & quiet agreemt & Compliance of those Indyans, for the continuance of those ffamilyes already settled upon their land, Wherefore hee thinkes it very reasonable, that the persons concerned should joyne together in making ye Indyans some Gift or Gratuity in requitall since they have never rec'd any pay for it: That if (as they alleadge) they have already pd their Neighbrs of Hempsteed for the said Land, Its fitt the moneys should bee return'd back, to the End the Indyans may be satisfied. That as to the business of Samuell Daytons having foure Lotts & his exposing them to sale upon his Removall, Its thought fitt hee should have one either to enjoy or otherwise to dispose of, but no more, the other three may be reserved for the Encouragement of other families to come and settle upon them.

And for the proposall of the Inhabitts of giving a Name to the place, The Governor doth approve of what they shall doe therein as also that no person shall be forced upon them without his approbation.

What the Indians have given to Robt. Williams may bee confirmed unto him as likewise the severall Lotts to the Inhabitss where their bounds shall be layed out & certainly knowne to prevent future cavills about it. This is all I had in charge to deliver to you which you'l please to impart to the rest, so I conclude being Yr very lo: friend,

M. NICOLLS. (Ibid., 596.)

There can be no doubt today that Capt. John Underhill gave that name to the territory in which he last lived, in remembrance of the home of his ancestors in Kenilworth, Warwickshire, England.

In a letter dated Fort James, New York, Feb. 24, 1668/9, Govr. Lovelace wrote to the inhabitants of Killingworth and Matinecock, in reply to one received by "the hands of Capt. Underhill," regarding the residents of those places requesting independence of Hempstead, which shows the first time the name Killingworth appears on the State records. (Colonial History, State of New York, Vol. 14, p. 616.) This is the last time Capt. John is mentioned as taking any active part in the community in which he died.

At a Town Meeting held in Oyster Bay Dec. 10, 1668, it was ordered that Capt. John Underhill "is to have, for labor and pains taken about the affairs of the town, One pound, five shilling." (Town Records, Oyster Bay, Vol. 1, p. 209.)

Capt. John Underhill made his will in Killingworth, L. I., "ye 7th munth called, ye 12th day," 1671, and after quite a lengthy religious preamble, expresses his wishes as follows: "Shall Decently be Entered. I bequeath my whole Estate In possession of my wife Elizabeth Underhill During ye Time of her widowhood but if she Marry then my Brother John Bound, Henry Townsend, mathew pryer and my Son John Underhill, I impower hereby that they See to ye Estate that ye Children be not wronged nor Turned of with out Some proportionable allowance as ye Estate will afford and that my Son Nathaniel, Be remaining with his mother Untill Twenty one Years. I will that an Inheritance of Land and Some meadow as my Said Overseers Shall Judge Equal and Right be Confirmed upon him and his Linual Heirs and that no part of my Land be alinated from my present ofspring. Signed Sealed as afore Said In presents of Henry Rudick, Nathan Birdsall ye 18th September 1671 Day and date above written. Me, John Underhill." This will was witnessed by Christopher Hawkhurst, William Simson and James Cock.

This will may be found in the printed Town Records of Oyster Bay, Vol. 1, page 78.

The original of the following document showing John, Jr., as administrator of his father's estate is owned by the Long Island Historical Society of Brooklyn, N. Y.:

"Edmond Andros, Esq., Seigneur of Sausmarez, Lieut. and Governor Gen'all under his Royall Highness, James, Duke of Yorke and Albany, &c., of all his Territory in America. Whereas Capt. John Underhill, late of Killingworth, within the Jurisdiction of Oyster Bay, in the North Riding of Yorksh upon Long Island, did in his last Will and Testament, bequeath his whole Estate, unto Elizabeth his wife, during the time of her Widdowhood, But in Case of her remarriage did nominate and appoint his Eldest sonn John Underhill with others to bee Trustees of his Estate, for the use of his Children as in the said Will is sett forth; And the said Elizabeth, being since likewise deceased—Intestate, without any disposicion of the said Estate, These presents may Certifie and Declare, That the aforenamed John Underhill, the eldest son and nearest of kin to the Testator, is admitted and Confirmed, to all intents and purposes, Administrator of the Goods and Chattels, of whatever nature or kinde so ever, heretofore belonging, or in any wise appertaining to his father, Capt. John Underhill, deceased, And the said Administrator hath hereby full Power and Lawful Authority to enter into Possession of the Premises and to dispose thereof, according to the Direcions declared in the said Will, and as Administrator, by the Laws of this Government, are allowed to do; Hee giving Security for the deed—Administracion of his Trust, according to Law. Recorded by order of the Governor the day and year above written.

MATTHIAS NICOLLS, Sec'r."

Capt. John Underhill was buried in what is now known as The Underhill Burying Ground, in Locust Valley, L. I., said ground being a part of the 150 acres conveyed to him in 1667 by the Matinecock Indians. He was probably the first to be buried in it and the following letter is of interest, mainly because of its date, being written before any activity was exhibited by his descendants, regarding the preservation of the old burying ground.

Excerpts from a letter written by Thomas Stewardson, Jr., from Germantown, Philadelphia, Dec. 14, 1869, to Wm. Underhill, Esq., of Wimbledon, Eng., who a few years later presented it to the Underhill Society of America:

"You may perhaps recollect that in a former letter I spoke of my intention to perform a pilgrimage to the grave of Capt. Underhill near Oyster Bay, Long Island. I succeeded in finding his tomb, on the 22nd October last, but in that distant and secluded spot, it was quite out of the question to get a photographer. . . . The stone is a small one and very much decayed, but after carefully removing the lichens with which it was covered, the final figure 2 is quite perceptible, tho' not as readily so as the 16. By its side is another stone, on which are very distinct—date 1697, initials I. V. Even more legible than this is another, at a short distance bearing also the letters I. V. and the date 1723.

Capt. John's grave is not precisely at the foot of the tree, which by the way, is not a cypress as you were informed, but an unusually large specimen of what we call the red cedar (Juniperus Virginiana).

The graveyard is either purposely or accidently, thickly sown with these trees, which have a sufficiently funereal aspect. It stands on a hill, overlooking Oyster Bay and Long Island Sound and the prospect is very lovely indeed.

E. V. on the stone near the Captain's grave is said to mark the spot where his second wife Elizabeth, is buried. . . . This pretty but neglected graveyard is at Matinicock, some 3 miles from Oyster Bay Village and I heard whilst there, of an intention to erect a monument over the remains of 'Fighting John.' If this be done, I trust the original stone, which is so mouldered as to be easily removed by a single person, will be preserved somewhere in the monument."

On July 11, 1908, an imposing monumnt in the old burying ground was unveiled by Lucinda Harris Underhill, daughter of David Harris Underhill, the family historian. The latter in his remarks at the unveiling stated that in May, 1873, he commenced the history of the Underhill family and that in 1887, while in correspondence with John W. Underhill, Secretary of the Family Reunion in Ohio, he mentioned the fact that Capt. John should have a monument. The suggestive idea was warmly welcomed and accepted at the next meeting of the Family Reunion held in Ohio.

After many discussions and extensive correspondence, he called a few members of the family together and the whole matter culminated in the organization of the Underhill Society of America, on the 16th of June, 1892, having for its object, the erection of a monument to Capt. John Underhill, an accomplished fact today. The contract was not awarded until 1906 and was fulfilled in October, 1907, too late for a proper unveiling that year, as they desired the President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, to be present, not only for the office he held, but as a neighbor.

The proceedings were opened by the President of the Underhill Society, Col. John Torboss Underhill, followed by a prayer by Rev. E. E. Schilts. Among the other speakers were Francis Jay Underhill, Vice-President of the Society; Thomas P. Peters, editor of the Brooklyn Daily Times, and David Harris Underhill, Family Historian, and President Theodore Roosevelt, who made the following address:

"Colonel Underhill, friends and neighbors: It gives me real pleasure to accept this invitation, because I thought it a good thing that the founder of what has become one of the distinctive Long Island families should have a monument erected to his honor. I shall not try to speak to you of the career of Captain Underhill, a man who left his mark deep on the history of New England as well as New Holland, one of the men who in the Colonial times helped to lay the foundation for the nation that was to be, for others will address you upon his life. I want to say just a word or two in greeting you upon what his career and the career of his descendants should mean in our American life today.

I have known Underhills all my life, on land and on water. They have served well in the army, they have served well in times of peace. The founder of the family here was a good soldier and a good citizen, and the Underhills of today have furnished their full quota of good soldiers and good citizens in their turn. If they had not I would not have been here. I have no use whatever for the man the best part of whom is under ground. I believe in a pride of ancestry, but only if it takes the form of making the man or woman try to carry himself or herself well as regards the duties of today. If at the time of the Civil War you, Mr. Chairman, had felt that the fact that the original Captain Underhill was a fighter excused you from fighting I should have thought mighty little of you.

(Vol. II, page 8)

The thing to do is to feel (and I guess your comrade over there—I mean the man with the Grand Army button—you will agree with me) that if you had ancestors who did their duty it is doubly incumbent upon you to do your duty.

Now I have known any number of Underhills in every walk of life, farmers, captains of boats in the bay, lawyers, bankers, storekeepers, men who made their living in many different ways, men of means, men who made each day's living by that day's work of his hands, and all of them decent citizens. I won't say that there are not some citizens that are not, but fortunately I haven't met them.

Now if there is one lesson that we here in America ought to keep continually before us it is our substantial oneness, our substantial unity as a people, and one of the best ways to exemplify that is by just such a family gathering as this. If the family has been long enough in the land you will find its representatives in every walk of life; you will find them filling all kinds of occupations; you will find them as capitalists and wage workers, farmers, merchants, professional men, everything; and the essential point to remember is that each one is entitled to the fullest and heartiest respect if he does his duty well in the position in life in which he happens to find himself. That is sound American doctrine. I should not attend an Underhill gathering that was limited to the Underhills of the employer class. I should not attend one limited only to Underhills of the employe class. I gladly attend one where every one comes in on the basis of decent American citizenship, each standing ruggedly on his own feet, as a man should.

The same thing that applies to the Underhills here applies to the rest of us who are not Underhills in the country at large. We have made this country what it is partly because we have measurably succeeded in securing in the past equality of opportunity here.

That is a very different thing from equality of reward. I believe emphatically in doing everything that can be done by law or otherwise to keep the avenues of occupation, of employment, of work, of interest, open that there shall be so far as it is humanly possibly to achieve it, a measurable equality of opportunity—equality of opportunity for each man to show the stuff that is in him. But when it comes to reward, let him get what by his energy, foresight, intelligence, thrift, courage, he is able to get with the opportunity open. I don't believe in coddling any one. I would no more permit the strong to oppress the weak than tell a weak man or vicious man that he ought by rights to have the reward due only to the man who actually earns it.

Very properly we in this country set our faces against privilege. There can be no grosser example of privilege than that set before us as an ideal by certain socialistic writers—the ideal that every man shall put into the common fund what he can, which would mean what he chose, and should take out whatever he wanted. In other words this theory is that the man who is vicious, foolish, a drag on the whole community, contributing less than his share to the common good, should take out what is not his, what he has not earned, that he shall rob his neighbor of what that neighbor has earned. This particular socialistic idea is the ideal of privilege in one of its grossest, crudest, most dishonest, most harmful and most unjust forms.

Equality of opportunity—yes, I will do everything I can to try to bring it about; equality of reward, no—unless there is also equality of service. If the service is difficult, let the reward be equal, but let the reward depend on the service, and mankind being composed as it is, there will be inequality of service for a long time to come, no matter how great the equality of opportunity may be; and just so long as there is inequality of service it is eminently desirable that there should be inequality of reward.

Now, I didn't intend to speak as long as I have. I want to thank you for having given me the chance to come over and meet my fellow Long Islanders, my neighbors, my fellow citizens. Good Bye and Good Luck."

JOHN UNDERHILL

By JOHN G. WHITTIER

A score of years had come and gone
Since the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth stone,
When Captain Underhill, bearings scars
From Indian ambush and Flemish wars,
Left three-hilled Boston and wandered down,
East by north, to Cocheco town.

With Vane the younger, in counsel sweet
He had sat at Anna Hutchinson's feet,
And, when the bolt of banishment fell
On the head of his saintly oracle,
He had shared her ill as her good report,
And braved the wrath of the General Court.

To the memory of Capt. John Underhill
Erected in 1908
(Vol. II, page 26)

He shook from his feet as he rode away
The dust of the Massachusetts Bay.
The world might bless and the world might ban,
What did it matter the perfect man,
To whom the freedom of earth was given,
Proof against sin, and sure of heaven?

He cheered his heart as he rode along
With screed of Scripture and holy song,
Or thought how he rode with his lances free
By the Lower Rhine and the Zuyder-Zee,
Till his wood-path grew to a trodden road,
And Hilton Point in the distance showed.

He saw the church with the block-house nigh,
The two fair rivers, the flakes thereby,
And, tacking to windward, low and crank,
The little shallop from Strawberry Bank;
And he rose in his stirrups and looked abroad
Over land and water, and praised the Lord.

Goodly and stately and grave to see,
Into the clearing's space rode he,
With the sun on the hilt of his sword in sheath,
And his silver buckles and spurs beneath,
And the settlers welcomed him, one and all,
From swift Quampeagan to Gonic Fall.

And he said to the elders: "Lo, I come
As the way seemed open to seek a home.
Somewhat the Lord hath wrought by my hands
In the Narragansett and Netherlands,
And if here ye have work for a Christian man,
I will tarry, and serve ye as best I can.

"I boast not of gifts, but fain would own
The wonderful favor God hath shown,
The special mercy vouchsafed one day
On the shore of Narragansett Bay,
As I sat, with my pipe, from the camp aside,
And mused like Isaac at eventide.

"A sudden sweetness of peace I found,
A garment of gladness wrapped me round;
I felt from the law of works released,
The strife of the flesh and spirit ceased,
My faith to a full assurance grew,
And all I had hoped for myself I knew.

"Now, as God appointeth, I keep my way,
I shall not stumble, I shall not stray;
He hath taken away my fig-leaf dress,
I wear the robe of His righteousness;
And the shafts of Satan no more avail
Than Pequot arrows on Christian mail."

"Tarry with us," the settlers cried,
"Thou man of God, as our ruler and guide."
And Captain Underhill bowed his head.
"The will of the Lord be done!" he said.
And the morrow beheld him sitting down
In the ruler's seat in Cocheco town.

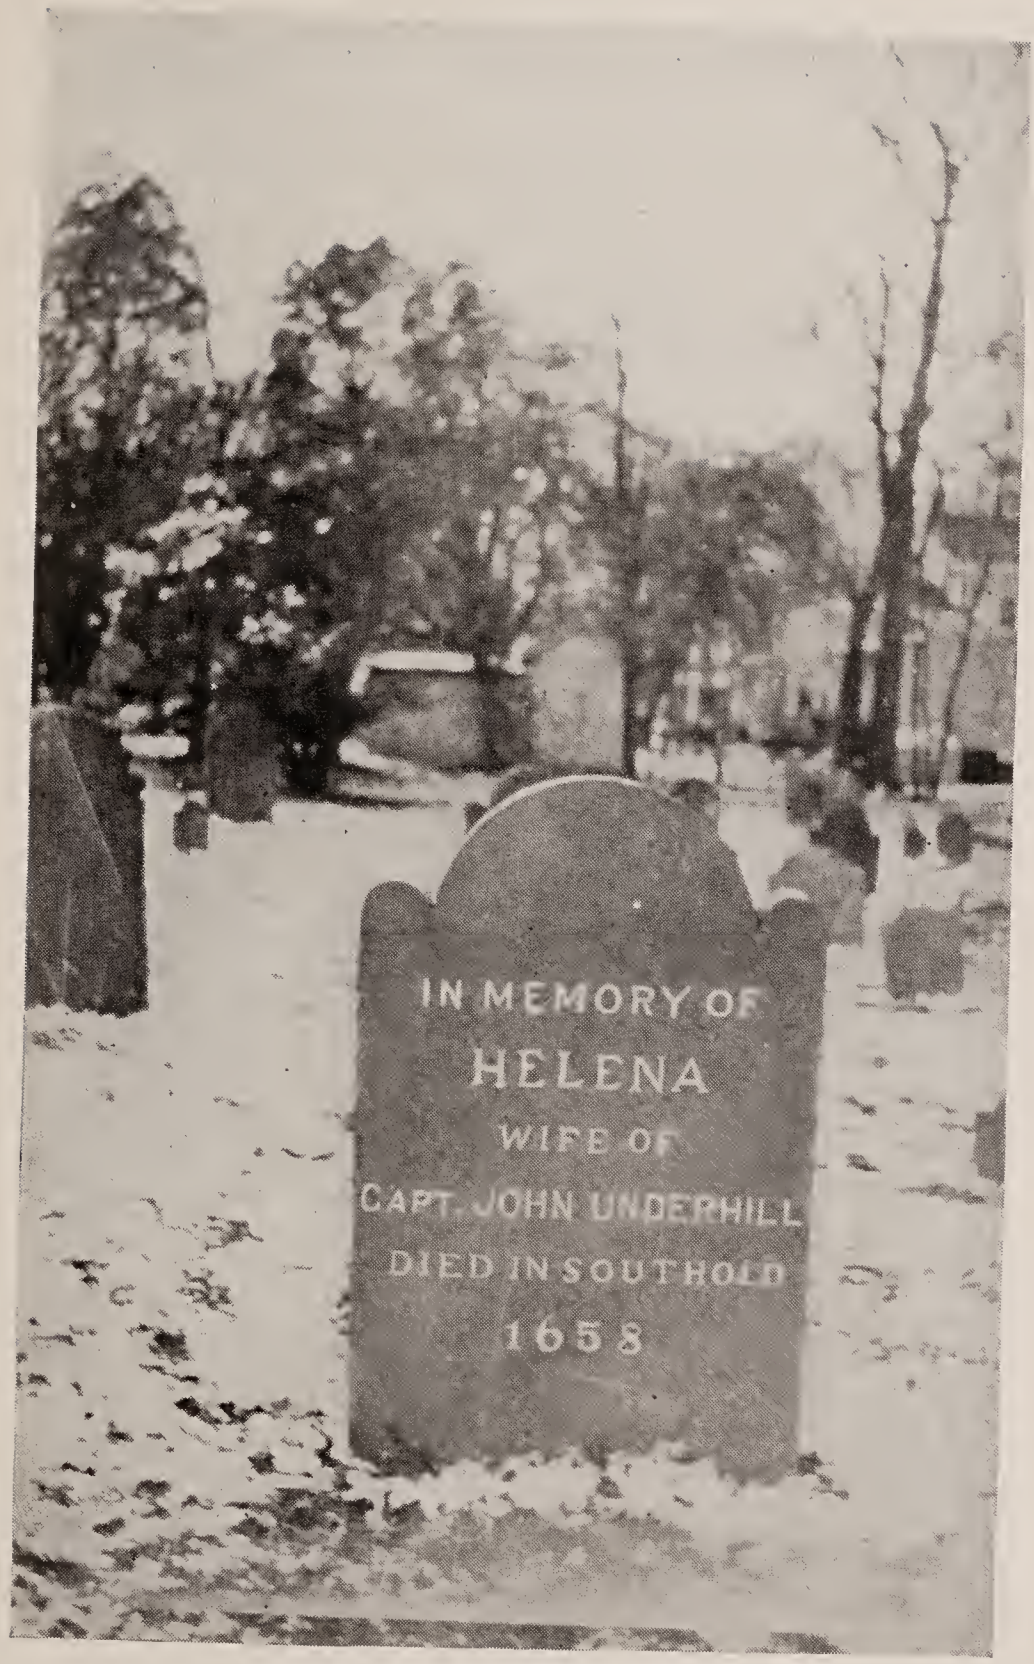
And he judged therein as a just man should;
His words were wise and his rule was good;
He coveted not his neighbor's land,
From the holding of bribes he shook his hand;
And through the camps of the heathen ran
A wholesome fear of the valiant man.

But the heart is deceitful, the good Book saith,
And life hath ever a savor of death.
Through hymns of triumph the tempter calls,
And whoso thinketh he standeth falls.
Alas! ere their round the seasons ran,
There was grief in the soul of the saintly man.

The tempter's arrows that rarely fail
Had found the joints of his spiritual mail;
And men took note of his gloomy air,
The shame in his eye, the halt in his prayer,
The signs of a battle lost within,
The pain of a soul in the coils of sin.

Then a whisper of scandal linked his name
With broken vows and a life of blame;
And the people looked askance on him
As he walked among them sullen and grim,
Ill at ease, and bitter of word,
And prompt of quarrel with hand or sword.

None knew how, with prayer and fasting still,
He strove in the bonds of his evil will;
But he shook himself like Samson at length,
And girded anew his loins of strength,
And bade the crier go up and down
And call together the wondering town.



Slate stone erected in Southold, Long Island, N. Y. in 1930

(Vol. II, page 1)

Jeer and murmur and shaking of head
Ceased as he rose in his place and said:
"Men, brethren, and fathers, well ye know
How I came among you a year ago,
Strong in the faith that my soul was freed
From sin of feeling, or thought, or deed.

"I have sinned, I own it with grief and shame,
But not with a lie on my lips I came.
In my blindness I verily thought my heart
Swept and garnished in every part.
He chargeth His angels with folly; He sees
The heavens unclean. Was I more than these?

"I urge no plea. At your feet I lay
The trust you gave me, and go my way.
Hate me or pity me, as you will,
The Lord will have mercy on sinners still;
And I, who am chiefest, say to all,
Watch and pray, lest ye also fall."

No voice made answer: a sob so low
That only his quickened ear could know
Smote his heart with a bitter pain,
As into the forest he rode again,
And the veil of its oaken leaves shut down
On his latest glimpse of Cocheco town.

Crystal-clear on the man of sin
The streams flashed up, and the sky shone in;
On his cheek of fever the cool wind blew,
The leaves dropped on him their tears of dew,
And angels of God, in the pure, sweet guise
Of flowers, looked on him with sad surprise.

Was his ear at fault that brook and breeze
Sang in their saddest of minor keys?
What was it the mournful wood-thrust said?
What whispered the pine-trees overhead?
Did he hear the Voice on his lonely way
That Adam heard in the cool of day?

Into the desert alone rode he,
Alone with the Infinite Purity;
And, bowing his soul to its tender rebuke,
As Peter did to the Master's look,
He measured his path with prayers of pain
For peace with God and nature again.

And in after years to Cocheco came
The bruit of a once familiar name;
How among the Dutch of New Netherlands,
From wild Danskamer to Haarlem sands,
A penitent soldier preached the Word,
And smote the heathen with Gideon's sword!

And the heart of Boston was glad to hear
How he harried the foe on the long frontier,
And heaped on the land against him barred
The coals of his generous watch and ward.
Frailest and bravest! the Bay State still Counts with her worthies John Underhill.

ODE

To the Memory of Captain John Underhill
1597-1672

and to the Honor of his Descendants

Composed by FANNY J. CROSBY

Soul of the past awake once more,
And from that vast unbounded shore
Where memory folds her tireless wings
While to her harp she sweetly sings,
Speak to this goodly company
Who owe their origin to thee.

Their great progenitor thou art;
Thy life blood flows through every heart;
Well may each pulse with rapture thrill,
And honest pride each bosom fill
Who bears the name of Underhill.

In thought he smiles and seems to say
These are my children here today.
Then smiles again as if to rest
For one sweet hour your willing guest.
And now the pleasant task is mine
To trace a long ancestral line.

Capt. John Underhill's grave as seen by Thomas Stewardson in 1869
(Vol. II, page 25)

Beginning with a gallant few
Who crossed Atlantic's ocean blue,
And on New England's rock-bound shore,
'Mid forest fires and ocean's roar,
They heeded not the wintry gale,
But moored their bark and furled its sail.

And first among the group that stood
Amid the grand majestic wood,
With purpose firm and iron will,
I introduce John Underhill—
Brave Captain John, who in his prime
Had come from old Britannia's clime.
The star of truth was on his brow,
Reflected in his children now.
His lips affirmed—and that was all;
He kept the law, Swear not at all.

An honest man in word and deed,
Of generous soul, and this his creed:
Thy kindness must to others be
What thou would'st them show to thee.

When war its desolation spread,
And white men trembled, pale with dread,
He met the savage Pequot band
In deadly combat, hand to hand;
Not one escaped when he was near,
His glance could make them quail with fear,

"They are our foes," he oft would say,
"And should at once be swept away."
And later, when the days were dark,
'Twas he who fanned the dying spark
Of freedom to a lurid flame,
And thus he won a wreath of fame
That hallowed then and hallows still,
The name of Captain Underhill.

He left the home of other years,
And on Long Island now appears
A dwelling, where the stately trees
Are waving in the summer breeze,
And merry childhood's artless play
Beguiles the hours they steal away.

Time hurries on, its moments wane,
The past will not return again.
Brave Captain John is failing now,
And mirrored on life's page I see
His snow-white locks and furrowed brow,
And sigh to think of what must be.

His golden sunset hour draws nigh,
And, as I view the glowing sky,
There's not a cloud, the twilight's ray
Is peaceful as the smile of day;
One loving look and all is o'er,
The warrior chieftain is no more.

A life well spent, a work well done,
The boon he sought and nobly won,
Columbia brings her laurels rare,
Entwined with buds and blossoms fair,
To deck in fadeless beauty still
The tomb of Captain Underhill.

Beneath our banner's starry crest,
From north to south, from east to west,
Far as our Union hath it bound,
So far are his descendants found.
Broad lands they till, that grow and thrive,
No drones are in their busy hives;
Progression is their motto still,
Like that of Captain Underhill.

All honor to the peerless worth
Of those who fought them from their birth
To live like him, to all endeared;
To live like him, by all revered.
All honor to the veteran sire
Whose spirit lives, whose deeds inspire
With patriot zeal; and echo still
The glorious name of Underhill.

The following informal talk concerning the neighborhood where Capt. John Underhill spent his last days, was given by George W. Cocks, Oct. 13, 1910, and by permission was used in the Frost Genealogy.

the language of the aborigines, is a purely descriptive term, signifying a "Hill-country," or the "Land that overlooks," the aptness of which will be recognized when the bounds of the territory are shown. It originally comprised all the northern part of the Township of Oyster Bay extending from the Sound to the "Ridge of Hills," so called. The first attempt at a settlement of Matinecock appears to have been made in 1661 by Thomas Terry and Samuel Dering under an agreement with the Town of Hempstead, in which they had "liberty to settle themselves and some others of their friends upon a parcel of ground on the North side of the Island, on the East side of our Harbour, on the South side of the Harbour Hill and by an East line as far as our bounds go, and so down to the North Sea; engaging themselves to submit to the jurisdiction of Hempstead and not to bring in any Quakers to be inhabitants among us." Terry being unable to complete his arrangements within the two years given him for settlement, applied for and received an extension of time and it was then agreed he might "settle seven families thereupon as soon as convenience will suffer." No record appears showing the date of settlement of the "Seven Families," but it must have been by or before 1664, at which date Tackapousha and other Indians brought complaints before Governor Nichols, that they had not sold Matinecock to Hempstead. On being confronted with record proof that they had, then alleged that they had not been paid for all the land and that the pay received was so little to be divided among the many parties interested.—It was adjudged in the Council that Hempstead's title to all of Matinecock was defective, but that the English that were then seated on the said Matinecock lands were under no pretence to be molested or disturbed. And the Governor wrote to Capt. John Underhill, "It is not that I give very much credit to what they (the Indians) say, but for quietness sake and to prevent all future contests, I do recommend that you agree among yourselves to give ye Indians some gift or gratuity in requital, since they say they have never received any pay for the land." Pursuant to this recommendation, negotiations were concluded by which at Kelenworth on 22d day of June, 1667, the Indian Proprietors Aseton, Arumpas, Seahor, Nothe, Soometamok, Shoskeene and Matares executed deeds conveying to Robert Williams, William Hudson, William Simson, Henry Reddock, Christopher Hawxhurst, Matthew Priar and Nathan Birdsall each a specified tract of upland and an undivided one-seventh interest in the adjacent salt meadows, together with a right of commonage of grassing and timber in the unalloted part of the whole tract. This is very quaintly described in an agreement between the representatives of the township at large and those of the proprietors under the Seven Purchase Deeds, to wit—

"We do agree and consent yt our Neighbours now Inhabiting Killingworth upon Matinecock, shall have ye privilege to purchase all ye lands yt yet lies to purchase upon Matinecock Neck lying on ye North side of ye Footpath between Oyster Bay and Musketa Cove by ye way of ye Sho so called and to possess it from any claim of ye Town, as their other lands they now improve, which said Footpath shall be their limits or bounds Southward."

In the location of the several allotments of upland Robert Williams had "The Easter most of the two Matinecock Islands so called" some time earlier than this known as Meutalear Island and subsequently Woolsey's Island and Butler's Island when owned respectively by Rev. Benjamin Woolsey and Mr. John Butler, now known as East Island, the residence of Mr. Morgan.

Williams also had a small allotment of four acres on the mainland about where the Price Mansion stands, which with enlarged bounds came into the possession of one Daniel Whitehead; he gave it to his daughter Mary who m. John Taylor, and he, dying intestate, it passed to his only child, Abigail, who became as per record the wife of the Rev. Benjamin Woolsey, Dissenting Protestant Presbyterian Minister who, it is believed, called the estate "Dos uxoris," literally the "wife's dowry" modified in current usage to Dosoris.

William Hudson's allotment seems to have been some part of the farm of the late Dr. James C. Townsend, which he (Hudson) assigned to Aaron Forman, Jr., and then removed to New Jersey.

William Simson, from whom the creek now known as Frost Creek was named, had his house lot by the side of Dayton's Swamp, northeast of the Frost family burial place, and another lot on which the house and outbuildings of the late Valentine Frost stood, both of which were assigned to William Frost in 1674, and the name of Simson disappears from the record.

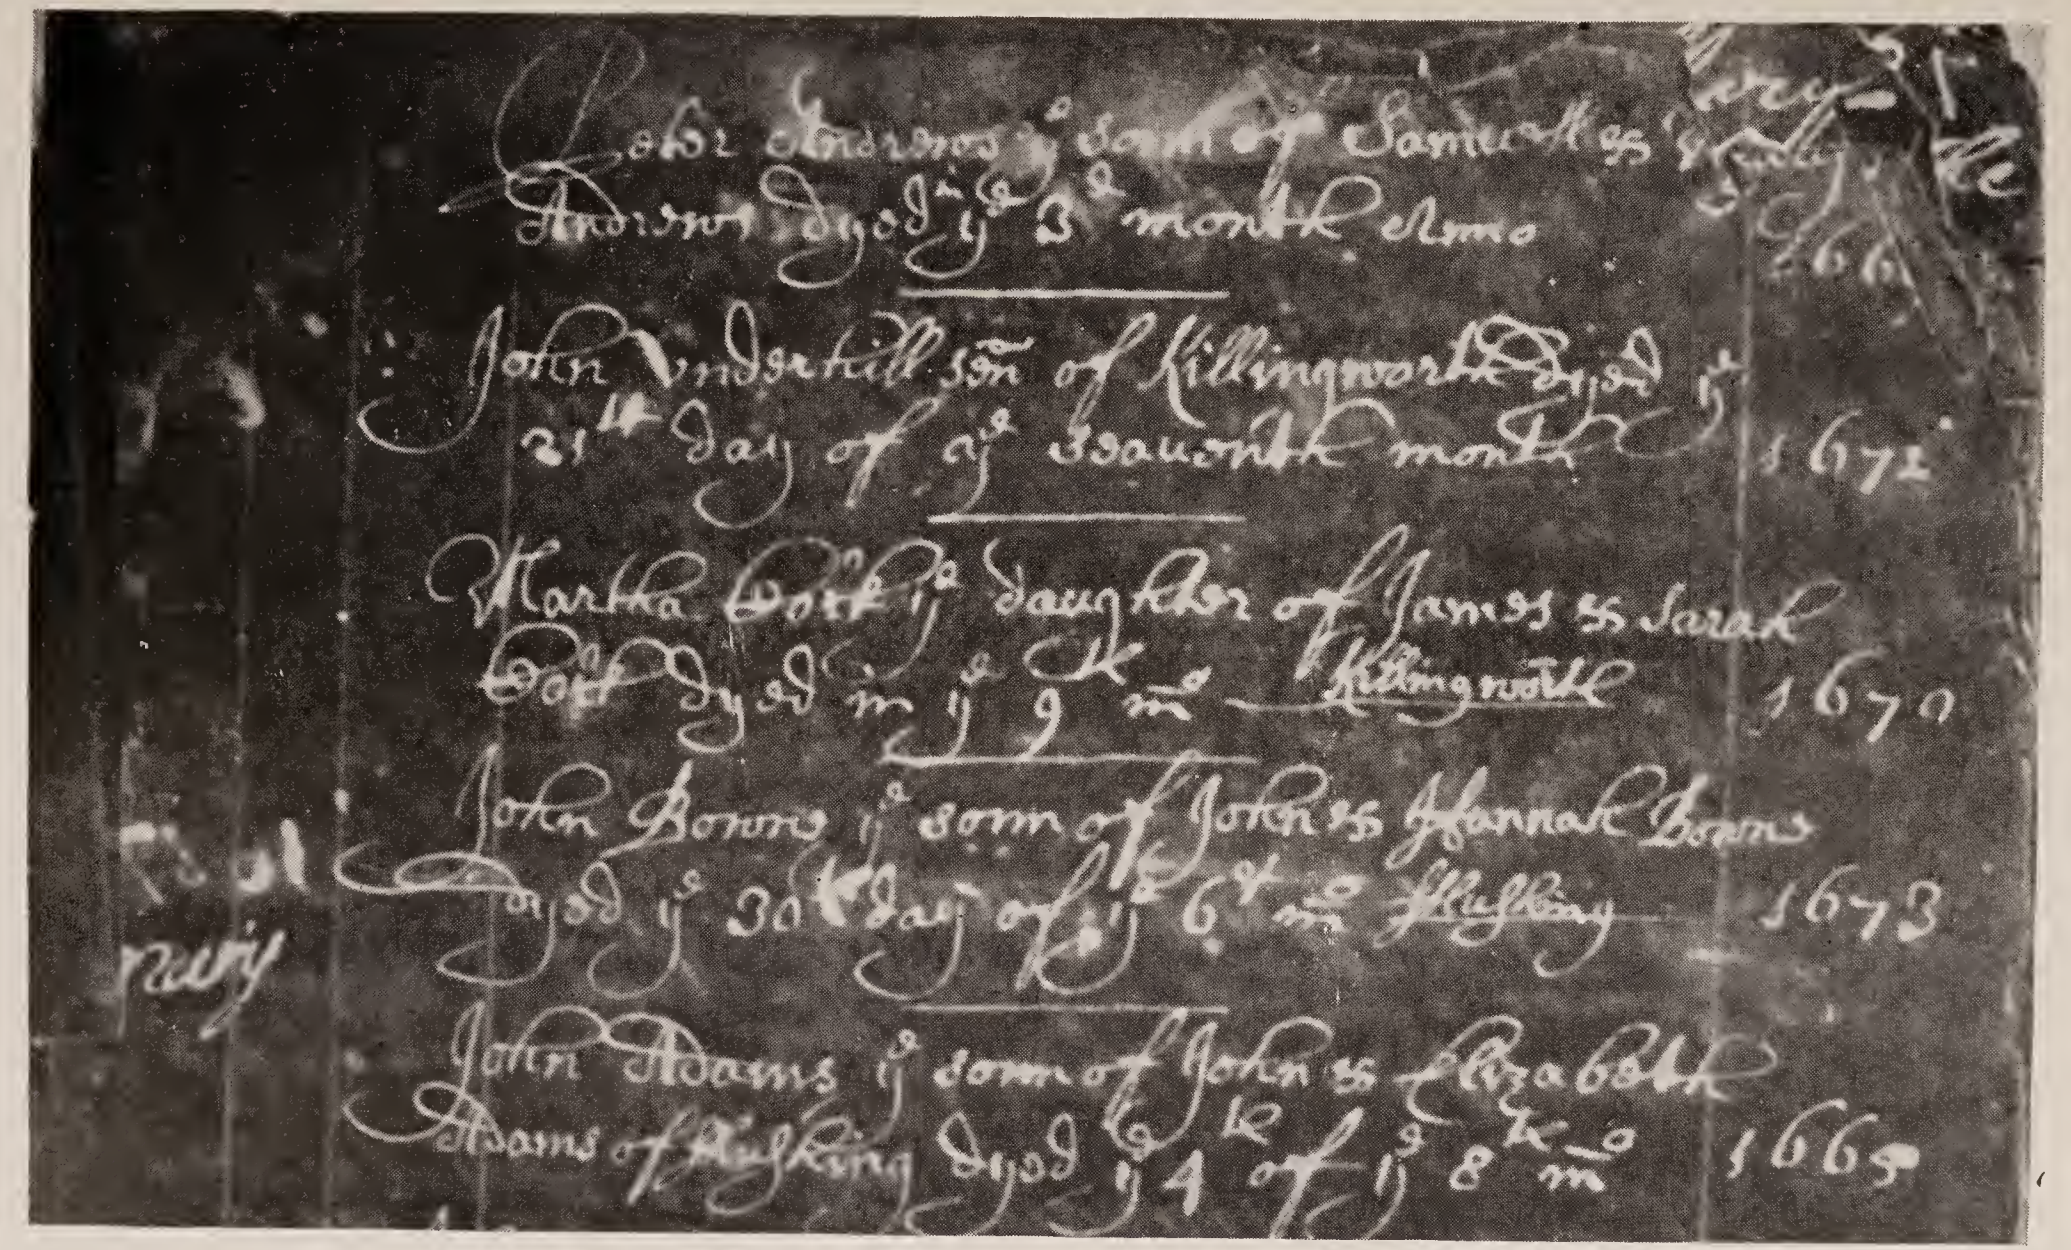
Henry Reddocke, the next in order, came from Rhode Island, where he had been the Town Clerk of Warwick. He had two lots on east side of the road northward from Davis' corner past the residence of Wm. C. Townsend and extending northward to the woodland formerly Mrs. Phebe Weeks', now Judge Lovett's. Henry Reddocke died about 1674 and the property passed to two sons-in-law, Joseph and Samuel Weeks. Only a small remnant of which surrounding and adjacent to the little "Burial Place" yet remains in the name.

Christopher Hawxhurst's lot came next eastward from Reddocke's with the same north and south bounds, and the residence, on north side of the road through Locust Valley, late owned by Charles Wansor. Hawxhurst also came from Rhode Island, and had married a daughter of Henry Reddocke.

Matthew Priar, an English Quaker, coming hither from Setauket with a remarkably interesting history, had the next allotment, east of and parallel with that of Hawxhurst. After the third generation of this family the name disappears from the local records.

Nathan Birdsall had the seventh lot, and his dwelling, with that of his sons Stephen and Henry, was, without much doubt, on the site of that recently owned by Mr. Jacacci.

Adjacent to the Birdsall lot on the East was another lot of Matthew Priar, sold in 1678 to his son-in-law John Underhill, son of the great Indian fighter, Capt. John Underhill, on which it is believed the younger



Capt. John Underhill's death as recorded by the Flushing Friends

John built some part of the house still standing on the site and now occupied by Mr. Cutcheon. North of the Priar second lot was a tract with salt meadows on east and west and extending north to a "neuk" of meadows between it and the beach, bought of the Indians in 1669 by James Cock and occupied by his descendants for more than two hundred and thirty years.

South of the Priar second lot was a tract of one hundred and fifty acres given by the Indians to Capt. John Underhill who, after exterminating some hundreds of them, seems to have brought the remnant "to heel" and became their adviser in the contest with Hempstead about the payment for their lands. Capt. John Underhill came to Matinecock as Deputy Sheriff and Surveyor of the Customs in an endeavor to break up the smuggling then rife in the harbors on the north side of Long Island especially at Oyster Bay and Musketa Cove.

Accompanying him came his young brother-in-law, John Feke, the son of Lieut. Robert Feake and Bess Fones, the widow of Henry Winthrop, and it appears that he gave to young Feke the southeast part of the tract received from the Indians, on which Feke built and reared a family of considerable note, the last representatives of which in this vicinity are Mrs. Thomas F. Underhill and Miss Emeline A. Feeks.

Contemporaneous with the Seven Purchasers on Killingworth upon Matinecock, other than those already noted, there were Richard and Josias Latten, William Frost, John Coles, Samuel Dayton, Edmund Wright, John Dyer, John Robins, John Davis, Joseph Eastland, Samuel Tillear, Aaron Forman, Jr., Henry Bell, and Lawrence Mott, but with the exception of the Lattens, Frost, and Forman, all had removed from hence before the close of the century.

Killingworth, the naming of which has been heretofore attributed by sundry so-called historians to Capt. John Underhill as given in honorable remembrance of his English home at Kenilworth; but I am unable to get any proof that the family were seated at or near Kenilworth, but, to the contrary, Capt. John's father and mother were of Wolverhampton. It seems to me more probable that, as there was a Killingworth in Connecticut from whence some members of the Frost family migrated to Matinecock, there might be more reason to believe that the name came from such source than otherwise.

Corn Creek, mentioned in early records as the south bounds of the second Priar lot and north bounds of the Underhill gift, still holds its name, although interrupted in its course by the dam to form the Factory pond built by one John Underhill, about 1820, to supply power for a woolen factory, to operate which several English families were brought over.

Kantuck, the popular name for the picturesque region south of the Feke property, was doubtless a term in the Indian tongue descriptive of the topography of the locality. Here again I may quote Mr. Tooker, giving the interpretation of "tuck" as a "tidal stream, creek or river" and suggesting the name "Kantuck" to be a modification of "qua-quanantuck," meaning a shallow, marshy creek.

Papa-quatunk River, as noted in the record of the "Oyster Bay First Purchase" as its western boundary, was the earliest mentioned name of the stream bridged by the railroad near the Mill Neck Station. Mr. Tooker writes that this name seems to have been the designation of a tract bordering on a brook where the Indians lived or had been living.

This view is corroborated by a quotation from the earliest book of Oyster Bay records, to wit, "Francis Weekes hath one House with a home Lot bounded upon the Hollow Southwest [being the late Cashow Place]. He hath moreover ten acres of planting land at the bottom of the Indian field bounded East by Sagamore Hill and the River on the West side."

This Sagamore Hill is just east of and above Mill Neck R. R. Station. In the way of restitution permit me here to say that the territory generally known as Mill Neck was not so called by reason of the mill on the west side thereof, built in 1694 by Henry Townsend, Jr., John Feekes of Matinecock, and Samuel and William Birdsall, but so named from the stream running down from Norwich through the Mill River Hollow to the Townsend Mill at Oyster Bay, established about 1660 on the east side of the Neck.

Roger's Canoe Hollow was on the north end of the Mill River Neck down by the shore of the part of the creek above the Bridge called the "Gut." Here it is supposed that Roger, one of the Indian Proprietors, laid his canoe up for the winter.

Beaver Swamp River, as a local designation, succeeded to Papaquatunck River, applying as far north as Stephen's Point, the northwest end of the Mill River Neck, and southerly up the valley as Beaver Brook and Beaver Swamp Hollow, now known as Brookville. This ancient settlement was at one time called "Wolverhampton" by Daniel and Abraham Underhill in remembrance of the seat of the Underhill family in old England. This euphonious designation being evidently unpopular, it would seem that by a process of combination and partial elimination of Wolverhampton and Beaver Swamp Hollow, there was effected a resultant name of "Wolver Hollow," which persisted until about sixty years ago, when the utilitarian sentiment of the day directed a change to Brookville in honor of the intermittent stream which, rising at about Suscoe's Wigwam, meanders down the valley finally to unite with Beaver Brook, the headwaters of the Mill Neck Club Preserves.

Suscoe's or Suckscall's Wigwam was on the east side of the road through the Hollow on property formerly known as the Maybee Place, being adjacent to a collection of living springs some time during English occupation reserved for public use as a watering place for the people of the town. The Wigwam was probably one of the "winter houses" constructed for use of several families under one roof with common use of fire and conveniences. Their summer residences were probably detached and portable, located near the salt water, as evidenced by the remains of their bivalve feasts.

Location of the home of Capt. John Underhill in Boston, 1630, is indicated by the letter "T," now on Hanover Street, west of Union Street

The Shu, Shoo, Shoe as we know it by varied orthography, was at a point on the Beaver Swamp River where the ancient path from the Town to Matinecock or Musketa Cove crossed the stream, shown now by a little island in the midst of the pond opposite the Mill Neck clubhouse. The appellation is supposed to derive from the following named conditions, to wit: The stream which reaching this point had been running northeasterly, then changes to northwesterly with considerable increase of declivity, thus creating a situation known on other rivers as a "Chute or Shute."

Isaac Horner was granted by ye Town in 1677-8, and again in 1684-5, ye privilege of ye stream at ye Beaver Swamp by ye Sho, so called, to set up a Fulling Mill, &c., &c. Sundry other adventurers made further improvements, also John Dewsbury built a brick house and, failing in business, merited the remonstrance of his Quaker brethren because of "his outrunning in extravagancy."

Samuel Birdsall in 1695 purchased the northerly part of the Horner Grant and erected another mill which was in later times known as George Frost's and still later as Silas Cock's Mill.

Kantuck Mills were built before 1800, the upper one, being a saw mill, by the Hawxhurst family, and the lower, a grist mill, by Samuel Cock, Jr.

Indian John Rumpus lived on what was called his island in the midst of the swamp which by that time was known as Shu Swamp. He was supposed to be a descendant of the Arumpas whose name appears on the Seven Purchase Deeds.

The Piping Rock is on the north side of the footway from the town to Musketa Cove by way of the Shu, so called, situate at or near the southeast corner of Mr. Pate's property and just opposite to the entrance of what was formerly Isaac Thorne's Lane. In none of the sundry appearances of the phrase on the town records as "the piping Rock" is there any clue to the derivation or meaning, but in one rendering as "the pipe and tree Rock" there seems to be possible ground for the tradition that here the Indians and the settlers smoked the "pipe of peace."

Matinecock Meeting House was built in 1725, and the Burying Place established the same year. Friends' meetings had been previously held at the houses of Matthew Priar, James Cock and John Feke.

Littleworth old Footpath appears at the south end of the road from the Piping Rock to Shoo Brook, being part of the Indian trail from the Town to Littleworth on Hempstead Harbor via Mill Hill, Planting Fields, etc., through a picturesque ravine which the Piping Rock Association have recently repaired and opened for use.

Littleworth is on east side of Hempstead Harbor, being a tract within the original Musketa Cove Purchase which the Indians resold to Richard Kirby, George Downing, Jacob Brooking and Robert Godfree. The origin of the name is unknown unless it be a modification of Lutterworth. It is now a part of Sea Cliff and in consideration of the earlier and later desire for the ownership of the property the name seems rather paradoxical.

Musketa Cove was not so called by reason of any unusual prevalence at that place of the genus Culex, which is said to be so annoying to some of its neighbors, but takes it from a descriptive term in the Indian tongue signifying "Grassy Flats" evidenced in the salt meadows below the site of the old starch factory, in the name of Muscoota in Harlem Flats, at the Muscoot Reservoir, in upper Westchester County, and the Musketaquid River at Concord, Mass. But the implication carried in the name convinced the natives in 1834 that a change would be advantageous, so the town was rechristened Glen Cove.

Buckram, as a designation of the territory now known as Locust Valley, first appears of record in 1730 as applied to the lot next west of John Bayles, and persisted until 1856, in which year a neighborhood meeting called for the purpose, changed the name of the post office to Locust Valley. The reasons for which were the detrimental character of the ancient name and the peculiar propriety of the one proposed, because of the abundance hereabouts of the noble tree, Robinia Pseudacacia, commonly called "Locust," which, by the way, was not indigenous to Long Island, the first seeds or saplings having been brought hither from Virginia by Captain John Sands about 1700. Not having learned of any more credible theory of the origin of the use of the name Buckram in this locality, I will venture to suggest that it was a modification of "Buckenham," a town in the County of Norfolk, England, where it is shown in Blomefield's History that sundry members of the Cock family held landed estates and official positions in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Now about 1730 there were resident in this vicinity Hezekiah Cock, ancestor of Hon. Townsend D. Cock, and John Cock, whose dwelling and store was on the site of the present residence of John Bayles, and they, being grandsons of our immigrant ancestor James Cock, it is within the bounds of probability that they may have used the name in remembrance of an ancestral home in Old England.

Chagechagon or Chagon Swamp was the designation of the valley appearing on the records both before and after the use of Buckram.

The brook of the same name has its first appearance above ground south of the Fitzhugh Smith place, and with occasional subterraneous excursions winds its way down the valley and falls into Kantuck. This name is doubtless in some way connected with Chagechagon, alias Quaropin, one of the "Chief Proprietors" of land upon Matinecock whose signature often appears in conveyances to the English.

The earliest of the Highways in old Matinecock seems to have been that of "Feke's Lane," first opened for use under an agreement between John Feke and Steven and Henry Birdsall, John Priar, William Hawxhurst and Samuel and Joseph Weeks wherein John Feke ceded to the other parties all right, title and interest he had in a piece of land between the Rere (or south end) of their lots and Chagechagon Brook and promised to warrant and defend by virtue of a Deed made by ye Indians to Capt. John Underhill, &c., &c. In return the other parties grant to John Feke an open two-rod road "cross our Lotts." This was regularly laid out in 1730 by Joseph Dickinson and Samuel Macoune, to begin at the head or west end of Feake's Lane, so called, or at Matinecock Road and to run as ye way now goes, two (2) Rods wide unto ye said Feake's Mill thence to Oyster Bay as ye way now goes by ye house of Absalom Townsend between ye Clefts to ye Beach and so along shore into ye Town two rods wide allowing good swinging gates on each side of ye Salt meadow; and Robert Feakes may have a gate on ye west side and Robert Townsend shall keep a gate on ye East side of his land. Laid out by consent of Robert Feakes, Robert Townsend and Samuel Weeks." The signatures of the family seem to have been "Feake" by the immigrant Lieut. Robert, but "Feke" by his descendants down to about 1820, after which the phonetic rendering as "Feeks" obtained general currency, showing the tendency in colloquial usage to apply the plural termination as in Cock, Cole and Wick.

In 1699 was laid out a highway from ye Mill (at Oyster Bay) to ye Shoo Brook and so to Matinecock, and so around to Hog Island as ye path now goes six (6) Rods wide throughout and also from ye said Highway as ye way goes to Musketa Cove six (6) rods wide.

Highways laid out in the old Purchase of Matinecock by the Proprietors thereof are ordered as followeth: From ye highway that goes by Joseph Weeks senior's Westward between John Priar and Mott's (now W. C. Townsend and Cravath) lands, so up the Hollow (some time called Horse Hollow) as the way goeth until it comes to Josias (now or late Edward) Latten's land and so up along Latten's (now Hooper's) land till it comes to Musketa Cove land. Six (6) rods wide throughout.

In 1708 this was resurveyed and laid out by County Commissioners. Beginning at Joseph Weeks' corner and runs westerly by the School House till it comes to William Frost's land four rods wide or as it stands by marked trees; then southerly between William Frost's land and John Prior's land and so westerly across a corner of said Frost's land as it stands by marked trees till it comes to the South Path and so westerly until it comes to the end of Pudding Lane as it stands by marked trees and northerly up the Lane to Aaron Forman's land; the heap of stones to be the middle of the Highway at the south end and the Peach tree at the north end; then it runs westerly between Aaron Forman and Josias Latting's land as the Highway now runs and so westerly across James Sands his land as it stands by marked tree and across lands of Aaron Forman and William Frost and then westerly till you come to James Sands' land four rods wide from the two trees that are marked and northward along the place to the Widow Burroughs' land and Landing Place as it stands by marked trees. Memorandum—that James Sands and the Widow Burroughs are allowed to have swinging gates on the West side of the Island Swamp Brook upon their own charge.

Highway from the above said road at the south end of Aaron Forman's land, southerly along to the brow of the hill and so eastward to John Priar's land and so along the South end of Priar's land to the Highway from Oyster Bay to Matinecock. In a further memorandum it is noted that the way eastward on the Southside of Lot 16, which was Birch Hill, should be three rods wide.

Highway ordered six (6) rods wide from William Frost's Bars as ye way now runs Southward by John Townsend's land (near Meeting House) to Isaiah Harrison's (at Susco's Wigwam) and so to Jericho.

Highway ordered to run from Joseph Weeks Jun'rs House (Davis corner) up along the North side of Chagechagon Swamp until it comes to ye highway from Matinecock yt goes South (to ye Meeting House) 4 Rods wide throughout.

Sheep Land was first laid out in 1734-5 by the Proprietors of Matinecock Common Lands preliminary to their allotment and division and in 1748 by the Highway Commissioenrs of the town as a three (3) rod road down to the two rocks on the edge of the meadow at Frost Creek, with the consent of the Proprietors.

In 1739, as voted in Town Meeting, Granted the whole and sole right of keeping and employing a Ferry from ye Township of Oyster Bay across ye Sound unto ye Township of Rye or to New England to Samuel Macoune, Thomas Jones, Penn Townsend, David Valentine, Wright Frost and Daniel Cock and their assigns forever, &c., &c.

It appears that Thomas Jones soon became the sole owner and purchased three acres of land about where the Firling house stands and ran the ferry from thence to Rye, but after the use of it for about two years by accident the boat was upset and all the living freight and passengers were drowned, including Jones.

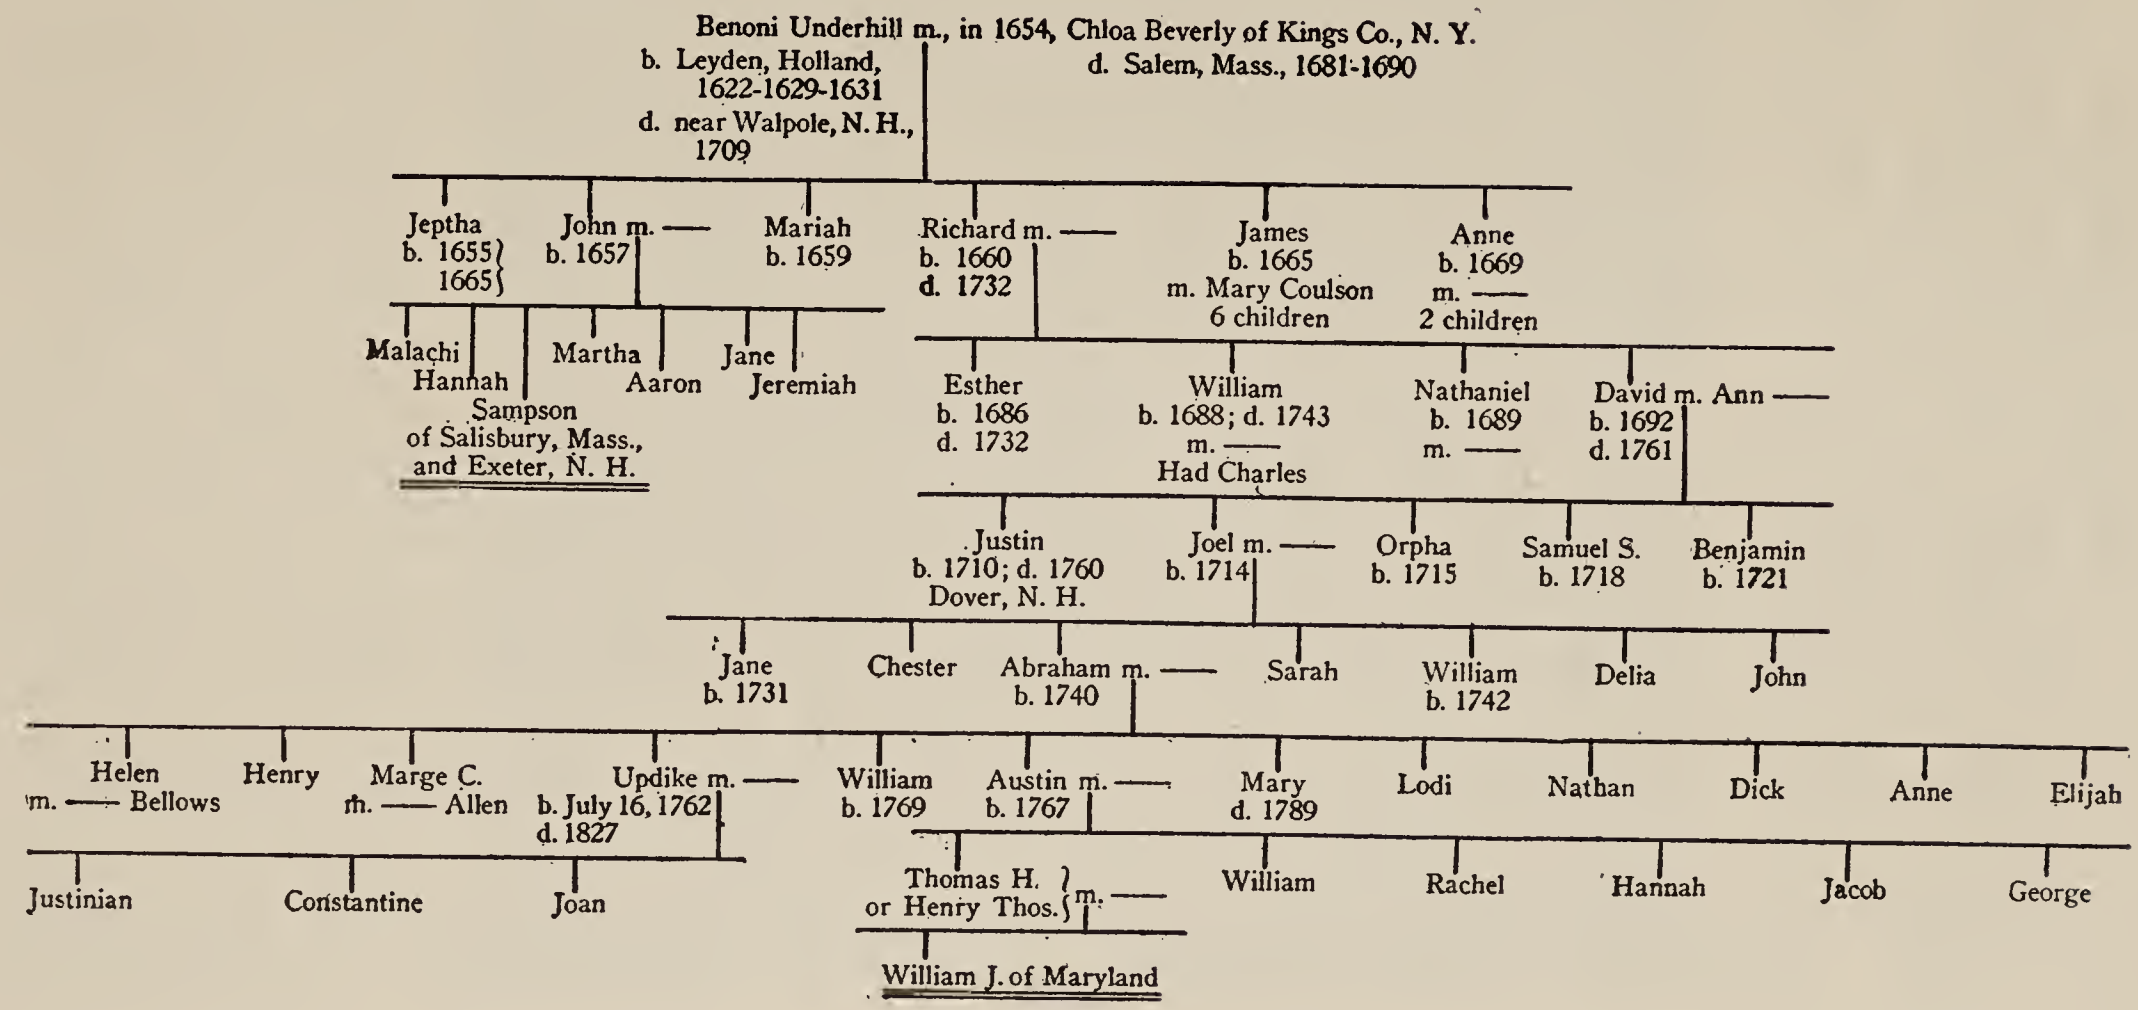
BENONI UNDERHILL

Benoni Underhill is given as a son of Capt. John Underhill in "The Algerine Captive," written by Royal Tyler in 1797, under the pen name of Dr. Updike Underhill, a fictitious character whom he makes a descendant of said Benoni, and gives him a birthday of July 16, 1762. Tyler was born in 1757. The chart given below has been used in good faith by certain Underhills, but neither Benoni nor one of the men mentioned in it, leading to Sampson of Salisbury, Mass., and Exeter, N. H., and to Wm. J. Underhill of Maryland, have been found to date in will, deed, mortgage, town or country or church records, in the territory (or out of it) wherein they were supposed to exist. The ancestry of Sampson and Wm. J. Underhill is unknown to date, but their descendants will appear in this publication. The source of the chart or the name of its compiler has not been found.



BENONI UNDERHILL

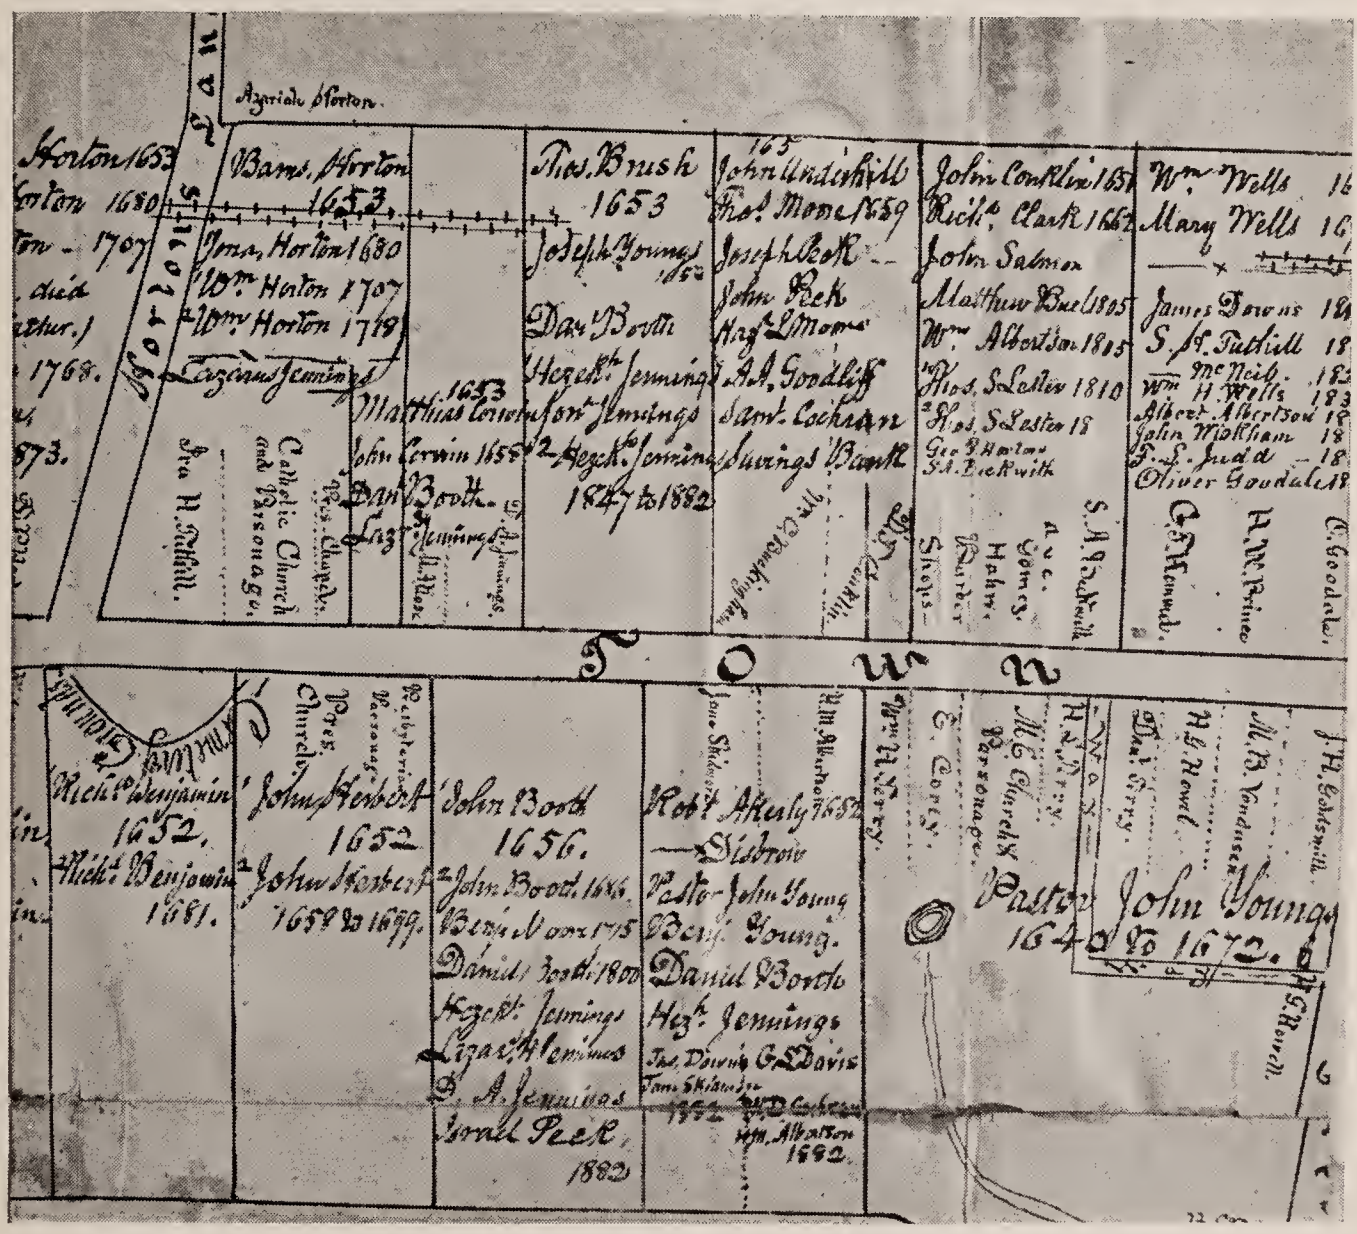
It is particularly fitting to mention here the fictitious ancestry of one Dr. Updike Underhill, said to have descended from one Benoni Underhill, eldest son of Capt. John Underhill.

Dr. Updike Underhill was the pen name of Royal Tyler, as following articles will clearly show, and was wholly an imaginary character, born in the fertile mind of said Tyler and produced in "The Algerine Captive." This book, published in 1797, may be seen in two volumes in the Public Library of New York City, Room 303. It is indexed under Royal Tyler.

Its pages do not give the connection of said Updike back to Benoni, therefore the little genealogy which has come to the front, connecting those two and, incidentally, Sampson Underhill of Salisbury, Mass., and Exeter, N. H., and Wm. J. Underhill of Maryland, has arisen in a more fertile imagination than that of Royal Tyler, born 1757. The compiler of it is not now identified, but for the past forty years it has been quite freely used, as appears on a chart in this work. The parties even using July 16, 1762, as the birth date of Updike Underhill, which may be found in The Algerine Captive, Vol. I, p. 49. No evidence of any sort exists that could even traditionally be used in the connections given on the chart, and not one name of any value whatever is there excepting those of Sampson Underhill and Wm. J. Underhill, whose descendants may be found in this book, but whose ancestry is to date absolutely unknown.

Dr. John W. Underhill of Van Wert, Ohio, in a letter to D. Harris Underhill, written in 1886, gives the marriage, life, etc., of the fictitious Benoni at some length, and while his dates, etc., are in error, the editor has decided to give his letter, without comment, in full, but judges by later documents that Dr. John W. must have had some doubts himself; but nowhere does the editor find the source of his information which he appears to have had from some one.

A letter in 1887 from Joshua J. Underhill of Baltimore, Md., son of William J., included a line from the elusive Benoni, but he frankly states he personally knew nothing of his ancestors, but the chart had been sent to him and he copied it and then filled in his family. He had been in communication with Dr. John W. Underhill of Van Wert, Ohio, and also with D. Harris Underhill, and it was furnished him by the latter, who evidently received it from Dr. John W., source now unknown.



SKETCH OF SOUTHOLD, L. I., SHOWING WHERE CAPT. JOHN UNDERHILL LIVED PRIOR TO 1659; ALSO THE PRESBYTERIAN CEMETERY WHERE HIS WIFE HELENA WAS BURIED IN 1653.

LETTER FROM DR. JOHN W. UNDERHILL
December 14, 1886

It is somewhat plain that Benoni was of lawful age in 1650, that he went to New Amsterdam in a rather impecunious manner, leaving his father at a tender age in 1646, and did not return until the death of his mother in 1649. He there learned a trade (one says a hundred years ago) a chandler; another says cord weaver, and another says that he learned to be a shipwright. I can't decide, but my impression that he learned the trade of a chandler is correct! His sister Elizabeth, who had been housekeeper for the captain, died in 1654.

By this event Benoni married and presumed upon the circumstances to bring her home, thinking that his father would possibly allow them to take charge of the homestead!

Benoni had taken to wife one his father had not seen; it had been done without his advice or consent—he had deserted him in his declining years, bereft of his wife and daughter. Crazed with these reflections, he notified him of his disinheritance. However, after due reflection, he changed his mind a little and forgave the trick and took them home. But Benoni found his younger and only brother, now 24 years old, in charge and taking the lead of his father's business, &c., &c. Capt. John and second wife were married in 1658 (so the family record says). His wife became so dissatisfied, it alienated Benoni from his stepmother, so much that after going from place to place and becoming attenuated in circumstances, at last proposed to remove to New Hampshire, where his father was once Governor of the Colonies of Exeter and Dover and had been very popular for his courage and bravery, manifested in his expeditions against the natives 1641 to 1643. About 1660 to 1667, assisted by his father, Benoni started for the Rockingham settlement in New Hampshire, with his wife and three children, landing in Boston; wended his way north and located in Essex near the town of Salem for the winter and remained in that region for five years, then advanced toward New Hampshire — called Rockingham County, N. H., as near as I can learn.

John was born on a farm 8 miles southeast of the ferry on the Merrimac River between Salem and Chester, N. H. The mother died there in 1681 to 1690, but Benoni died about 1709 at the residence of one of his sons at or near Hampden. His children all settled around him. John, however, settled in what is now called Essex County, Massachusetts. Samuel S. (David's son) settled in Andover and Salem S. called Samson (John's son) settled in Salisbury, 1717, where he married a Miss Ambrose.

In another account, Dr. John W. Underhill writes that Benoni "left Long Island and went to Salem in 1660 and New Hampshire in 1674, and died in his 81st year in the vicinity of Walpole or Winchester, N. H., where he was buried in 1709"; that "he married in New Amsterdam, in 1654 (another letter says in Kings County, one Chloa Beverly), and lived in Greenwich Street, a ship chandler and sail-maker, so says Van Waargin in Manhattan Papers, No. 10." The editor, through the courtesy of the New York State Library and the New York Historical Society, had the Manhattan Papers thoroughly searched and no reference whatever was found to Benoni, nor has the name of Beverly been found in Kings or New York Counties at that period and "Van Waargin" was not the author of the Manhattan Papers. Dr. John W. Underhill, in another undated statement, again wrote, in stating some additional unproven paragraphs regarding Benoni, as follows: "However that may be, there appears to be no record, nor does his name occur in the old Bible of Capt. John(?); nor is there any traditional or historical account of him in state or public records, except what may be seen in 'The Algerine Captive.'" It is therefore quite evident that Dr. Underhill was supplied with the fictitious connection of Benoni to Sampson Underhill and of Benoni's descendants, etc., by another, now unidentified, party.

On June 28, 1925, the town clerk of Walpole, N. H., wrote that the town was not settled until 1749, when one John Kilburn came, and that there were no records until after the arrival of Benjamin Bellows in 1751.

The following letter written in 1893 by D. Harris Underhill to Dr. John W. Underhill shows clearly that at that period he knew nothing about Benoni until Dr. John W. supplied the information, but gave a talk on him in 1896, which was published in the Underhill Society's Annual report of that year:

"Upon referring to your letter of April 12, 1886, I find that you state that Capt. John's family arrived in New Amsterdam soon after 1640, and comprised a wife, one widowed daughter with two children, and three sons, one 33, one 28 and one 22 years old; that the oldest had a wife and three children, the next a wife and two children and the youngest was unmarried. The oldest at the age of 54 moved to New Hampshire, where he died in 1690, 80 years old. The following extract is from your letter of March 30, 1877: 'The Vermont branch is an old one but not as old as the Benoni branch in Massahchusetts, New Hampshire and Maine, for they were tramps, springing from 1654-'55, when the first child was born, was disinherited by Capt. John for desertion in his old age and for marrying a cockswain's daughter in New Amsterdam, against his will. In 1660, however, it may be, Capt. John gave him means to go, and he, his wife and three children left for the granite hills. He (Benoni) was a roystering fellow, never pleased with home after his mother, Helena Kruger, died in 1649 or thereabouts, but went about from place to place till about 1680, when he became settled, Capt. John Underhill's tea cady, handed down as per inscription, to John Jr., to John, to Thomas, to John who married Maria Weeks, to Sarah who married Hampton Dodge, to the widow of their son Loudon H. Dodge, Mrs. Katharine H. Dodge, of 270 West 93rd Street, New York City, who loaned it to the Underhill Society of America to be photographed, April 22, 1909.

made money and left a good property and his family a competency and at the age of 80 died in 1709. The family entirely ignored him, when his descendants have been as respectable as any of those who persecuted him.'

"Beginning with your statement in your letter of April 12, 1886, please answer the following questions: What year did Capt. John's family arrive in New Amsterdam? What was the name of his widowed daughter? You name three sons. What were their names? You say one was 33. If this was Benoni and he was born in 1629 it would make the year 1660. If John was born in 1632 and was 28, that would make it 1660. In the old Bible that belonged to Capt. John's son John in Mrs. Cock's possession is an entry of a son born April 12, 1631, and also John christened in Old South Church in Boston, April 24, 1642, aged 13 days. What John was this? What son was 22? I have no record of such a son who had wife and three children. Was David the youngest? If so, he could not have been born then, as my record shows he was born in 1672. If Benoni was the oldest son and left home at age of 54, why was he not mentioned in the old man's will? What part of New Hampshire did he go to and where was he buried? You say, the oldest son went to New Hampshire. Was not New Hampshire then in Massachusetts? It was not until 1679 that it became a Colony and then only a short time, when it became Massachusetts again in 1698 and so remained until 1741, when it became separate. Where will I find his grave? What was the name of the cockswain's daughter Benoni married? You have on your chart his six children sent me in 1886. . . ."

Letter from George W. Cocks, dated Glen Cove, N. Y., July 7, 1911, to D. Harris Underhill:

"I am looking for a reply to my request of last year, about the authority for placing the descendants of Benoni Underhill in the line of Capt. John Underhill. I am not jealous of Benoni's children nor do I wish to take anything from them to which they are entitled, but, it seems to me, that you have not cited any proof whatever of a connection of Benoni with Capt. John. You are in a Library, which if in any place in the whole world such record can be found it is there. Now why not proceed to the task of its discovery, not because I ask it, but for the best of reasons, for truth's sake? Never mind what Dr. Underhill supposed or Abrahm S. Underhill wrote, some of which is already discredited, but go to Massachusetts History and to Savage and see what you will find and put it in your next annual report as an Addenda to counteract the many absurd historical errors that have crept into the former ones. I beg that you will not be offended, but it is time such things should be said and not left until the Book be discredited, as it would be. You started out to compile an authoritative history of our ancestor, but your enthusiasm in collecting has led you to accept many perversions of fact, to some of which I have heretofore called your attention, and once more I urge that you should make a vigorous endeavor to show authority for: that Capt. John had a son Benoni by wife Helena and that Benoni and his mother came over in 1630. . . . Prove these or, if you are unable, then change your record to accord with what you can prove."

Another letter, dated Sept. 21, 1912, states:

"There is nothing in the text of Winthrop's Journal to show that Capt. John came with them from Yarmouth nor does his name appear on the list of passengers of the Mary and John which was said to have brought those 'from the west of England.' "

From a letter written by Wm. Underhill of London, Eng., April 16, 1891.

In writing of Capt. John Underhill, etc., states:

"Concerning his alleged service in Ireland and Spain, you evidently possess particulars (as they are usually given), so I need not repeat them, though it may be well to say, that, if obtained from narrative which passes under the 'nom de plume' of Dr. Updike Underhill, they stand in need of verification."

The undersigned certifies that, according to the alphabetically arranged entries of baptism taken from the Baptismal records which are deposited with the archives of the City of Leiden, embracing the years 1621 to 1635, both inclusive, no entry of Baptism of Benoni Underhill appears during the said period.

(Signed) CH. M. DOZY,
City Archivist.

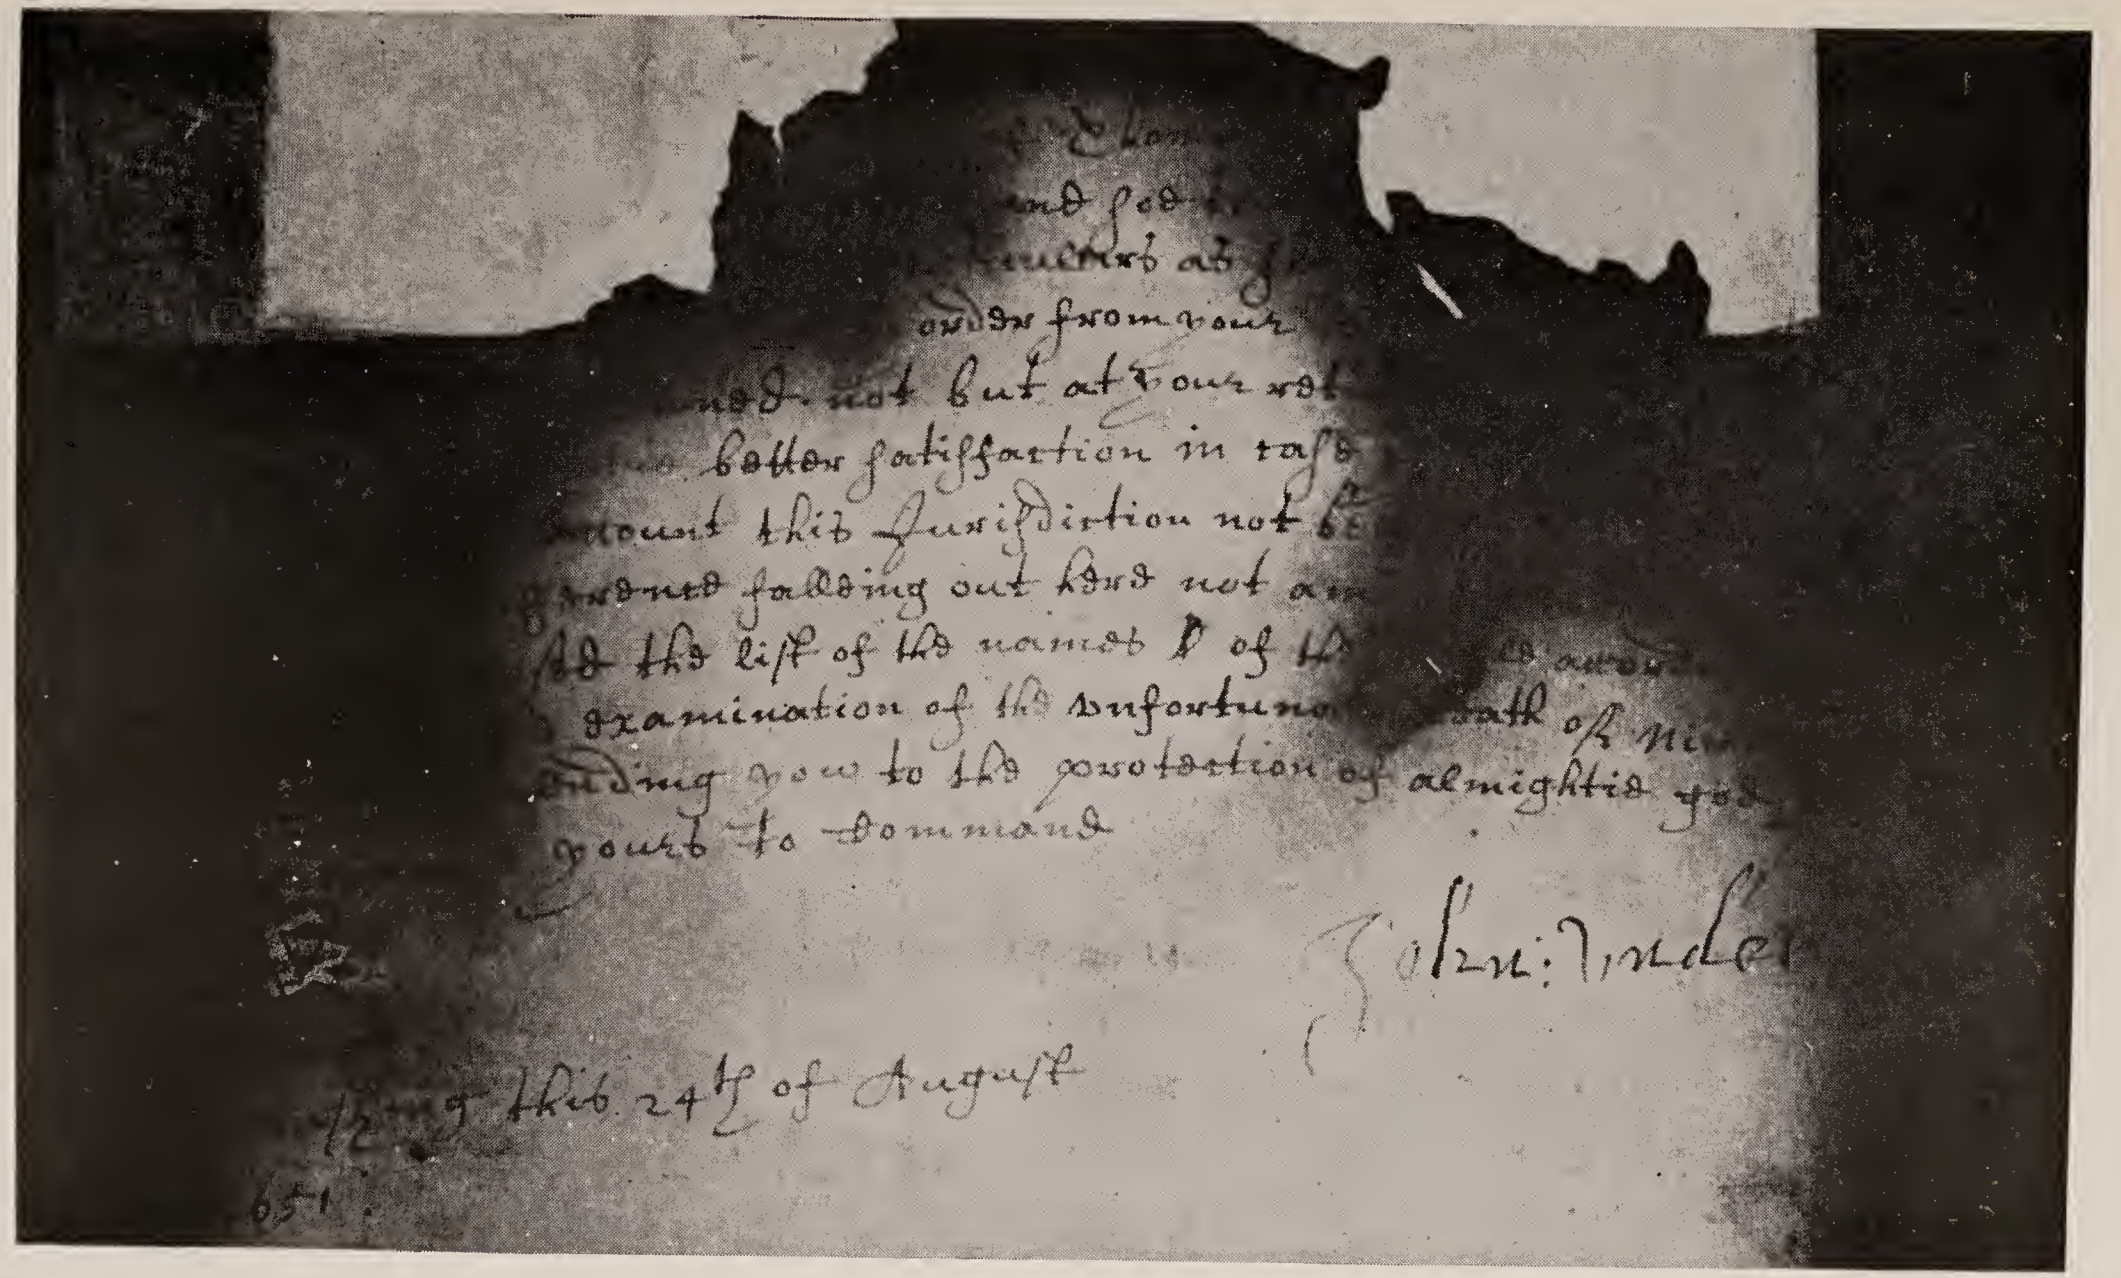
Leiden, Aug. 31, 1900

Dr. Morton of Philadelphia, Pa., had the above search made.

As in the majority of such cases, there must have been some foundation for the errors made concerning Benoni Underhill and that foundation is without doubt found in Royal Tyler's book "The Algerine Captive," which he wrote under the pen name of Dr. Updike Underhill, and the following will prove conclusively that said Underhill was wholly an imaginary character.

The National Cyclopedia of American Biography, Vol. 7, p. 39, under Tyler, states that Royal Tyler, born 1757, wrote under the name of Dr. Updike Underhill, a fictitious narrative of adventure entitled "The Algerine Captive," or "The Life and Adventures of Dr. Updike Underhill, Six Years a Prisoner Among the Algerines," etc.

"Our Book," by Washington Frothingham and Charlemagne Tower, published by G. W. Dillingham, states: "Immediately after the Revolution Judge Tyler appeared in print as Updike Underhill and with this pen name appeared the first American play and also the first tale."



Letter from John Underhill written at Flushing Aug. 24, 1651

Savage in his Genealogical Dictionary of New England, Vol. 4, p. 359, and our greatest authority on New England families, in commenting on the service of Capt. John Underhill under Leicester as given in Bolton's Westchester Co., N. Y., Vol. 2, p. 229, states that "such ornaments belong to the work of fiction as under the name of Updike Underhill, by Royal Tyler; and thence probably derived by popular credulity."

In writing the introduction to "Grandmother Tyler's Book," Frederick Tupper, one of the editors, states: "She writes of her husband, who was ever her best-beloved of men. In her book she builded better than she knew and mentions him as the dramatist in 'The Contrast,' the novelist in 'The Algerine Captive,' the colonist in the 'Colon and Spondee Papers,' the essayist in 'The Yankey in London' and in the unpublished 'Bay Boy,' the poet in happy verses of occasion and the humorist everywhere."

Excerpts from "Grandmother Tyler's Book," being the Recollections of Mary Palmer Tyler, 1775-1866, wife of Royall Tyler, published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1925. On pages 258-9 may be seen the following: "Your father finished 'The Algerine Captive' and by way of trying, like Molière, the worth of the work, he was in the habit of reading it, as he finished the chapters, to an old woman who lived with us as maid of all work; she was a woman who had seen better days and was quite intelligent. She had imbibed the common prejudices of the day against the 'horrid Algerines' and felt greatly interested about Dr. Updike Underhill; had heard of people of that name in Rhode Island and wondered if he ever got home and understanding from your father's answer that he had, 'And he has got your honor to write his life and adventures?' Upon receiving what she took to be an affirmative, 'Well! I do hope he will come here while I stay; do you think he will?' 'It is quite doubtful,' said your father. 'Oh, I do hope he will; but you will let me hear you read what you write, I know.' 'Certainly.' And, of course, every evening after her work was done, she would put on a clean white apron and her best cap, and come to see if he had any ready to read to her, and was greatly disappointed if he had not. She evidently believed it all true and years afterwards I saw her, after she went to live with her married daughter and she asked seriously if Dr. Underhill ever came to visit us."

A footnote on page 258:

" 'The Algerine Captive,' which was published by Royall Tyler in 1797, was on a timely theme, as the Moorish pirates of the Mediterranean were a constant menace to the vessels of both Europe and America. The black-pennanted pirate-ship, which captures the Yankee, Doctor Updike Underhill, sails into the story, 'impelled through the water with amazing velocity' at the very close of the first part. The earlier pages tell a story of American life not only in Puritan days, but in Underhill's own late eighteenth-century epoch. 'The Algerine Captive' won an unprecedented international reputation, for it was the first American work of fiction produced in England. In 1802, five years after its first appearance at Walpole, N. H., it was printed in England and in 1804 ran as an illustrated serial in a British periodical, 'The Lady's Magazine.' In 1816, yet another edition was issued at Hartford, Conn. It won in September, 1803, favorable comment from 'The Monthly Review' of London."

FRANCIS JAY UNDERHILL, ESQ.

Dear Sir: Referring to your letter of March 17th, I am pleased to say that as I write I have a very fine copy of the "Algerine Captive" before me (two volumes bound in one), printed at Walpole, New Hampshire, by David Carlisle, Jr., in 1797. I bought this book at auction in Boston, perhaps 25 or 30 years ago, after waiting many years for a copy, either at private or public sale. It is possible you might be able to find a copy, &c., &c.

Regarding the author: I have always thought that Updike Underhill was a nom de plume and in the family tradition, that the "Algerine Captive" was our first ancestor, Thomas Tyler, a sea captain, who came from Budleigh, Devon, to New England. "His last voyage was in 1703, when he was taken by a Barbary corsair and no more heard of—perhaps he was killed at the capture, but a family tradition is mentioned that he died at sea. His wife took administration May 12, 1704," and another note I have states that Thomas was "taken by the Algerines about 1697; carried into Algiers, and has never been heard of since; the Algerines rejecting a considerable ransom."

I believe that Updike was a fictitious character and the product, as you say, of "the versatile lawyer pen" and the tragic end of his great-grandfather gave him the subject for his book. This is all the information I have regarding your inquiry.

Very truly yours,

E. ROYALL TYLER.

SECOND GENERATION

4 JOHN UNDERHILL, son of (1) John and Helena (de Hooch) Underhill, was baptized in the First Church of Boston, 24, 2, 1642, aged about 13 days. (See Bible record following and that of Daniel Underhill No. 45.) He was married, as per the Flushing Quaker Records:

"1668, 2d First day of 8th month. We whose names are hereunder written are witnesses that at the usual Meeting House of the people of God in Oyster Bay and in the presence of the public assembled then gathered, Jno. Underhill and Mary Pryer intending marriage, having given notice thereof before according to order, did then and there according to the practice of the holy men of God in the Scriptures of Truth and after the law of God, take each other for husband and wife and to live together in the fear of God faithfully so long as they shall live.

John Underhill
Mary Underhill

Witnesses: Samuel and Mary Andrews, Jno. Feake, Matt. Prier, Henry Townsend."

Mary, daughter of Matthew Prior (Priar-Pryer, etc.), was born 1st mo., 1652, and died, as per Bible record, 29 of 1st mo., 1698, but the Quaker records state it was the 5th month. John Underhill died, as per the Bible, the 23rd of 10 mo., 1692, but the Quaker records say 28 of 10 mo., 1692.

In an old court record it is stated that the marriage of John Underhill, Jr., and Mary Prior is pronounced null and they are fined five pounds each for breach and contempt of the law and to pay ten pounds more if they shall not be legally married before the next court, which being neglected, they were fined ten pounds each.

The marriage of John and Mary was according to good order in the Society of Friends, but contrary to the laws of the Colony, because of the omission of "priestly or civil official." The Friends finally won in the stand they took and are married in the same way today.

John Underhill and his wife were buried in the Underhill Burying Ground and in 1881 a cedar tree had grown up out of his grave, against which laid the gravestone of "J. U., 1692."

Issue:

+10 John, born 5 mo., 1, 1670.
11 Daniel, born 9, 3, 1672, died unmarried 12 mo., 9, 1713.
+12 Samuel, born 12, 18, 1674.
+13 Mary, born 2, 26, 1677.
+14 Abraham, born 6, 28, 1679.
+15 Deborah, born 2, 11, 1682.
+16 Sarah, born 6, 17, 1687.
+17 Jacob, born 10, 16, 1689.
+18 Hannah, born 1, 23, 1690.

The oldest Underhill family Bible record known to exist is that now (1929) owned by Jacob Underhill, son of Samuel V. Underhill, of Glen Cove, L. I. The editor copied it in detail in the presence of Frances Jay Underhill, his wife, and Jacob Underhill and his wife.

The title page states: "Printed at the Theatre in Oxford, and are to be sold by Moses Pitt at the Angel in St. Paul's Churchyard, Peter Parker at the Leg, and Star over against the Royal Exchange in Cornhill, William Leak at the Crown between the two Temple gates in Fleet Street, Thomas Guy at the Oxford Arms on the west side of the Royal Exchange, London, Anno. 1682."

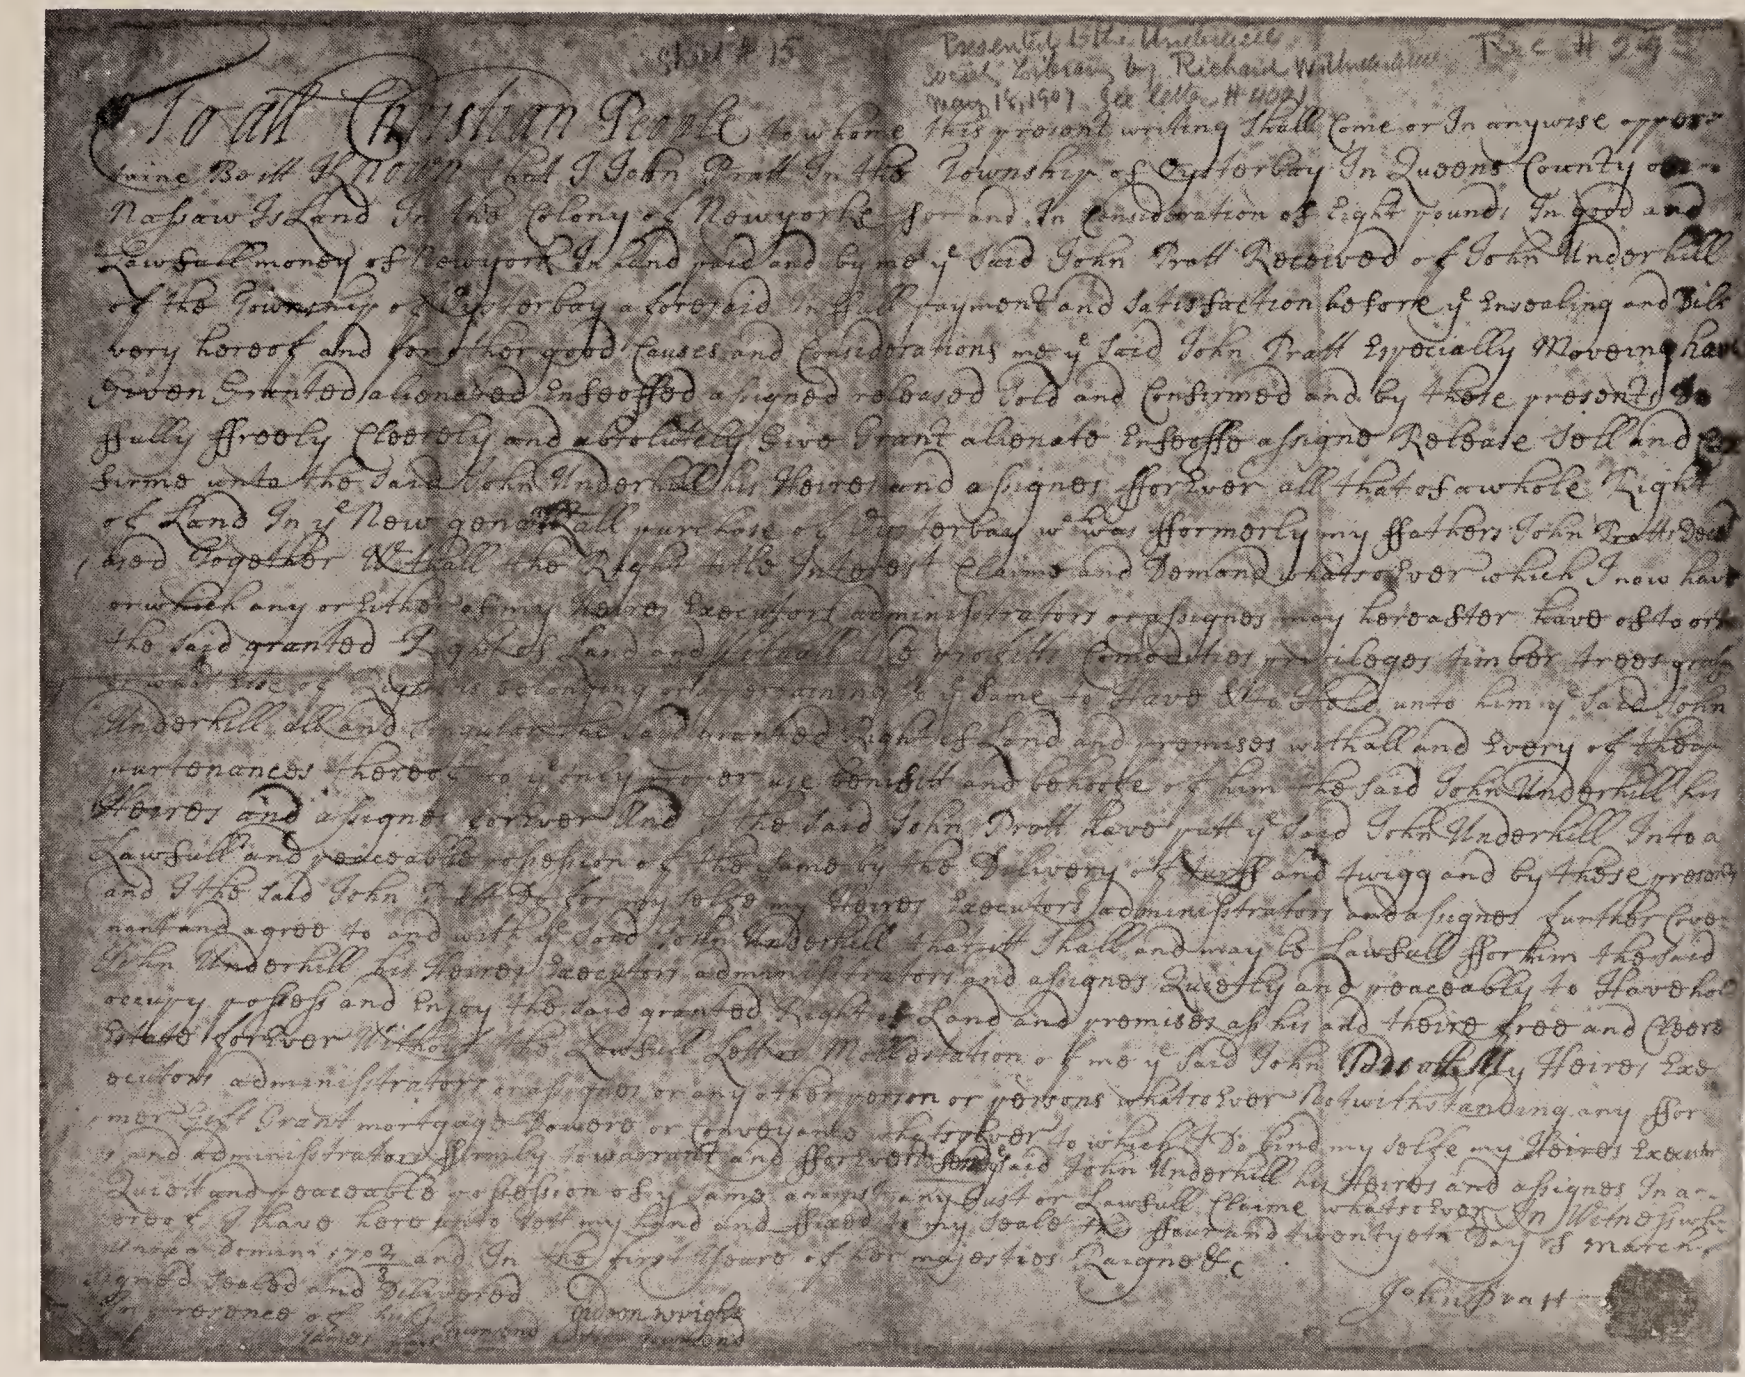
From the entries therein, the book without doubt belonged to one of the children of John Underhill, Jr. There is only one item in the now peculiar handwriting of the early and middle seventeenth century and it is at the top of the title page and clearly reads:

(1) "My self born in the year 1631 April 12." On the next page is the following in entirely different hands, one much later than the other. The matter bracketed is of the later hand and inserted: (2) The death of our father (John Underhill, Jr., son of Capt. John) the twenty-third day of the tenth month, 1692.

The death of our mother (Mary) the twenty-ninth day of the first month, 1698.

(3) The death of our brother Jacob Underhill (grandson of Capt. John) the fourth day, 1708, of the tenth month.

(4) The death of our father John Underhill (grandson of Capt. John) the 28 day of the fifth month, 1728 (aged 58 years).



Deed of land March 20, 1702/3 from John Pratt to John Underhill, both of the Township of Oyster Bay. (Original owned by Underhill Society of America)

(5) John Underhill, born the 25 day of the 11 month, 1729.

(6) Deborah Underhill, born the 16 day of the 5 month, 1732.

(7) Daniel Underhill, born the 3 day of the first month, 1735.

(8) Sarah Underhill was born the thirteenth day of the first month, one thousand seven hundred and forty. This item is repeated in another hand and continued in same and signed,

(9) Sarah Underhill, Her Hand.

(10) Stephen Underhill was born the 16 day of November in the year one thousand seven hundred and sixty-five.

NOTE.—This Bible has never been out of the Underhill family and it would be unfair indeed not to believe that the first item in it was not written by John, Jr., himself, even though it does not agree with the church record in Boston, which was possibly another John, a custom common among the English at that time and carried on to some extent today, in naming two sons the same. Note also record given by Daniel, No. 45.

The numbers in the above record are put in by the editor for reference only.

Nos. 1, 2, 3 refer to John (son of Capt. John) and his wife Mary.

No. 4 to John (grandson of Capt. John), son of John and Mary (Prior) Underhill.

Nos. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 certainly refer to the children of Daniel, son of John No. 4, said Daniel being the great-grandson of Capt. John.

No. 10 refers to Stephen, son of Daniel and Sarah (Frost) Underhill.

There are two supposed copies extant of this old family Bible record, one being in the State Library in Albany and one in the possession of the Underhill Society. Neither one is correct and for that reason the editor has endeavored to make it so. The one in Albany omits the birth in 1631, etc., and the other gives a baptism in the Old South Church in Boston. This Bible is doubtless the one Dr. John W. Underhill referred to as that of Capt. John's.

Among the Deeds in the Secretary of State's Office in Albany, N. Y., Vol. 2, page 27, is a Commission of Captain to John Underhill of Oyster Bay, dated June 21, 1666. This could have been issued to no other but John, Jr., as his father had borne the title of Captain for many years. While John, Jr., was at this time a Friend, it probably was unknown to the authorities, who were persecuting that sect. They were holding their meetings secretly and certainly officers of the government would hardly look in the home of Capt. John Underhill, the best known military man of the day, for one of them. It has not been established that John, Jr., ever exercised any authority by bearing said title. As a Friend, he probably ignored it.

John Underhill doubtless accompanied his parents in their numerous removals and is first noted in Oyster Bay, L. I., when on 1st mo. 25th day, 1663/4 "The Towne is contented that John Underhill, Junior, shall have the House-lot that was granted to his father, with common rights; and the Towne have also granted the said John Underhill a Meadow Shear at Matinecock." The next record is dated Aug. 10, 1667, stating that "I, John Underhill, Senior, of Oyster Bay, do freely pass and make over, &c., unto my son John Underhill, Junior, one-half shear of ye South meadows, and my planting field of Tenn Acres, and my whole Shear of Oak Neck meadows, with my interest in all ye common meadows."

George W. Cocks in his able address to the Underhill Society on Oct. 7, 1901, states that, "in 1667, John Underhill, Sr., of Killingworth, sells his House and Lot on west side of South Street to George Dennes of Oyster Bay, late of Rhode Island, merchant and on Dec. 24, 1667, John Underhill, Jr., sells to Thomas Townsend his House and Home Lot in Oyster Bay, with six ackers of ye Playnes and all my right of Commons and privilege thereunto belonging, which appertains unto ye above said House and Lott, only ye meadows yt belong to ye above said House with my Right of Land upon. Hogg Island, excepted, etc., to quiet possession on ye first day of May next." He continues, "So we may conclude that by or before May 1, 1668, the whole family were settled down on the new purchase in the house by the meadow-side just below the eminence on which the burial place was established four years later." "In 1678 John Underhill purchased from his father-in-law, Matthew Prior, 16 acres in Killingworth with certain meadow land adjoining and on this land it is believed that John Underhill built the house, in part, at least, of the one standing there today."

John Underhill made his will 15 day, 10 mo., 1692, and the Friends' Records state that "John Underhill of Matinecock dyed ye 28 day of ye 10 month, 1692." After the usual preliminaries in the opening part of his will, he devises his land lying at Cedar Swamp to his two eldest sons, John and Daniel, to be equally divided between them, "my wife having during her life and for the bringing up of her familie what she standeth in need for to make use of and if either of my said sons John or Daniel happen to dy without Issue that then their part, so deceasing, shall be equally devided among my surviving sons."

"Item. I give to my two sons Samuel and Abraham all my land in West Jersey. Item, I give to my son Jacob all my homestead and Settlement that I now live upon together with my lands lying in Matinecoke that forty acres lying by John Cock excepted, which I give to my wife to sell or dispose of as she thinks good. I also give to my son Jacob all my meadow that lyeth adjoining to my said homestead for him to enjoy both land and meadow after my wife's decease he paying what legacy my wife and the overseers of this my will shall think good for him to pay to my two sons Samuel and Abraham that enjoy my lands in the new Countray alias West Jersey. Item. I give to my two eldest sons John and Daniel all the Rest of my meadow but what is already given to my son Jacob, and also give to my said two eldest sons my two Rights of Commons in the new purchase. And if it should happen that either of my sons Samuel or Abraham happen to dy without issue that then his part so deceasing shall not be divided amongst my sons, butt his brother that enjoys the other half of my land in West Jersey shall enjoy his deceased brother's part. Item. I give to my four daughters Mary and Deborah, Sarah and Hanah all the rest of my moveable estate with negers and my right of land at Hog Island but so that my wife shall be wholle and sole executor of this my last will and shall have the whole estate belonging to the four girls in her hands and for her use to live upon and bring up her familie and for her my said wife to and with the approbations and consent of the overseers of this my will to sell and make sale of the said land negros or stok and improve the said money for her use and necessity and what remains of the said land money negros or stok my wife and the said overseers of this my will shall deliver in equal proportion to my said daughters as they are disposed of in marriage. And I do hereby Institute and Appoint my three trustie and well beloved friends, John Feeks, John Deusbury and Richard Willett to be the overseers of this my last will to see it performed and Impower them to act and do as fully and amply as need requireth to and with my wife toward the performance of the same and also if any of my overseers happen to dy I do impower the survivors together with my wife to choose whom they shall see good Instead of the deceased. This will was proven May 18, 1693, at Jamaica, L. I., and is recorded there in Book A. of Deeds, pp. 80, 81.

The Calendar of New Jersey Records, 1664-1703, p. 356, shows that on Nov. 6, 1683, there was surveyed for John Underhill 500 acres by the brook below Spring Hill, between Samuel Borden and Samuel Andrews, but there is nothing to show that his sons Samuel and Abraham ever went there to reside.

The disposition of the realty as named in the will of John Underhill, Jr., according to George W. Cocks in 1901, seems not to have been made as indicated therein, as John the 3rd and Samuel occupied the Cedar Swamp plantation, John taking the eastern part now occupied (1901) by the family of the late Richard Underhill and Daniel the western part. Daniel and Abraham were settled at or near Suscoe's Wigwam, in Beaver Swamp Hollow, which they probably called Wolverhampton. The name, however, was short lived, surviving only in a partly mutilated form as Wolver Hollow, and has since been changed to Brookville.

Jacob remained at the homestead, and died a young man, leaving an only child, John, who, dying unmarried in 1723, the homestead was given to Daniel, son of John 3rd.

Letter from George W. Cocks, dated Glen Cove, N. Y., July 29, 1901, regarding the residence of John, son of Capt. John Underhill:

John, Jr., doubtless came to Killingworth upon Matinecock by or before March 14, 1666/7, prior to which date Capt. John begs to be excused from military duty on account of age and says, he with seven other families, settled at Matinecock. I opine John Jr. lived with his father and on the old place until 1678, when he purchased a building site north of Corn Creek, where he erected the house probably now standing and where he died. The house has been known for 50 years past as the Daniel Smith place, now the property of Henry T. Smith of Plainfield, N. J. The house now occupied by Francis Y. Underhill came into the family with John Jr.'s grandson, Daniel. If the compiler of the Townsend Memorial was unable to locate the lot of Capt. John and son John at Oyster Bay, I am sure I cannot. I have no idea that John Jr. lived in Oyster Bay Village after the settlement at Killingworth. If he is mentioned as of Oyster Bay it means the Township and not the Village.

REMINISCENCES OF THE OLD UNDERHILL HOUSE, AT KILLINGWORTH UPON MATINECOCK, L. I.

Prepared by George W. Cocks, and read at the Underhill Reunion, Oct. 7, 1903, at Matinecock, L. I.

The property on which this ancient and venerable structure stands has a peculiarly interesting history. The land was purchased in 1678 by John Underhill, the son of Capt. John, from his wife's father, Matthew Priar, then apparently without any buildings thereupon. To show the occasion of Matthew Priar's location at this particular place, requires a little excursion into contemporary history. There was about the middle of the 17th century an unscrupulous adventurer, known as "Capt. John Scott," who came to New England and Long Island, observing the conditions of property thereabouts, returned to England with marvelous tales of the goodness of the land, and arming himself with sundry forged titles to territory, particularly about Setauket, on the north side of the Island, now Town of Brookhaven, proceeded to dispose of the same to such parties as were credulous enough to give him their money. Claiming kinship with one Dorothea Scott, a Quakeress of large property, who had recently become the second wife of Major Daniel Gotherson, he cajoled them into an investment of near £2,000 in land at or near Ashford alias Cromwell's Bay, later known as Setauket. The Gothersons entrusted their son, a youth of fifteen, to the care of Scott, by whom he was sold as a bond servant to an Innkeeper at New Haven. Some of the land was to be given into the possession of Matthew Priar, to pay an indebtedness of Major Gotherson to said Priar for services as some time bailiff on two of the estates of the Gothersons in England. On his arrival at Setauket Priar soon found that the title to the land was worthless, and that Scott, having been threatened with arrest on account of his nefarious transactions, had fled from the jurisdiction, applied in 1664 to the Town authorities for relief, and the record shows the following order:

"3'ly—The committey being informed of the great distress that Matthew Perior and his familey are in, and they bitterley complaineing of great Injury received from Mr. Scott, it is ordered that there be soe much of the sequestered goods of Mr. Scott sould by the Constable of Setauk, Mr. Smith and Will. Crumwell, as will amount to £15—to procure the said Perior—3 cowse for the relief of his present necessetie, the sayed Perior being ingaged to the Committey to make it good againe, in case he make not his wrong to appeare to the Courte, which he hath received from Scott." Failing in this direction to get adequate relief, and learning that Scott had made some considerable investments of land in the name of Major Gotherson within other parts of the Colony, especially in the Town of Oyster Bay, Priar removed thither in 1665, and the records of that town show a measure of success, as follows:

Oyster Bay ye 8th of March 1666. "These may Sertifie to all whome it may any wayes Conseren yt I, Jonas Halstead, Constable, have made a Leagall Seasure of ye two Town Shipps which doe belong unto Major Daniel Gotherson, for and in ye behalfe of Mathew Pryer, for a debt, which is due unto him from said Gotherson."

(Signed) JONAS HALSTEAD.

As a further step towards perfecting his title to these lands, Matthew Priar petitions the Colonial Governor at New York, reciting among other grievances, that "he had been wasting four years and odd months, and was in an undone condition." In response to this plaintive appeal, the Governor executes the following order of conveyance.

"To all Christian People or any others to whome this pr.'sent writting shall come, Coll. ffrancis Lovelace sends Greeting. Now know ye, yt I, Coll. ffrancis Lovelace, for good and valuable consideration to me in hand paid before ye Sealeing & delivery hereof have given, granted, sold, assigned & Transported unto Mathew Pryer of Killingworth one Long Island & of ye Countie of New York sheere, the two Lotts or Towne Ships, which Mr. John Richbell sold unto Major Gotherson, together with all and singular ye appurtenances & premises thereunto belonging. This conveyance, as will be readily seen, was for only one of the "Towne Shipps" or Home Lotts, the other, on which Priar built his house, was the westerly moiety of the farm of the late Mrs. George R. Underhill, for which he had also a deed from the Indians in 1667 at the same time with the other six of the "Seven Matinecock Purchasers." The next most interesting documents in the exhibits is the deed from Priar to John Underhill, as follows:

Know all Men by these Presents, that I, Matthew Prier of Killingworth in the North Riding of New York's jurisdiction doth give and bequeath from me, my heires, Executors, Administrators or assigns unto John Underhill of the same place and county all my right, titell & interest of a certain persell of land by estimation sixteen acres be it more or less, situate lying and being in Killingworth, bounded with ye Corne Crick on the South, on the West with Nathan Burcham's Lot; on the North with James Coke's Lot, on the East with part of his own land, as also the right of one Shaire of Middon, it being the first shaire in number, by estimation two acres and a half, it was formerly Richard Crab's of Oysterbay; it is adjoining one shaire of ye aforesaid John Underhill on ye South side, on the West with James Coke's land, on the North with Oake Neck beach and on the East with the Crick. I, the aforesaid Matthew Prier doth give from me my heires, administrators or assigns all my right tittell or interest of these aforesaid land and middow unto the aforesaid John Underhill his heires executors or assigns to have and to hould forever for their proper right without any Molistation or disturbance from or any by my means or any yt succeed me. As this purchase was doubtless made for a residence, it is likely that the house was commenced forthwith and that John and Mary continued to live therein until their respective deaths, Dec. 28, 1692, and Jan. 29, 1698. According to the prevailing custom, the elder sons were provided with farms on their marriages and the youngest remained at the homeplace to care for the widow and unmarried sisters if such there should be. Thus Jacob, as also by the will of his father, became the head of the house, young as he was. He was married at the early age of seventeen, and died Oct. 4, 1708, leaving son John, born Sept. 12, 1707, and who died Feb. 1, 1723. At the death of this John, son of Jacob, Daniel, son of John, third, and Elizabeth (Willetts) of Cedar Swamp, came to Killingworth to occupy this house and farm. Daniel does not seem to have been married until about 1728, as shown approximately by the births of his children, in the genealogical sketch prepared by or for him, a copy of which is in possession of Francis Y. Underhill. Daniel's wife was Abigail, the daughter of William and Sarah (Hawxhurst) Crooker, of Wheatley, near his Cedar Swamp home. She died in 1765 and he in 1790, leaving son, Daniel, with wife, Sarah Frost, to succeed them at their old hearthstone. As this Daniel was married in 1756, and all his children were born before their grandfather's decease, it is very probable that some addition was made to the house before it had reached its century of existence. John, born 1760, with wife, Elizabeth Smith, of Hog Island, daughter of Thomas and Phebe (Allen) Smith, succeeded next in line. He died Jan. 28, 1828, leaving only son and heir, John, who married his own cousin Rebecca, daughter of George and Nancy (Feke) Underhill. This John and his family were greatly beloved and respected among a large circle of friends and relations. He was a grevious sufferer from asthma and sought relief by a removal with his family to Ohio, where he died in 1859. This property then left the lineal succession and was owned for a short period by Daniel Underhill, son of Charles; then it was sold to Daniel Smith of Centre Island, double first cousin of the last named John Underhill. From Daniel it passed by inheritance to his son Daniel V., and from him to his son Henry and thence to his wife, Ellen Bowne Smith, who sold it to the present occupant, Mr. John Bayles, our host.

If our theory is correct as to the date of the erection of this staunch old mansion, it now must have been in use for two hundred and twenty-five (225) years, and if as well cared for as it recently has been, would seem likely to last another century.

A later article on Matthew Priar prepared by George W. Cocks:

Matthew Priar had been a bailiff in England, on the estates of Major Daniel Gotherson, who had recently married for his second wife a very zealous friend named Dorothea Scott, and they had been beguiled by that notorious adventurer, Capt. John Scott, into an investment of some two thousand pounds in Long Island land which Scott claimed that he owned. Priar came to Long Island with a son of Major Gotherson, expecting to be put into possession of the land, some for himself and more for the young man whom he was to set up in business, but Capt. Scott failed to deliver the land and taking young Gotherson with him, he removed to Connecticut, where he sold the boy to service and went back to England. Priar being left without land and with little means, applied to the Governor at New York for help, and was finally put into possession of two lots of land at Killingworth adjacent to the plantation of Capt. Underhill. He evidently built his house on the westernmost lot, now (1902) or late in the possession of Francis Young Underhill, in the part still known as "Priar's old orchard."

In 1678 John Underhill purchased from his father-in-law, Matthew Priar, sixteen acres in Killingworth, bounded "with ye Corn Crik on ye south, on ye west with Nathan Burcham's lot (now, 1901, Francis Y. Underhill's), on ye north with James Coke's lot (now, 1901, in possession of eighth generation of the name), and on ye east by part of Matthew Priar's own land"; together with certain land adjoining. On this land it is believed John, Jr., built the house, in part at least, of the one standing there today (1901). The step-mother of John, Jr., having died intestate without any disposition of the personal estate left her by Capt. John, John, Jr., was appointed administrator. On May 31, 1685, his brother, Nathaniel, having attained his majority, made a sale to Henry Franklin of Flushing of "All my rights in my lands in Matinecock, bounded north by John Underhill's land, west with Nathan Burcham's land, south with a highway to Oyster Bay and east with a creek and David Underhill's land and meadow, except always and reserved unto him, the said Nathaniel or his assignes the Burying Place that now is, containing Six Rod Square, and a highway to it containing one Rod wide, etc."

This deed was made void and on March 22, 1686-8, the same property, without the reservation of the Burying Place, was sold by Nathaniel to his brother John, described as follows: "All my housing and land, both upland and meadow lying and being at Matinecock, which is the land my father John Underhill, Sr., lived upon." The original of this deed in 1901 was in possession of Francis Y. Underhill.

In 1682, John, Jr., bought of the Indians a tract of fifty acres just west of the present Locust Valley R. R. station, owned in 1901 by Mrs. Fitzhugh Smith, daughter of the second Charles Underhill. About 1684 he bought of the Indians a large tract of land at "ye Little Plains" (now Greenvale), and later land adjoining it on the south from John Rogers. The central part of the first purchase was occupied in 1901 by the widow and children of Richard Underhill. (From an address by George W. Cocks, Oct. 7, 1901.)

The original deed of the land John, Jr., purchased in 1682, is now owned by the Matinecock Bank in Locust Valley, its new home standing on part of the property.

The Flushing meeting of the Friends, dated 30, 6 mo., 1673, have the following minute: At a men and women's meeting at John Feakes house in Killingworth, it was ordered and agreed that the deed of gift from Anthony Wright for the Friends to set up a meeting house in Oyster Bay, shall be left and intrusted in the hands of Samuel Deane, John Feakes, John Underhill and John Tilton, to be in safe custody and brought for the use of Friends on occasion.

Anthony Wright was a zealous member of the Society of Friends and after the visit of George Fox, the noted Quaker preacher who stirred up great enthusiasm, the question of a Meeting House was agitated and Anthony Wright on Oct. 8, 1672, conveyed to the Society of Friends in Oyster Bay, a portion of his home lot, for a burial place and for the erection of a Meeting House and in 1673, the first Quaker Meeting House on Long Island was built and continued in use until 1693, when a larger one was built on another site. The whole building was to cost twenty pounds and the builders were to be paid in "wheate, pease, Indian corn and porke." No vestige of this building remains, but the second building, erected on the west side of South Street near the harbor, was partially in existence a few years ago, and probably is now.

Being a Friend, John Underhill in the 10th month, 1676, refused to train or to work on the fort in Oyster Bay, and the authorities, represented by Edward French, Srgt., "took by violence from him" a heifer, which was appraised at two pounds.

8th mo., 1681, subscriptions for repairing the Meeting House to be paid to John Underhill and another; 30 of 6 mo., 1685, he was appointed overseer or Trustee of the Meeting in place of John Dickinson, "in behalf of the burying place and Meeting House in Oyster Bay; 13, 8 mo., 1685, Matthew Prier and Henry Willis to see that a deed of assignment from Samuel Andrews and Isaac Horner be made and assigned unto John Underhill and John Feake and Richard Wilits, before they go from here."

The Quarterly Meetings on 30, 6, 1690; 29, 6, 1691, and 27, 6, 1692, were held at the home of John Underhill in Matinecock and on 26, 6 mo., 1693, at the home of Marie (Mary) Underhill, thus showing John and Mary lived in the neighborhood known as Matinecock at that period.

5 DEBORAH UNDERHILL, daughter of (1) John and Elizabeth (Feake) Underhill, was born 29, 9, 1659, and married, in 1677, Henry, born 1649, died 1703, son of Henry and Anne (Cole) Townsend. She died 30, 1, 1698.

Letter written May 16, 1903, from Locust Valley, N. Y., by J. J. Weeks to D. Harris Underhill: "I have a little item to write which may interest you as it has myself. A few days ago some workmen who were employed upon the James C. Townsend place at Oyster Bay, upturned a stone by the well, upon which was the following inscription: 'H. W. T., 1697, Townsend.' The stone had been placed by the well for a person to stand upon when drawing water. It was James C. Townsend and wife who compiled the Townsend Memorial. I thought that perhaps the stone might have been the headstone of Henry Townsend the second, who married Deborah Underhill, daughter of Capt. John. I don't know, however, as he had any middle letter in his name, (W) though he might. Miss Fanny Adam of Oyster Bay rented the place and she has charge of the stone, which is certainly quite an interesting relic."

6 NATHANIEL UNDERHILL, son of (1) John and Elizabeth (Feake) Underhill, was born 22, 12, 1663, and married, 10, 10, 1685 (?),

Mary, daughter of John and Mary (Jackson) Ferris. He died in Westchester, N. Y., Nov. 10, 1710. The date of her death has not been found, but as she is not mentioned in the will of her father, dated May 9, 1715, it is fair to assume she pre-deceased its making.

Issue:

+22 Thomas, born Dec. 4, 1687.
+23 Nathaniel, born Aug. 11, 1690.
+24 Benjamin, born October, 1694.
+25 Abraham, born 1697.
26 John, born 1700.
27 Mary, born 1704, married Joseph Horton; lived near Peekskill, N. Y., and died 1765.
+28 William, born April 7, 1707.

The Census of 1698, found in New York Colonial Manuscripts, Vol. 42, p. 60, gives the children of Nathaniel and Mary Underhill, of Westchester, N. Y., as follows: John, Nathaniel, Abraham, Mary, therefore they probably had a John and Mary who died young.

A copy of Friends' Records, furnished the editor by John Cox, Jr., contains the following: "Nathaniel Underhill and Mary Ferris, 2nd intention at Jericho, 27.12 (Feb.) 1685/6. Marriage certificate not recorded," which casts some doubt on the date given above, and shows they were probably married in 1686.

John Underhill and Matthew Prior were appointed by the Friends to enquire as to the clearness from other engagements of Nathaniel Underhill, when he and Mary Ferris announced their intentions of marriage, 10th mo., 1685. Mary "was to procure a certificate from her parents of their consent against ye next monthly meeting."

12th mo., 1685, they signified their intentions of marriage a second time, and the Meeting, "finding all things clear on their part together having consent of parents and relatives do not see cause to object to their proceeding but leave them to take a suitable time for consummating their marriage."

On Jan. 8, 1685, Nathaniel Underhill, late of Oyster Bay, purchased of John Turner and his wife Sarah, of Westchester, N. Y., land near the bridge of Westchester upon "ffrog's Neck." This was acknowledged Feb. 4, 1686.

On March 22, 1686-'87, Nathaniel Underhill and his wife, Mary, of the Town and County of Westchester, N. Y., conveyed for the sum of eighty pounds, to John Underhill of Matinecock in Oyster Bay "All my Housing and Land both Upland & Meadow lying and being at Metenicok in the Limitt and bounds of Oyster baye aforesaid which is the Land that my father John Underhill Sen. lived upon with forty Acors of Land lying in the Woods which I bought of the Indians Being butted & bounded on the West by James Cock's land and on the East by Nathan Burcham's land and on the South with Musketo Cove path, etc." (Oyster Bay published Town Records, Vol. 1, p. 688.)

Page 197 shows that Nathaniel received the above mentioned forty acres from the Indians March 1, 1682, for favors they had received from his father, Capt. John.

The Land Records at White Plains show that on Jan. 23, 1709/10, Nathaniel Underhill, Sr., of Westchester, carpenter, conveyed to his son Nathaniel, Jr., all interests in the Town of Westchester, reserving interest, however, in the sheep pasture. (Liber D, Second Part, p. 50.)

Liber F, p. 196, states that Nathaniel Underhill recorded a mark for his son John Underhill's creatures, April 10, 1728, but it is possible this may refer to John, son of Nathaniel, Jr., but if so, said John was only ten years of age.

The property Nathaniel Underhill purchased of John Turner in 1685 was situated in what is now known as Williamsbridge, being in 1902 in the upper part of New York City. This property passed to his grandson, Israel Underhill, who, with his wife Abigail and several members of the family were buried in the graveyard on the farm. The old home burned, leaving nothing but the foundation to show its location. In 1847, William A. Spencer occupied the residence built on the original farm.

7 HANNAH UNDERHILL, daughter of (1) John and Elizabeth (Feake) Underhill, was born 2 of 10 mo., 1666, and married, in 1685, Richard Alsop of Newtown, L. I., where he died in October, 1718, aged about 58 years. She died there Aug, 23, 1757, in her 91st year. They were buried in the Alsop Burying Ground, on the farm which in later years became Calvary Cemetery, and the Alsop plot still remains within the enclosure of the cemetery, surrounded by a black iron fence, close by the entrance at Newtown Creek bridge.

Issue (Alsop):

29 Thomas, born Newtown, L. I., Sept. 7, 1687, died 1743; married, February, 1708, Susannah, daughter of Robert Blackwell.

30 Deborah, married, in 1710, John Sipkins; second, Nathaniel Hazard.

31 Hannah, born in Newtown; married, May 23, 1706, Joseph, born 1680, died Sept. 26, 1755, son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Betts) Sackett. She died June 17, 1773.

32 Richard, born 1695, died Nov. 21, 1764; married Elizabeth, daughter of John Crooke. She died in 1776, aged 73 years.

+33 John, born 1697.

35 Susannah, married, May 23, 1728, Nathaniel, son of John and Deborah (Woodhull) Lawrence.

The following interesting and ably written article is taken from the Long Island Weekly Star, published in Long Island City, N. Y., Friday, March 26, 1880. It is a continuation of the interesting historical sketches entitled "Ancient Newtown":

THE OLD ALSOP FAMILY—THE TWENTY-YEAR BOUNDARY LAW SUIT

The fires on the hearth of the old Alsop House ceased to glow for the first and last time in two hundred and twenty years, October 25, 1879, which day was also witnessed the removal of the aristicratic landmark of the Colonial period. Through its deserted rooms the tourist has wandered, silent and alone, with no one to distract his attention. The reception rooms, twenty feet square, grand for their day, whose floors it was a privilege to stand on, are covered with the squalid debris of a social life far below the old proprietor's station in society. How the fluted and corniced panels speak of this melancholy desertion where formerly was brilliant life, proud opulence and the reserve interwoven with the history of a family who, while in possession, had inherited by direct lineal descent from father to son. Thomas Wandell was the founder of the Alsop family through his nephew, Richard Alsop, whom as a boy he brought from England sometime around the year 1665, and adopted for heir to the large farms, and successor to the rights of Thomas Wandell, derived from the Indian Rate of 1656.

Mr. Wandell's public services in Newtown are chiefly to be estimated from his share in thwarting the benevolent theology of witch-burning, which about this time began to overshadow the land. The trial of Ralph Hall and his wife for the dangerous crime of witchcraft resulted in the acquittal of the old pair by a jury of which Mr. Wandell was foreman. It was the only trial of the kind ever held in New Amsterdam; the soil was not congenial to its development; it required the unrelenting and gloomy soul of Cotton Mather to foster such ferocity on the sterile soil of Massachusetts.

Richard Alsop, the nephew, came into possession of the Wandell property on the death of his uncle in 1691, and Richard himself followed in 1718, leaving several sons and daughters to hand down the patronymic "Richard Alsop" to future times. This first Richard Alsop became a prominent man in his adopted country. In his time the dispute between Newtown and Bushwick had waxed hot and furious to a white heat. It suited Governor Lord Cornbury to a charm. He saw twelve hundred acres in it—he discovered sinister practices, he realized "pernicious practices." The Bushwick men claimed that their boundary extended from the Old Brook School to the northwest corner of Jamaica. The Newtown men claimed that their boundary ran from the "Arbitration Rock" to the same point; or more clearly to be understood, the Newtown men claimed up to the present dividing line between Newtown and Brooklyn, where the city lamps shine on old Mrs. Onderdonk's house.

It is a long walk on a hot day from the Old Brook School to Mrs. Onderdonk's house beyond Metropolitan Avenue; the longer it was the more acres it would give to Lord Cornbury, the Governor of the province. The evidence was very conflicting between Newtown and Bushwick. The boundary line between them had oscillated like a pendulum, from the "Arbitration Rock" to the Old Brook School, and so for years it had vibrated back and forward, but fastened to the same suspension point on the East New York hills in the Cemetery of the Evergreens. It was a large gore of land, and it contained 1,200 acres of land for Lord Cornbury. There were riots between the Bushwick men and the Newtown men, and some houses were burnt and some houses were torn down. Governor Lord Cornbury, of all men, hated "anarchy"; he "abhorred sinister practices"; he "apprehended pernicious consequences"; and he considered it to be the duty of an impartial Governor to remove the cause of such anarchy. He decided that the gore lot of 1,200 acres belonged neither to Bushwick, nor to Newtown. He also decided that the tract of 1,200 acres belonged to himself, the Lord Cornbury. He was a man rigid of the royal prerogative, and a staunch upholder of Episcopacy. The ties of gratitude were ever sacrificed to this feeling.

In 1702 a plague had raged through New York City, and to escape its dangers, the Governor retired to Jamaica, where the good Doctor Hubbard immediately tendered to his excellency the use of the Presbyterian parsonage; which act of kindness cost the reverend gentleman both his pulpit and his parsonage. Lorn Cornbury bestowed both house and pulpit on Doctor Bartow, an Episcopalian divine. It is seldom that such an unswerving regard for public duty can be recorded of even the most exalted minds.

He was surrounded by a body of able counselors, Arma Bridgens, Robert Millwood, William Huddlestone, Adrian Hoogland, and, of course, Peter Praa from Greenpoint, always keen after real estate; and among these disinterested persons, or instruments, in vulgar eyes, the Governor divided the 1,200 acres of Newtown land. Newtown at this unexpected juncture had need of the trustworthy men, and on the 6th day of May, 1706, the township vested all their powers of defence in Richard Alsop, Joseph Sackett, Thomas Stevenson and William Hallett. This law suit lasted twenty years, and the Town house and all the public lands of the township had to be sold to fee the lawyers, a useful precedent for future Newtown officials who may have to carry on lawsuits. The result of that lawsuit was not decisive, the boundary line between Newtown and Bushwick remained undecided until the 7th of January, 1769, on which day the dividing line was run out to the full satisfaction of Newtown, and so remains to the present day. The surveyor's bench mark was cut "N. B." on the "Arbitration Rock" which stood in the field 4 chains 50 links northwest from the corner of Mrs. Onderdonk's house. From this bench mark the line was surveyed straight on its way to the hills in the Evergreen Cemetery. In 1837, under Supervisor DeBevoise, the same line was again staked out, and monuments erected to mark the limits on that side. Whether any of those monuments are yet in existence will be left to the property owners along the line to find out. But the historic old "Arbitration Rock" was blown to pieces some years since by parties insensible to the value of historic landmarks and of which grade of mind there is no lack in Newtown.

What became of the grantees after Lord Cornbury's recall is not positively known; Newtown fought them under the name of the "Fauconniers" from 1712 to 1727 in a suit in which Richard Alsop and John Coe were plaintiffs on behalf of Newtown. Peter Praa, of Greenpoint, had sold out his patent two days after it was granted. Peter was too sagacious to trust to such titles; but the name of Bridgens, true to its instincts, broke out again in 1873, as a plaintiff in the celebrated ejectment suit against the property owners of Laurel Hill, so sensationally got up by Weston the walker. In the columns of the Sun he had provided an old oaken chest with an ancient will in it, both of which little adjuncts made up a little romance, only to be spoiled by the fact of the same will having been in printed form for twenty-five years previously, and continuously in every house on Laurel Hill. So history repeats itself even to the rout of this modern Bridgens and all her claims by the Hon. James W. Covert, member of Congress from this district.

It has been mentioned that the first Richard Alsop with three other influential men was invested in 1706 with plenary powers to represent the rights of Newtown. One of these four men with his entire family was shortly afterwards murdered by his Indian slave and his negro wife. William Hallett lived on the road beyond the village of Middletown, exactly opposite the house of ex-Sheriff Henry, lately destroyed by fire. A well-frequented tavern occupies the site of Hallett's house and the old well which he and his family and their murderers used to drink from is still in use. Goblins and spirits were supposed for many years to frequent the spot at the midnight hour, but of late they are not seen thereabouts. The murderers, and a few others thrown by way of example, were tortured to death at Jamaica—the woman by fire, the man by iron rail riding; not from revenge but for example sake.

Grave stone still standing, of Hannah Alsop, daughter of Capt. John Underhill

The race of the first Richard Alsop divided itself into three collateral branches from his three sons, Thomas, Richard and John. The line of John became prominent in the legal profession and in mercantile life, but not without due ambition in politics as then understood to govern the country, or rather to mark the exaltation of a family; it settled itself in Middletown, Connecticut, and there it attained a high sphere, which is still upheld by the mercantile firm of Alsop & Co., of well known in the South American trade. Our Miss Cornelia King, of Jamaica, daughter of the late Governor, is of this line. The branch from the son Richard clung to the old house on the creek, and entwined itself with the growth and history of Newtown. It therefore demands our special care. It married into the Sacketts, the Brinkerhoffs, the Whiteheads, the Fishs, the Woodwards and the Hazards—names formerly racy of the soil but now unknown in the township save by their family tombs.

The name of Alsop itself has departed and, like the others, obtains great consideration from the wealth which has had its growth in Newtown. But being so extinct, their history the more demands our care; what is mortal of its life and mortality we hold in our charge surrounded, to use Lord Lyndhurst, "By aliens in blood, aliens in language, aliens in religion." Notwithstanding, which fulmination from the great Lord High Chancellor of England, who was himself a native American and the grandson of an Irishman, the Alsop reservation in Calvary Cemetery has secured to itself perpetual security against desecration, a hope that cannot be indulged in for some other family cemeteries in Newtown, where an elevated taste for horticulture in cabbages holds sway, even to the exclusion of ancient tombstones. The owner in trust of the Alsop reservation in Calvary Cemetery is Mr. William Alsop, the lineal representative of the old homestead; a merchant engaged in foreign trade and residing in New York. During a life passed in Florida, many changes and irreparable scattering of the family archives was permitted by the last occupiers of the old house just now demolished. Furniture, endeared by ancient family association, was ruthlessly disposed of—and although but thirty years have elapsed, all trace of them has been lost. Their intrinsic value to a stranger is but small, but the recovery of the oldest and least valuable would now be considered a boon to the family. The old eight-day clock forms a prized exception; it still ticks in the city mansion, the solemn record of time, which for generations it registered on the then lovely banks of Newtown Creek. To how many a dying Alsop has that same sounding tick marked the moment of expiring breath, when for days and nights it had, as it were, made tangible the stillness of the sick chamber. It may have marked the day, the month, the hour, the minute of her who years before had stood before its sphynx-like face, and become a bride to the Alsops; but assuredly it had kept pace with every event that transpired in course when the same young bride had fulfilled her duty as a mother in her new home. The old clock, an emigrant from London, was built by Mr. John Elliott, at a time when that city did not contain its four millions of people; very likely that Mr. Elliott had his shop in the old "City of London," and as people are not so changeable there as here, it is very possible that the clock-making firm of John Elliott is still in existence. It produces a dreamy feeling, while listening to the tick of the old Londoner, to receive in its presence a detail of the yellow fever times of 1798 when the family around the old clock were getting decimated with the scourge. Suddenly the fever entered the house, and in the old graveyard are two headstones to mark its victory. "Maria, the wife of Thomas Knox, esq., and daughter of Lawrence Kortright, esq., of New York, died 16th October, 1798." "Elizabeth Fish, widow of Jonathan Fish, who departed this life October 26, 1798, aged 74 years." This latter lady was the widow of the grandfather to the Hon. Hamilton Fish, Secretary of State under the Grant administration. The graves were made ready before the deaths of these yellow fever victims; no coffins were used. Immediately after death their bodies were wrapped in their infected clothes, saturated with pitch and tar, and hastily deposited in the sepulchres already prepared.

Several slaves and relatives of the family were attacked—some to die, others to recover; but the death of one female slave, named "Venus" from her beauty, is still remembered with regret by the Alsop family—she was a ministering angel during the epidemic, but no headstone marks the resting place of this beautiful slave; the inexorable policy of a free and religious people forbade that recognition. It is to be hoped that her bones rest inside the Alsop railing, a hope indulged in, because we judge that the fear of contagion would dread to carry them further. Still it must not be inferred that the Alsop slaves were not a happy race under kind treatment. The Alsops seem to have been a kindly family to their domestics: this can be vouched for by many persons, who of late years dwelt on the premises, and were the recipients of periodical visits from the old retainers of the family. The house in which Mr. Peter Donohue so long resided, near the side entrance to Calvary at Blissville, was built by Thomas Alsop, the father of William Alsop; it eventually came into the possession of Paul Rapelye. The farm surrounding it was part of the Alsop estate, derived from the marriage of Thomas Wandell with the widow Herrick, who owned it in the year 1659, and is to be noticed as one among the first half dozen farms, reclaimed before the township was laid out, a period antecedent to the settlement of Newtown. It must have been a lonely settlement of Richard Brutnell in the early days of Blissville.

The genealogical tree, planted by Thomas Wandell, the uncle, who died in 1691, was increased by Richard Alsop, the nephew, who died in 1718, and was succeeded by his son Richard Alsop, who died in 1790, leaving two sons, John and Thomas. These were the last proprietors of the Alsop property, which was divided between them, John retaining the old homestead and Thomas receiving the Blissville section, on which, as above mentioned, he built the house lately occupied by Peter Donohue, Esq. John Alsop died on the 23rd of April, 1837, and his widow sold the property to the Trustees of St. Patrick—hence Calvary Cemetery. John Alsop left no children. Thomas Alsop, his brother, had married Miss Catherine Brinckerhoff, daughter of George Brinckerhoff, of Dutch Kills; a patriot of the Revolution. The family descent to the present day is preserved in the children of the above Thomas Alsop, who stood in the following order: Eliza Alsop, now Mrs. Leaird; Richard Alsop, deceased; George B. Alsop, of Alabama, deceased; John Alsop, of Huntington, L. I.; Thomas Alsop, deceased; Catherine M. Alsop, the deceased wife of Dr. Marinus H. Van Dyke; and William Alsop, formerly of Florida, but now of New York City. This gentleman represents the family as custodian of the family monuments in Calvary. Does not the following notice from the Star of January, 1880, read peculiarly impressive?

"A middle-aged gentleman on Wednesday last walked into the Laurel Hill Public School and was received with the usual politeness of F. A. Lafferty, the Principal. He registered his name in the visitor's book, 'William Alsop.' The direct lineal descendant of the once influential family of Alsop, he was totally unknown on the lands held by his family from the era of the red Indian until their estate was sold and conveyed into Calvary Cemetery. Mr. Alsop had spent his youth in Florida, and all the great changes were made during his absence, but he still retains the family burying ground and expects to occupy his share therein when his time will have arrived. Before leaving the neighborhood he spent a silent hour among the old tombs, and read the family biographies ranging from his father's to that of Richard Alsop, who died in 1718. Then tracing the foundations of the old mansion, now removed, he secured some relics and took his departure as silently as he came—not leaving one of his name in Newtown."

The Alsop house stood on the edge of Newtown Creek, near Penny Bridge, and it is well to mark that its foundations still hold undisturbed possession close by the new road being built for Hugh Moore, Esq., the Superintendent of St. Patrick's patrimoney on Long Island, and the old well holds its old walls down under the center of the roadway, on a point well marked by the surveyor.

These minute particulars are given entirely in the interest of some future tourist of one hundred years hence; that he may have some certain data to work from; which is not always the case with his predecessor of 1880.

The premises measured one hundred feet in length, divided into four consecutive rooms on the ground floor, with a hallway of eighteen feet in breadth. The main building had two stories, and its capacious garret. Two round windows or portholes on each end admitted light and air; the tradition being extant that they were cut by Lord Cornwallis for musket practice against the rebels of 1776. The great kitchen chimney was a marvel for cooking facilities, evidently designed to shelter a swarm of domestics; its hearth could receive ten-foot logs, well heaped up, and still could afford standing room to draw the bread from two ovens, which here had their mouths. How basked the young negroes on the well polished stones in front of the blaze, when the storm of sleet and snow outside was wont to sweep up the creek and dash the tide spray against the staunch house! It takes not much inspiration to recall the British and Hessian privates sitting around their comfortable quarters—military looking men well braced up with the pipe clay and brass buttons of the Frederick the Great period, objects of unutterable awe to all around them in the old kitchen; much intensified from the reflection of the blaze on their burnished accoutrements which hung around the walls.

But the dream is past; all is desolation around the solitary tourist taking a last inspiration amidst the cold desolation around a hearth long since disused from the then incapacity to fill its ample bosom. Then to mount the intricate passage to the rooms above; rude steps around the strong chimney conduct to the quarters allotted to the slaves. Certainly very comfortable in the winter they were, but very hot in summer. The sun above and a great fire below. Still the slaves had the ample cellerage underneath the house, and the plenty stored there offered great attractions, although, perhaps, not always within their reach. These happy slaves of the Alsops in late years rejected the freedom accorded to them under the New York Emancipation Act; born, reared and married on the land, they remained with the family to the last, and even after dispersion the colored race were sure to pay periodical visits to their birthplace. The simple and expressive name of "Mamma" bestowed on one old slave, who landed direct from Africa in the days of the slave ships, is yet well remembered in the Alsop family. "Mamma" brought a numerous posterity around the old building, and to three of her daughters were given the floral names of Libby, Rose and Violet. Prolixity will of course be indulged in these "Remains," for nothing descriptive of old habits and manners will be omitted; these traditions, secured while some of the actors are on the scene, form an honorable requiem over the departed worth of the harmless children of Africa.

The exodus of the Alsops was replaced by another colony, subject to a different sway, but who, nevertheless, kept a warm and thronged house, carrying out the allwise designs of Providence in births, marriages and deaths; but in greater profusion, and with stronger demonstrations of the passions of life. Not so high-toned, perhaps, as the stately courtship of Rufus King, when he with the gallantry moulded of his time and family, was used to hand Mary, the daughter of John Alsop, Esq., from the barge just arrived at the landing stairs of the old house. How the whole family would issue from its portals to receive the city belle and heiress of the wealthy John Alsop; dignified gentleman as he appears in his portrait; dressed in red silk coat, embroidered vest, powdered hair, and cambric ruffles to match. How golden looked the scenery of Newtown Creek, as the young beauty had slowly sailed over its glittering waters; no bridges then obstructed the voyage so auspiciously begun to her, the daughter, the wife, the mother of Senators.

Two modest slabs in Jamaica—too modest, in fact—mark the end of this domestic romance.

On Saturday, Aug. 5, 1922, D. Harris Underhill and Charles W. Underhill visited the Alsop family cemetery plot, located in the southeast corner of Calvary Cemetery near the entrance at Penny Bridge, and copied the following inscriptions and also drew a diagram of the location of the graves, which is now in the possession of the Underhill Society:

He died after April 1, 1747, as per date of the will of his son Micah, who gave him for life 48 acres of land, "now in possession of my father and my brother Jacob."

Isaac was Ensign of Queens County Militia in 1700, and Assessor and Trustee of Hempstead in 1718 and 1726.

Issue (Smith):

+38 Micah, born 1704.

George W. Cocks in a letter stated that Isaac's sister Hester married John Townsend, also that Isaac doubtless had other children.

9 DAVID UNDERHILL, son of (1) John and Elizabeth (Feake) Underhill, was born 2nd month, 1672, as per the Friends' records of Flushing, L. I., which state no day. He died in 1708. That he married, first, a granddaughter of Peter Wright, is quite certain, as notes that follow will show; that she died prior to 1700 is also evident.

While the following letters do not state positively the names of David's two wives, George W. Cocks, the noted Long Island genealogist who wrote them, must have fully concluded that they were as above stated, as the editor has had access to his Underhill material which he left to John Cox, Jr., and David's wives are stated as above given, the only doubt given in them is concerning the first name of the first wife.

Abraham S. Underhill, a close student of the family more than two generations ago, states that the mother of Peter Underhill was named "Eunice," which George W. Cocks has queried as "Alice" or "Elsie."

George W. Cocks, of Glen Cove, L. I., in a letter dated Feb. 24, 1910, states: "I have had for a long time under consideration the probable reasons for the very peculiar deed of conveyance from David Underhill to his son Peter, who was then less than ten years of age. In substance the instrument, dated 1700, is as follows: 'To my son, Peter Underhill, I give a grant of fifty acres of land at the Head of Mill River, in Oyster Bay, &c., reserving the privilege to manure any part of the same during my life and the same liberty to my now wife Hannah, should she outlive me.' My sundry explorations into ancient records shows me that on the re-marriage of a widower, he was compelled by the laws of the period to secure his children's interest in their mother's estate, reserving to himself, as in this case, a life interest in the realty. Peter's name notably indicates that his mother was a descendant of Peter Wright, there being no other Peter in the territory at that period shown on the records. Without documentary proof at present, I would suggest that it be written regarding David's first wife, 'supposed daughter of Gideon and Elizabeth (Townsend) Wright,' subject to modification and evidence. That she was a Wright is indicated by the location of the property, as in that region the Wright family had large allotments.

"In 1730 Peter had already sold this land to Daniel Williams, who sold it to John Durland, and the deed was witnessed by Benjamin and Daniel Underhill, who were not descendants of John, 2nd, and were probably brothers of Peter." The following letter was also written by the late George W. Cocks: "John Underhill, the second, married in 1668, Mary, the daughter of his neighbor, Matthew Prior, and probably remained the head of the house until 1678, when having bought a portion of his father-in-law's land and housing, he most likely removed thence, leaving the fifteen-year-old stripling, Nathaniel, as his successor. Soon after attainment of his majority, contemplating a migration to Westchester, N. Y., Nathaniel executed a conveyance to Henry Franklin, of Flushing, of certain land at Matinecock, bounded north by John Underhill, east by the Creek and David Underhill's meadow, south by the highway to Oyster Bay, and west by Nathan Birdsall; except, always reserved, the Burying-place, six rods square, and a way to it, one rod wide. This deed was subsequently voided and the same property conveyed to John Underhill, the elder brother. Nothing is herein indicated to show any allotment of land other than meadow, to David, but the records of the Township of Oyster Bay give evidence that David, having in 1690, sold certain 'rights of land' to William Frost, and in 1697, 'now of age,' confirmed the same; also in 1693, conveys to his uncle and nearest neighbor, John Feke, 'all of my part and share in land formerly my father's, being one-third interest,' &c., &c. It seems quite probable that at about the date of Nathaniel's departure must have occurred the marriages of David's sisters, Deborah to Henry Townsend, Hannah to Richard Alsop, and Elizabeth to Isaac Smith, and he perhaps entered on his apprenticeship to the blacksmith's trade with Abraham Alling, the established mechanic of that branch of the 'Town,' as the village of Oyster Bay was then designated.

"The first information by record we have of David's wife is contained in a deed of gift, in substance as follows: '1700—David Underhill of Oysterbay, account of Love, &c., grants to his son Peter Underhill, fifty acres of woodland at the head of the Mill River,' reserving the right to improve any part of the same 'during my life and the same liberty to my now wife Hannah, should she outlive me.' Further search into the records has yielded little or nothing about David and Hannah, but in a little genealogical sketch of the Weekes family, prepared by John Weekes, shoemaker, it is noted that the second wife of Joseph Weekes, of Matinecock, L. I., was a widow Underhill, grandmother to Peter the Preacher, meaning doubtless, the Rev. Peter Underhill, grandson of David. From this slight clue I have evolved a theory, to the effect that Hannah, the wife of David Underhill, was a daughter of Moses and Hannah (Crooker) Forman, of Oyster Bay. Moses Forman was the son of Robert, sometime of Hempstead, who came to Oyster Bay Cove about 1660. The following from the Town Records shows Moses to have been an eccentric, to put the mildest construction upon his wayward doings: 'This writing testifieth that I, Moses Forman of Oysterbay, upon divers considerations, finding myself not capable to deal with any man, or trade for the good of myself and family, I do by these presents, constitute and appoint the officers of the Town of Oysterbay, as now, and for the time to come, as overseers of my whole estate, for the use and maintenance of my wife and children, as their own; and I do further engage and promise not to make sale of, to the value of five shillings, at any time, without the consent of one or all of the officers that now are or shall be, as witness my hand.

MOSES FORMAN.

" 'Witnessed by Samuel Andrews and Caleb Wright.'

"Moses subsequently deserted his family in Oyster Bay, went to Rhode Island, and married Anna, widow of Samuel Bennett, and the following curious document on record in our County Office throws some light on the fate of Moses Forman's deserted wife:

" 'Jan. 15, 1714, Joseph Weekes, Sr., of the Township of Oyster Bay, in consideration of love and good wishes I do bear to my loving friend, Hannah Weekes, give and grant to said Hannah Weekes, formerly wife of Moses Forman, and daughter of William and Ann Crooker, deceased, all my household goods of every kind.' William Crooker and his wife, Ann Gregory, came to Oyster Bay about 1660 from Connecticut. He died and left his family in straightened circumstances, and on Feb. 1, 1661, practically every family agreed to contribute to her support for 1661 and 1662. Widows of that period seldom remained long unconsoled and Ann soon became the wife of John Rogers. Hannah (Crooker) Forman, who married Joseph Weekes, not being of suitable age to become the wife of David Underhill, the young blacksmith, I am fain to assume that she had a daughter, Hannah, who marrying David Underhill, had son Peter Underhill who would thus be the grandson of Joseph Weekes's second wife, and the traditional account would hold good as to the Rev. Peter Underhill, counting him as great-grandson of Hannah Forman. Our knowledge of names of David Underhill's children is alike, indirect and fragmentary. The Deed of Gift before mentioned certainly fixes

Peter as one of them and the appearance on the Oyster Bay records of the names of Benjamin and Samuel Underhill as property holders in the vicinity of Peter's grant, and the certainty that Benjamin and Samuel were not the descendants of John places them as children of David.

"Daughters there may have been and probably were, but their names are yet unknown. In a deed dated 1734, Peter makes conveyance of certain land to Peter Rutgers of New York and is joined by wife, Penelope, and in the will of Abraham Alling, dated 1732, a bequest is made to his daughter, Penelope Underhill, thus clearly indicating an alliance with the daughter of Abraham Alling, the second, whose wife was Mary Hawxhurst, widow of George Townsend, of Oyster Bay. (Abraham and Mary were married in 1697.—Ed.)

"Peter, like his father David, and his father-in-law, was a blacksmith, and blacksmiths in those days were generally prosperous citizens, acquiring, as did Peter, some considerable real estate in the town."

Copy of letter from George W. Cocks, dated April 18, 1903:

"In my opinion the expression 'my now wife' in the deed from David Underhill to son Peter indicates a second marriage, and that Peter was a child of the first, and my idea is that David made the conveyance to Peter to secure to him the ultimate possession of property which was his mother's or came to David by his first wife, and the name Peter indicates descent from one of the Peter Wrights."

Deeds in Jamaica, L. I., Liber B, No. 2, p. 639, show that on March 8, 1699, David Underhill of Oyster Bay conveyed property to John Townsend of that place, calling the latter "Rhode Island John."

David Underhill is mentioned in Oyster Bay Town Records, Vol. 1, p. 597, as granted one acre of land to Jacob, brother of John and Daniel Underhill, dated Dec. 2, 1693. (Ibid., p. 556), David of Oyster Bay grants John Pratt, Jr., one-half the meadow in Beaver Swamp which he had of John and Daniel Underhill, sons of John, deceased, in partial exchange for what he granted their brother Jacob.

Oct. 13, 1694 (Ibid., 311), John and Edmond Wright convey land to David Underhill, bounded by that of Isaac Doughty, John and Joseph Weekes; also more land "in our right in the Commons of the Old Purchase of Oyster Bay," as will make 21 acres, which was formerly given by the town to Nicholas Wright and by him to his sons John and Edmond.

On March 4, 1691, recorded Feb. 18, 1696 (Ibid., 313), David Underhill exchanged certain lands with Samson Hawkhurst, which the latter had of Joseph Dickinson, lying at the head of Mill River adjoining Anthony's Island. David's land in exchange was at Cedar Swamp. On April 4, 1695, David assigned the land he secured from Hawkhurst to John Rogers of Oyster Bay. 12 SAMUEL UNDERHILL, son of (4) John and Mary (Prior) Underhill, was born in Matinecock, Oyster Bay, L. I., 12 mo., 18, 1674, and married, Feb. 28, 1700, Hannah, died March 1, 1753, aged 72 years, daughter of Thomas and Dinah (Townsend) Willetts, of Jericho, L. I. He died 22, 4 mo., 1754.

In the minutes of the Westbury Meeting of Friends, under date of April 30, 1712, "Mary, wife of Wright Frost, is condemned for going out of the order of Truth in taking a husband and against the witness of God placed in her own conscience, and signifying her sorrow for the same and her desire to be reconciled to God and his people, the Friends are satisfied."

The Town Records of Oyster Bay, Vol. 1, p. 597 (printed), show in two places, that on Dec. 2, 1693, Jacob received one acre of land from David Underhill and is also mentioned as the brother of John and Daniel. It is quite evident, however, that said Jacob was not of age, for in consideration of that one acre the brothers, John and Daniel, grant David certain land in exchange. On page 548 of the same records is stated that John Underhill, son of Jacob and Mary, and grandson of Mary Wright, widow of John Wright, was born in Matinecock, Sept. 12, 1707.

The Town Records of Oyster Bay, Book D, part 2, p. 56, shows Jacob Underhill a witness to a deed on April 1, 1707, and on page 110, under date of Aug. 8, 1707, Jacob and Mary Underhill convey, &c., to Nicholas Wright.

Nathaniel Underhill in 1729 was treasurer and one of the trustees of St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Westchester and is named in its Royal Charter, dated Dec. 2, 1762.

He made his will in Westchester, N. Y., Feb. 25, 1775, which was proven Dec. 1, 1775. It is recorded in New York City in Vol. 8, p. 320, of the published wills. An account of the visit of D. Harris Underhill to the old Underhill Cemetery in Williamsbridge, N. Y., as given to Mrs. Dix in 1910:

The grave of Nathaniel Underhill (1690) located at Williamsbridge, The Bronx, New York City, grandson of Capt. John Underhill. The property was formerly owned by Nathaniel Underhill (1663) father of above, by whom it was first used as a burial place.

(Vol. II, page 87)

"About twenty years ago (from May 23, 1910) I first visited the Underhill Burying Ground at Williamsbridge, but often heard of it before that. I found it in a dilapidated condition; gravestones broken and scattered about; the gravestone of Israel Underhill was broken off, and the condition of things was deplorable. A few years later I made a diagram of the grounds and took the following photographs: Foundation of the old house, as it had been torn down two years before; gravestone of Nathaniel Underhill, born 1690, grandson of Capt. John; a general view; gravestone of Israel and Abigail Underhill.

I have visited it several times since and no one has looked after it. A year ago (1909) I visited it again and had hard work to find it, as streets had been cut through. I then learned that a new street was to go through the graveyard, and that the city had found no heirs to it; the property belongs to the Lorillard-Spencer estate.

I was anxious to save it, so at the annual meeting of the Underhill Society a motion was put through for a committee to investigate and report. In October, 1910, we went there with our lawyer Willard U. Taylor, and with an interested neighbor looked the matter over and decided to take action to make the city pay for the property, as they were about to cut the street through. A survey was made of the graveyard and it was found to be 66 feet square.

Wills and deeds of Nathaniel and Israel Underhill set this plot apart as a burying ground forever. The Underhill Society being an incorporated body, has now (1910) taken hold of it and want to disinter the remains and place them in, perhaps, Woodlawn Cemetery. In order to do this we are seeking the co-operation of the descendants. . . . The old Nathaniel gravestone I found last October (1910) was missing and I never expected to see it again, but to my great surprise and relief our lawyer about two weeks ago got word from our surveyor that he had found it about a mile away on a piece of property he was surveying. I had it brought back and placed in our surveyor's carriage house, where it is now (1910) safe and sound."

Bartow Underhill was an Ensign in the Third Company of Militia in the North Battalion, Westchester County, N. Y., under Capt. Jacob Teller in 1760. (New York Record, Vol. 37, p. 201.)

On April 7, 1767 John Outhouse of Cortlandt Manor conveyed land on the Croton River to Bartow Underhill. Release of same by Israel Underhill, administrator to the estate of Bartow Underhill, deceased, Jan. 5, 1787.

He died there Nov. 26, 1777, and they were buried in Maple Hill Cemetery, and their gravestones are still standing.

A letter from one of his descendants states that sometime between 1730 and 1747 he settled in South East, N. Y. (then Dutchess County); that in 1769 three of his oldest sons with their families located in Dorset, Vt., and were three of the first six families to settle there; that in 1771, William and his wife Mary with William, Jr., and his family followed, and they became the head of what has since been known as the Vermont branch of the Underhill family. Certain family papers state that Wm., No. 28, was "Wm. Bartow Underhill," but no evidence has been found to sustain it, even his gravestone stating plain "William."

Issue:

+120 Abraham, born Feb. 19, 1730.

The New York State Calendar of Land Papers gives the following concerning land in Vermont, and it is possible that the John Underhill referred to is John the son of William, No. 28. If so, he could not have been a Friend and a Corporal, too.

37 JACOB SMITH, son of Isaac and (8) Elizabeth (Underhill) Smith, was born 8, 10 mo., 1690, and in 1719 married Freelove Jones, born about 1700, daughter of Major Thomas and Freelove (Townsend) Jones, of Long Island, N. Issue (Smith):

+129 Thomas, born Aug. 28, 1720.
+130 Isaac, born Sept. 9, 1722.
131 Elizabeth, died young.

Issue (by second wife):

132 Jacob, baptized June 5, 1744.

Jacob Smith was a Warden in St. George's Church, Hempstead, L. I., 1721-31, 1740-46; a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and in 1752 one of the Commissioners to apportion Hempstead Plains.

He made his will Jan. 30, 1755, which was proven March 15, 1757. He mentions: Wife Phebe; son Thomas, his lands in Nine Partners, Dutchess County, N. Y.; to son Isaac, his property in Hempstead, making him executor; grandson Uriah Smith, one hundred pounds. (New York Wills, pub. Vol. 5, p. 156.)

A letter dated Huntington, L. I., May 29, 1896, from H. R. Remsen Coles, states the following pedigree: Jacob Smith married Freelove Jones; Phebe Smith married Dr. J. M. Miller; Margaret Miller married Dr. Oliver Davidson; Morris M. Davidson married Elizabeth T. Stratford. Sylvanus M. Davidson through the above became a member of the Underhill Society.

38 MICAH SMITH, son of Isaac and (8) Elizabeth (Underhill) Smith, was born in 1704 and died in May, 1747. He married, May 7, 1725, Phebe, born 1701, daughter of Richard and Phebe (Denton) Thorne.

Issue (Smith):

133 Elizabeth, baptized June 17, 1733; married, first, a Mott; second, June 29, 1766, Philip Smith Platt, born 1731, died 1801.
134 Micah, baptized March 22, 1734, died unmarried.
135 Isaac, baptized March 16, 1736; married Phebe Marvin, Oct. 4, 1757, and died May 19, 1809.
136 Richard, baptized Aug. 24, 1740.
137 Phebe, baptized in December, 1742.

Micah Smith in 1735 was a Justice of the Peace in Hempstead, L. I., and a Warden of St. George's Church there, 1736-1745, and one time Town Clerk of Hempstead.

Micah Smith of Hempstead, L. I., made his will April 1, 1747, which was proven May 11, 1747, and recorded in New York published wills, Vol. 4, pp. 125-6. He calls himself "gentleman" and mentions: Wife Phebe; daughters Elizabeth and Phebe; father, Isaac, 48 acres, a life lease "now in possession of my brother Jacob and my father," after said father's death, it to be sold and proceeds paid to daughters Elizabeth and Phebe; three sons, Micah, Isaac and Richard, "my homestead," they not of age; property in Nine Partners, Dutchess County, New York.

39 PETER UNDERHILL, son of (9) David and ————? (Wright) Underhill, married Penelope, daughter of Abraham and Mary (Hawkhurst) Alling, and widow of George Townsend. Peter Underhill was Constable in Oyster Bay, 1729/30, as per Friends' Records in Westbury, and was "destrained" from that Society and he and his wife were living April 7, 1773, according to Mary Cooper's diary.

Issue:

+138 Deborah, born 1723.
+139 Hannah.
+140 Daniel, born Jan. 23, 1728.
+141 Peter, born Jan. 24, 1737.
+142 Joseph.
143 Theodosia, born about 1734; married, 1754, Townsend, son of Michael and Elizabeth (Townsend) Weekes.

Abraham Alling of Oyster Bay, L. I., made his will Jan. 21, 1731/2, which was proven March 27, 1736, in which he mentions among others his daughter, Penelope Underhill, and granddaughter Freelove, daughter of Thomas Underhill, and appoints his son-in-law, George Townsend, one of his executors. (New York Wills, Vol. 3, p. 193, pub.)

On April 1, 1729, Peter Underhill was chosen Constable at the Town Meeting held in Oyster Bay. (Town Records, Oyster Bay, Vol. E, Part 2, p. 27.) Mentioned as a witness, March 2, 1723/4 (Ibid., p. 31); on Sept. 30, 1728, Robert Feeke conveys land to Peter Underhill of Oyster Bay, blacksmith (Ibid., p. 471); on June 3, 1730, Daniel Townsend conveys to Peter Underhill (Ibid., p. 471); Aug. 4, 1729, James Dickinson conveys to Peter Underhill (Ibid., p. 477); June, 1729, Zebulon Dickinson conveys to Peter Underhill (Ibid., p. 480); June 7, 1734, Peter Underhill and wife Penelope convey property in Oyster Bay to Peter Rutgers of New York City (Ibid., Vol. F, p. 156); Peter mentioned as a witness, April 3, 1736 (Ibid., Vol. G, p. 225); also April 12, 1768 (Ibid., Vol. H, p. 233); also, July 4, 1781 (Ibid., p. 380); also May 26, 1791 (Ibid., Vol. I, p. 87).

40 SAMUEL UNDERHILL, son of (9) David and Hannah (Forman) Underhill.

He was an Assessor and resided between Norwich and Brookville, L. I., and Peter Townsend stated he was the father of Rev. Peter Underhill. In trying to fully establish the identity of Samuel, George W. Cocks writes: "Contemporaneous with Samuel, probable son of David, there was a Samuel, son of John the second, living at Cedar Swamp, and both appear on several occasions as elected at Town Meetings respectively to the offices of Assessor and Town Clerk, positions, I think, would not be held by the same individual. Samuel, the Town Clerk, was a weaver and a Samuel is mentioned as father of 'Peter the shoemaker.' Several conveyances of land made by Samuel appear in the records, but if he had a wife she did not join him in the deeds. This, however, does not certainly indicate the non-existence of a wife."

41 BENJAMIN UNDERHILL, son of (9) David and Hannah (Forman) Underhill, married, 29, 3, 1728, Hannah, daughter of Thomas and Sarah (Pearsall) Townsend. The Westbury Friends' Records state their first intentions of marriage, dated 27, 1, 1728, and second, 24, 2, 1728; accomplished, 29, 3, 1728.

Issue (order not known and probably others):

144 Elizabeth, married, first, a Hill; second, 15, 5 mo., 1771, Daniel Tuthill, of New Castle, N. Y.

+145 Thomas, born June 6, 1735.

147 Daniel, died New Castle, N. Y., 10, 11 mo., 1824, aged 73 years and 9 months.

Thomas Townsend of Concord, Chester County, Pa., made his will 6 mo., 13, 1732, which was proven Oct. 20, 1732, in which he mentions wife Sarah and among other children his daughter, Hannah Underhill; also land on Long Island and in Westchester County, N. Y. (Chester County, Pa., Wills, 1714-1758, Liber A, p. 384.)

Benjamin Underhill witnessed the will of Ichabod Hopkins in 1730, and in 1731 the town records of Hempstead show a Benjamin purchasing 265 acres there adjoining the property of Thomas Townsend.

The Westbury Friends' records show that Benjamin Underhill was paid various sums in 1730, "towards the stable," meaning probably the stable at the Westbury Meeting House for which timber was carted in 1729. He was also on a committee in 1731; in 1738 he acknowledged "too much strong drink," and again in 1740, when he was disowned for it.

They also show that Hannah, wife of Benjamin Underhill, had a removal certificate to the Purchase Meeting, dated 3, 30, 1763, and states "having removed there some years ago. Her children included but not named." Perhaps the Hannah who had certificate from Westbury to Mamaroneck (Purchase), 26, 2, 1749.

FOURTH GENERATION

43 DEBORAH UNDERHILL, daughter of (10) John and Elizabeth (Willetts) Underhill, was born in 1696 in Cedar Swamp, L. I., and married Joseph Prior, born 8 mo., 20, 1695, died March 28, 1728, Wolver Hollow, L. I., son of John and Elizabeth (Bowne) Prior. They settled at or near Suscoe's Wigwam, now Brookville.

Issue (Prior):

148 Elizabeth, married Henry, son of Robert and (85) Clemence Feke.
149 Deborah.
150 John, married Mary, daughter of Barak and Sarah Coles, of Oyster Bay.

44 AMOS UNDERHILL, son of (10) John and Elizabeth (Willetts) Underhill, was born in 1698 and his marriage intentions are noted as 11, 28, 1729/30, to Elizabeth Seaman, born 7, 10, 1710, daughter of Benjamin and Jean (Mott) Seaman of Westbury, in Town of Hempstead. As Amos sold his homestead in 1741 to his nephew, Samuel Underhill, Jr., and is subsequently on record as of Flushing, and as several of his sons were owners of flour mills with mercantile interests in New York City, it is assumed that Amos left the farm to engage in the milling business.

Issue:

+151 Isaac, born 5, 21, 1732.
+152 Benjamin, born Nov. 26, 1736.
+153 Amos, born May 4, 1740.
+154 David, born April 2, 1743.
+155 Anne, born about 1745.

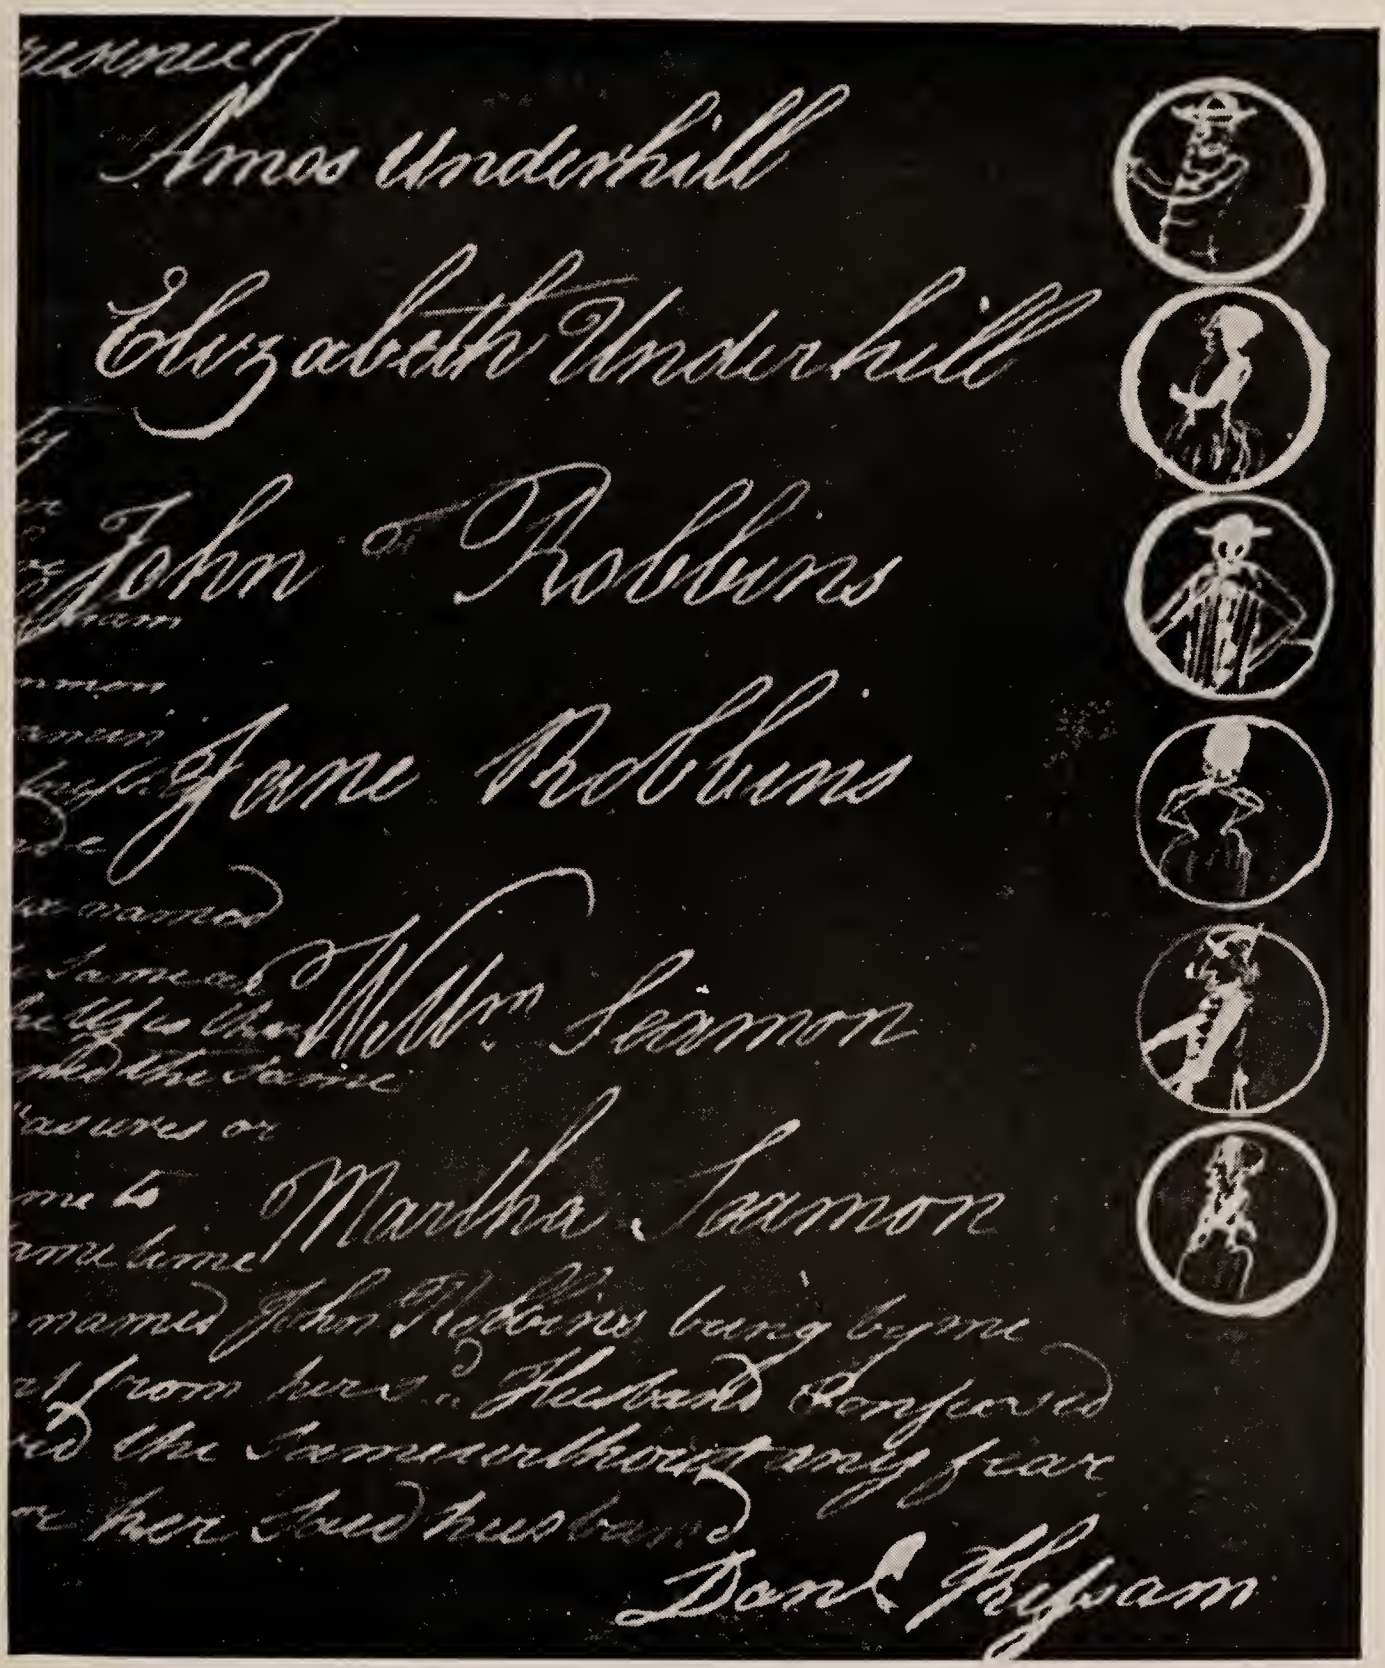
The Westbury Friends' Records state that Amos Underhill, for not appearing on muster day in 1759, had two cows taken from him worth



From a conveyance of land, dated March 29, 1745, as it appears in the Oyster Bay Town Records, Vol. VI, pp. 620-622 eight pounds; that David, Solomon and Edmond Underhill had certificate to Flushing, 7, 25, 1770.
(Vol. II, page 97)

Jan. 22, 1738/9, Samuel, Amos and Thomas Underhill, sons of John, lately deceased, made an exchange of land bought from the Indians in 1685. (Town Records of Oyster Bay, Vol. F, p. 287-a.)

2, 2 mo., 1741, Amos Underhill of Cedar Swamp and Thomas Underhill of the same place, grandsons of John Underhill, who purchased land from the Indians. (Ibid., p. 289.)

April 3, 1741, Amos Underhill and wife Elizabeth of Oyster Bay conveyed land to Samuel Underhill, Jr. (Ibid., p. 298.)

Dec. 8, 1739, agreement on boundary line between lands of Samuel, Amos and Thomas Underhill, which John Underhill bought of the Indians in 1684, and lands of Richard, Timothy and Silvenus Townsend. (Ibid., Vol. F, Part 2, p. 33.)

March 29, 1745, Amos Underhill and wife Elizabeth, John Robbins and wife Jane, Wm. Seaman and wife Martha convey to Benjamin Seaman two lots "bequeathed by Benjamin Seaman, deceased, late of Westbury" to his three daughters as above named. (Ibid., H, p. 253.)

45 DANIEL UNDERHILL, son of (10) John and Elizabeth (Willetts) Underhill, was born in Cedar Swamp, L. I., in 1700 and married, in 1728, Abigail Cruger (as she wrote it), who died Nov. 4, 1765, aged 62 years. In the opinion of George W. Cocks, the noted Long Island genealogist, she was the daughter of William and Sarah (Hawxhurst) Crooker of Wheatley, very near the Cedar Swamp plantation.

Daniel died in Matinecock, 5, 29, 1790, to which place he removed after the death of his cousin Jacob, son of John, who died Feb. 1, 1723, under age and unmarried.

Daniel married, second, Rosannah Townsend, widow of Hezekiah Cock. They separated by mutual consent.

Issue:

159 Twins, born 7, 28, 1728; both died.
+160 John, born Jan. 25, 1729/30.

+162 Daniel, born Jan. 3, 1735.
163 Sarah, born Jan. 30, 1740, died unmarried 3, 24, 1760.

An exact copy of a letter written to D. Harris Underhill by George W. Cocks, dated Glen Cove, L. I., Dec. 29, 1896:

After considerable delay I have at length secured a loan of some valuable Underhill papers, from which I have determined that some of my notes will have to be revised, and fearing that some of the slips sent me by you may have been erroneously endorsed, I have made a literal copy of the ancient manuscript for you to revise and correct your records as they may need. I am now conscious that in some of my memoranda, taken before I was aware of the difference between Old and New Style, show incorrect dates and shall forthwith reverse the same. I fully believe that all I have given you as quoted from Quaker Records has been properly transposed, giving names of months instead of numbers. I also notice on the latter part of the first sheet herewith enclosed, the writer has been confused likewise, viz.: where he first wrote November and subsequently made it January. Some earlier record doubtless was in Old Style, but the scribe was not quick at discriminating. Besides these papers I have the Indian Deed of 1667. As I can only have it a short time and must not let it out of my possession, do you not think it would be expedient for me to have it photographed up here, for use in your book? And if so, how much can the Society afford to pay for the plate, etc.? This deed has on it a seal, which I have been told, is claimed to be Capt. John's crest. The location of the seal on the document does not favor such a theory, but is suggestive of an application by Matthias Nicolls, the Secretary, only I never before saw the Secretary apply a seal to documents brought to him for record, and I have seen several.

Richard Underhill says some uncle of his offered to give him the Deed for the Cedar Swamp property, but he does not take enough interest in the matter to go after it. It should be secured and photographed, also you should have a photo of Richard's house and the old fragment adjoining, when needed. I think you may be able to get a copy of the photo of the "Priar House" where John, 2nd, lived. If you decide to have the Indian Deed photographed please let me hear from you as soon as possible.

This is followed by the "Underhill Papers" he mentions above, viz.:

James Rogers and was going after some of Burgoyne's men when he was taken prisoner, and kept so for two years and nine months. Kipp's Company in the woods and they would get him within the British lines and he was taken soon after; that it was known he had some confidence with Andres and because of that, he was so ill used that he was left for dead on the ground, but was carried off by some of Delancey's Corps. From that time he stayed within the British lines all through the war and now lives at Spoon Island; that he had a tenant farm of 200 acres in Phillipsburg. Philips 40 years ago; that on his father's death it came to him; that he paid one of his brothers something for his interest; that his father died 30 years ago; that he (William) was in possession until he left home; that Isaac Waldron in possession, hired it from the Commissions.

He divided his lands in Westchester and elsewhere equally between Thomas McLeroth and Anthony Lispenard Underhill, "son of my brother Israel." He also gave the said Thomas one-half of his household furniture, a negro woman and her child and one-half of his sloop Tamer, but in consideration of these bequests, "said Thomas must pay Nathaniel's sisters, Helena Morgan and Mary Bayley, certain sums." Bible record of Israel Underhill
(Vol. II, page 119)

108 ISRAEL UNDERHILL, son of (23) Nathaniel and Mary (Hunt) Underhill, was born in Westchester, N. Y., Sept. 10, 1732, and married, by Rev. Henry Barclay of Trinity Church, New York, March 4, 1761, Abigail, born Dec. 5, 1738, baptized New Rochelle, Jan. 5, 1738/9, died Feb. 6, 1806, daughter of Anthony and Maria (Milbourne) Lispenard. He died Sept. 23, 1806. They were buried in the Underhill Cemetery in Williamsbridge, N. Y., now part of New York City. They were Episcopalians and in 1795 he was a warden of St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Westchester, N. Y., and he was listed as a pewholder there in 1790.

Issue:

+339 Elizabeth, born Aug. 8, 1762.
+340 Anthony Lispenard, born Dec. 30, 1763.
+341 Mary A. (Maria Allaire), born March 19, 1766.
342 Frances, born Aug. 22, 1770; married a Garrison and died in August, 1824.
343 Bartow, born Sept. 5, 1774, died at 13 years.
344 Paul, died at 9 years.
345 Sarah, born March 8, 1779.
+346 Clary (Clarina), born Jan. 22, 1782.

Bolton and the Underhill Manuscript both give a son Paul, but the Bible record does not name him, neither does Israel in his will indicate a son by that name, but the Manuscript states he died aged 9 years.

Israel Underhill made his will in Westchester, N. Y., Jan. 10, 1803, which was proven May 13, 1807, and is recorded in White Plains, N. Y., Liber F, p. 215. He mentions wife Abigail; daughter, Frances Garrison, and her children, not of age; daughter Maria A., wife of Winant Van Zant; son, Anthony L.; daughter Elizabeth, wife of Thaddeus Avery; daughter Clarina, and names his son, his daughter Clarina and his two sons-in-law his executors. The will is witnessed by Gilbert Lewis, James Miller and Benjamin Ferris.

He served in the Revolutionary War in 1778 as Ensign in the 3rd Regiment of New York Militia. (D. A. R. Lineage Books, Vol. 59, p. 17.)

The following is a copy of the family record from the Bible of Israel Underhill, which is owned by the Underhill Society of America:

Israel Underhill was born Sept. 10, 1732, died Sept. 21, 1806.

Abbigale, his wife, was born Dec. 5, 1738, and was married March 4, 1761; died Feb. 6, 1806.

Elezebeth was born Aug. 8, 1762, died May 22, 1804.

Anthony L. was born Dec. 30, 1763, died July 18, 1847.

Mary Allaire was born March 19, 1766.

Frances was born Aug. 22, 1770, died August, 1824.

Bartow was born Sept. 5, at 4 o'clock in the morning, 1774, died at age of 13.

Sarah was born March 8, nine in the morning, 1779.

Clary was born Jan. 22, 1782.

Anthony Lispenard Underhill died at Saratoga, July 18, 1847.

Clary Bartow was born March 4, 1769, and was married to Anthony L. Underhill July 24, 1783.

Clarina Underhill was born Jan. 22, 1782.

Names of slaves owned by Israel Underhill copied from a family record in the Van Zandt family Bible. Mary Allaire, his daughter, married Wynant Van Zandt and these slaves were presented to them by her father:

Charles Pine.

Margaret Pine, died 83 years, buried Greenwood.

Ceaser, born Oct. 10, 1792.

Elsy, died Jamaica, L. I., Feb. 5, 1864, 89 years.

On Aug. 18, 1896, D. Harris Underhill and his son, Stephen G., visited the Underhill Cemetery in Willamsbridge, N. Y., on the then Lorillard-Spencer estate, about one mile east of the village and back of Brentwood Park, "which is in the form of an oval and beyond which to the right across a piece of woods and along a fence and then following a path and then over a fence, and as you look across the field under several large trees, the eye at once sees two large tall brown sandstone gravestones which mark the graves of Israel Underhill and Abigail, his wife. A close inspection showed a very dilapidated condition, stones are broken and scattered around, and the plot seems to have once been fenced in."

On Aug. 3, 1901, D. Harris Underhill, with John T. and Irving Underhill, with a photographer, made another trip to the above spot and secured interesting pictures of the place and made a diagram of the plot and stated the decipherable names were: Abigail and Israel Underhill; Nathaniel Underhill; Anne, wife of John Underhill, Jr., 1786;

UNDERHILL BURYING-GROUND, WILLIAMSBRIDGE, NOW NEW YORK CITY
(Vol. II, page 119)

Elizabeth, wife of John Underhill, Sr.; wife of J. J. Moore; Mary, daughter of A. L. Underhill; two children, both named Charles; Edwin Van Zandt; Noah Bishop. One broken stone had Avery on it, and there were others broken in many small pieces. A short distance from the plot were barns and outhouses, and close by was the foundation of the old Underhill homestead, which was torn down about 1899.

The Thirtieth and Thirty-First Annual Reports of the Underhill Society make the following statement:

"The Israel Underhill Family Burying Ground in Williamsbridge, through which a street is to be cut, was incorporated through the efforts of Willard Underhill Taylor, counsel and member of the Underhill Society of America, and the ground placed on the city map as a cemetery. The city bought the property and paid for it. The remains were taken up and removed to St. Paul's Churchyard in Eastchester. What remained of the lot, 100 x 40 feet, now owned by the above Society is located on Adee and Colden Avenues."

The baptism of Abigail Lispenard is recorded in the New Rochelle Episcopal Church record as follows: "Ce Anjourdlini 5 Janvier 1738/9 à été baptise Abigail Lispenard, daughter of Anthony Lispenard, neé le 5 du mois de decembra précédant, et presentée au St. Bapteine par Mes. Lispenard, Senior and Marie Robinson et Madamoiselle Abigail Lispenard as Tauta, Parain et Mareines. Witnesses: Anthony Lispenard, Jr., Anthony Lispenard."

On April 30, 1807, Anthony Lispenard Underhill, merchant, and wife Clarina; Wynant Van Zandt, Jr., merchant, and wife, Maria A., and Clarina Underhill, spinster, all of New York City, conveyed to Thaddeus Avery of Westchester . . . ., etc. Israel Underhill, deceased, in his will of Jan. 10, 1807, "directed monies from his estate to be divided among certain of his children to wit: Anthony L. Underhill, Maria Van Zandt, wife of Wynant, Jr., Clarina Underhill, spinster, and Elizabeth, wife of Thaddeus Avery, &c." (Deeds, White Plains, Liber Q, p. 25.)

109 ELIZABETH UNDERHILL, daughter of (23) Nathaniel and Mary (Hunt) Underhill, was born Feb. 17, 1735, and married, Dec. 10, 1757, Gilbert, born Eastchester, N. Y., 1720, died Cortlandt Manor, N. Y., Jan. 8, 1809, and later known as Lieut. Col. Drake, son of Samuel and Mary (Guion) Drake. She died Sept. 24, 1769, and is buried in Presbyterian Cemetery, White Plains, N. Y. He married, second, Ruth Tompkins, who is buried beside him.

Issue (Drake):

350 Elizabeth, married a Phillips.
351 Mary.

354 Frances, not 18 years February, 1775.

111 SAMUEL UNDERHILL, son of (24) Benjamin Underhill, was born in 1723; married Martha, daughter of Isaac and Hannah (Haight) Thorn, as per George W. Cocks.

Issue (probably others):

356 Isaac.
+357 Samuel, born Dec. 31, 1765.

113 DANIEL UNDERHILL, son of (24) Benjamin Underhill, of New Castle, N. Y., was born in 1730; married Abiah Conkling, whose mother was probably Elizabeth Sands. He died in 1824 in New Castle, N. Y., evidently returning there after selling his property in Marlboro, N. Y., in 1806.

Issue:

358 Sarah, married James Kniffen, son of Benjamin and Mary (Brown) Kniffen. Issue: Charity, born 1791, married Charles Brady; Amy, married A. Carver; Deborah, married Humphrey Smith. Resided in Scipio, N. Y.
359 Amy, married a Hyatt.
360 Benjamin, married and had "Gulia" (Julia).

In 1806 Daniel and family resided in Marlboro, N. Y., for on March 1, 1806, Daniel Underhill and wife "Abier" of that place conveyed property to Micah Lewis. (Deeds, Ulster County, N. Y., Liber 47, p. 60.)

A note states that the son Benjamin removed to Cayuga County, New York.

One Abiah Underhill died 4, 5 mo., 1837, aged 86 years.

Daniel Underhill of New Castle, N. Y. made his will 17 of 11mo., 1823, which was proven Nov. 15, 1824, and recorded in White Plains, N. Y., Liber K, p. 314. He names wife Abiah; eldest daughter Sarah Kniffen; youngest daughter, Amy Hyatt; son Benjamin; granddaughter, Julia Underhill. Executors, Elijah Hyatt and Jesse H. Weeks. Witnesses, Jesse H. Weeks, Eliza Weeks, Ann Sutton.

James Kniffen, was born Salem, N. Y., March 12, 1766, and removed in 1814 to Scipio, Cayuga County, N. Y. His daughter Charity, born Oct. 16, 1791, married Nov. 9, 1809, Charles Brady, born Salem, 1791, died from accidental shooting Dec. 18, 1824. Both buried in Fitchville, Huron County, Ohio. In 1823 Charity and her husband started west, stopping in Scipio to visit James and Sarah Kniffen, who had been living there nine years. In 1824 they reached Greenwich and went to A. Carver's, who had married Amy Kniffen, sister of Charity. Another of her sisters, Deborah, married Humphrey Smith, and Willis Smith, who married Ann Underhill (Bolton's Chart), was living on this place when Charity wrote the above, and his grandson is now living there. James and Sarah (Underhill) Kniffen are buried a short distance from the one-time home of Willis and Ann (Underhill) Smith, and the two families lived neighbors and intermarried. Ann Underhill's father also lived in Cayuga County, and it is reasonable to conclude that her father Abel (and Phebe [Kipp] Underhill) was a brother of Benjamin, father of Sarah Underhill, who married James Kniffen. (Letter from Grace Gridley Rusco [Mrs. L. W.], Muncie, Ind., 112 W. Washington Street, Feb. 14, 1923.)

(The father of Sarah Kniffin was Daniel Underhill.—Ed.)

Isaac Underhill Homestead, Yorktown, N. Y., in which Major Andre had his breakfast just prior to his capture. Built in 1700
(Vol. II, pages 125 and 209)

Bolton in his History of Westchester County, N. Y., states: "In the old family mansion which stands on the Pines Bridge Road is shown the room in which Major Andre and Joshua H. Smith breakfasted on Sept. 23, 1780. At this period the house was occupied by Isaac and Sarah Underhill, she a daughter of Robert Field, whose nephew was a resident of Yorktown, and appears to have been a woman of good resolution and courage. While entertaining Andre and his companion she took particular notice of the former and imagined she read in his confusion a person embarrassed in some great undertaking. A few days previous to this event she had visited headquarters to recover some cattle carried off by a band of marauders."

In a letter written by Abraham I. Underhill, son of Isaac and Sarah, he states that his mother was ill some time before her death and was rendered speechless and helpless. The letter is of great length, giving minute details of her final days and of her religious spirit, but is without date.

Another letter from him to Robert Underhill, also undated, describes the illness of his sister Abigail and, on 8 mo., 2, 1804, in a letter to Joshua Underhill, New York, he gives the details of her deathbed, and on 27, 11 mo., 1798, he writes of the death of his brother Isaac and of his burial in Amawalk.

Sarah Underhill is mentioned in the will of Robert Field of Greenwhich, Conn., dated Aug. 26, 1784, proven Nov. 2, 1784, as his daughter. He also mentions other children, Uriah and Jerusha Field. (Wills at Stamford, Conn., Liber P., p. 182.)

117 JACOB UNDERHILL, son of (25) Abraham and Hannah (Cromwell) Underhill, was born May 25, 1730, and married (intentions), Aug. 28, 1747, Amy Hallock, born June 3, 1728, died July 30, 1808. He died Sept. 26, 1807. She was daughter of John and Hannah Hallock of Brookhaven, L. I.

Issue (as per Purchase Quaker Records):

+389 Samuel, born 27, 6, 1748.
+390 Hannah, born 16, 1, 1750.
+391 Sarah, born 29, 7, 1751.
+392 Edward, born 16, 8, 1753.
+393 Amy, born 16, 4, 1755.
+394 James, born 1, 3, 1757.
+395 Catherine, born 11, 5, 1760.
+396 Anna, born 24, 4, 1762.

+397 Jacob, born 5, 3, 1764.
+398 Jesse, born 11, 7, 1767.
+399 Isaac, born 4, 10, 1769.

"The Bible containing the family record was in the possession of Jesse H. Underhill and, as well as the Purchase Quaker Records, states that the wife of Jacob Underhill was Anna and not Amy Hallock, as so frequently published, but the Bible also states that she was formerly 'Concklin.'" Anna Concklin married the son, No. 397.

George W. Cocks states that the Westbury Friends Records name her as Amy and a search reveals the truth of that statement.

Jacob Underhill, yeoman, of New Castle, N. Y., made his will 3 day, 4 mo., 1806, which was proven March 15, 1808, and recorded in White Plains, N. Y., Liber E, p. 27. He names sons Samuel, James, Jacob, Isaac; son Edwards' children; daughters Hannah, Sarah, Catharine; five children of deceased daughter, Amy Frost, all under age; Amy and Aaron, children of deceased daughter, Anna Quimby, not of age; son Jesse with son-in-law, Elihu Griffen, and Stephen Carpenter, executors. Witnesses, Thomas Vail, Stephen Conklin, Jonathan Reynolds.

The Westbury Friends' Records distinctly state, on page 31, that Jacob Underhill, son of Abraham of White Plains, married, in Bethpage, L. I., on 29 of 8 mo. (Oct.), 1747, Amey Hallock, daughter of John of Brookhaven; therefore the aforesaid Bible record must be in error and refer to his son Jacob. They also state that their first intentions of marriage was dated 30, 7 mo., 1747; second, 28, 8 mo., 1747; reported accomplished 25, 9 mo., 1747, and that Amy Underhill took removal certificate to Purchase, 27, 1 mo., 1751.

118 HANNAH UNDERHILL, daughter of (25) Abraham and Hannah (Cromwell) Underhill, married, as his second wife, Caleb Horton, son of Capt. John Horton and Rachel (Hoit) Horton of Rye, N. Y. His first wife was probably Martha, sister of Daniel Turner, as the latter, in his will of March 15, 1742, mentions Caleb Horton, not of age, son of "sister Martha," and the will reads as if the sister was deceased and Caleb her only child; also, when Rachel Horton was administering the estate of her husband John, she states that her son Caleb was born about 1697, and the inscriptions from the White Plains, N. Y., Presbyterian Cemetery show that Caleb Horton died Aug. 24, 1770, aged 72 years, and that Hannah, his wife, died Feb. 10, 1773, aged 56 years, 3 months, 25 days. Caleb was not married Nov. 19, 1718.

Issue (Horton—order not known):

400 Caleb, by his first wife and not an Underhill descendant, died 1758, leaving son Caleb.

Caleb Horton of White Plains, N. Y., made his will March 26, 1770, which was proven Aug. 29, 1770. (N. Y. Wills, Vol. 7, pp. 337-8.) He mentions wife Hannah and indicates that certain children are not of age; names grandsons, Caleb Horton and Caleb Barker; daughters Anne, Hannah, Jane, Elizabeth; sons Gilbert, Underhill, Isaac and Abraham, and states that "Underhill is gone away from me, but to have his share if he returns." His executors were James Horton, Jr., and John Townsend, both of Mamaroneck.

119 MARTHA UNDERHILL, daughter of (25) Abraham and Hannah (Cromwell) Underhill, was born in 1737, and married Jabez Lockwood, born Fairfield, Conn., Feb. 6, 1732, son of John and Abigail (Morehouse) Lockwood.

Issue (Lockwood):

The following notes are from "The Story of Dorset, Vt."

There were six settlers: Felix Powell from Massachusetts (via Pittsford?), Isaac Lacy from Connecticut, and Benjamin Baldwin, Abraham Underhill, John Manley and George Page from New York. It would be interesting to know how the last four felt about the charter controversy. An old history tells us that Abraham Underhill, "being a man of very humane feelings . . . did much to mitigate the asperities of feeling existing between different parties and . . . was instrumental in restoring to the families of the disaffected many a cow and horse of which they had been officially plundered."

However, this may be, a Town Meeting was held in 1774. The warning runs as follows:

"Warning; these are to notify and warn the freeholders and inhabitants of the township of Dorset to meet at the house of Abraham Underhill, Innholder, in said Dorset, on Tuesday, the 8th day of March, at two of the clock in the afternoon, for the following purpose: First, to choose a Moderator to govern the meeting; second, to choose two officers agreeable to the charter of said Dorset. Given under our hands this 26th day of February, A. D., 1774.

"Asa Baldwin, Town Clerk.

"Abraham Underhill"

Abraham Underhill's inn stood in what is now South Dorset, at the east end of the road running across the valley to the west. We suppose the Danby bridle path must have passed directly in front of it. It was evidently a high spirited resort, for its landlord was reputed to be one who loved his cups. He married Mercy Paddock, a godly woman, who took her husband's worldliness a good deal to heart, with resignation, however. The story is told of her that she was aroused from her bed late one evening to prepare a supper for Abraham and some of his cronies. Her uncomplaining obedience was noted by a friend who was staying in the house at the time, and was commented on next day. "Well," replied the wife soberly, "all Abraham's enjoyment will have to be in this world, and I want to see that he gets as much as possible."

Abraham Underhill left his tavern to the arid mercies of his wife and jeopardized the diminishing sum of pleasures remaining to him by commanding a company of volunteers. John Manley, Jr., served under him.

Abraham Underhill was one of the first settlers of Dorset, Vt., in 1768.

"A payroll of Capt. Abraham Underhill's Co., Warren's Reg't of Militia, for services done to guard the frontiers. By order of Govr. and Council; From Nov. 7, 1778 to Nov. 14, 1778."

"A payroll of Capt. Abraham Underhill's Co.; Col. Ira Allen's Reg't of Militia, for services done in defense of the frontiers of the State of Vermont in the alarms of the 12th 1781. Date above received of the treasurer, the contents of the order above (June 11, 1781) per me, Abraham Underhill, Capt." (Vermont Rev. War Rolls.)

The first town meeting was held in Dorset, Vt., at the home of Abraham Underhill, and he was one of the Selectmen there in 1775, 1776, 1777, 1778, 1779 and a town representative, 1778, 1779, 1780, 1781, 1784. (History of Bennington County, Vt., pp. 414, 426.)

Mrs. Ann Brewster of Manchester, Vt., states she has (1922) the Capt. Abraham Underhill commission, signed by Govr. Tichnor two years before peace was declared.

Biographical sketch of Abraham Underhill, born 1730, by John W. Underhill, M.D., of Van Wert, Ohio:

Abraham (Abram) Underhill, son of William, was born in 1730 at the Old Homestead of his grandfather Nathaniel, one and a half miles northwest of the village of Westchester, N. Y.

He was a man of great energy of character, a man who never faltered in the discharge of duty to his God, to his country, family or friends. He was of a pioneering spirit and a distinguished leader in the home of his adoption, with executive ability in whatever he undertook, and the courage to decide upon any measure or policy of action. He was charitable to the man of faults, lenient to the shortcomings of friends, merciful to a defeated enemy, forgiving and kind to the erring, and charitable to the poor and suffering.

On the other hand, he was an inveterate enemy to a man of bad habits, the licentiously wicked and promotor of evil in society.

He was a Federalist and a lover of liberty and the cause of American Independence, and served with fidelity his country during the bloody Revolution of 1775-1783. He was one of the first in Dorset, Vt., who volunteered in his country's defense, and was present and did valiant service at the head of his Company, at the battle of Hubbardstown and Bennington and served elsewhere with distinction through the war. Truly he has left to his descendants and the country an imperishable name.

He was a guest of Ethan Allen, who presented him a splendid silver mounted long-range rifle as an expert marksman, which by request of the State Legislature of Vermont in 1875 was deposited in the archives of the State Historical Society at Montpelier.

He was selected a member of the Colonial Constitutional Convention preparatory for admission into the sisterhood of the original Thirteen States in 1787, and Vermont became the Fourteenth State of the United States of America.

His ideas of Constitutional Liberty were of the most generous kind, consisted with good order and certainty, and no doubt gave direction to the course of that body in the reception of that article in 1791.

He was an excellent Constitutionalist, a good historian and genial friend in the narration of a story, for like his father, William, born 1707, he had had many thrilling experiences and possessed a good understanding of the events of the day in which he lived.

He died after an eventful career of 66 years in Dorset, Bennington County, Vermont, on July 26, 1796, in the midst of great usefulness and while a member of the Legislature of his adopted home.

NOTE.—He went with his family of wife and four children to Dorset, Vt., in 1769, to wit: His wife, Mercy Paddock; Isaac, James, David and Phebe, also with his two brothers, Augustin of Rye, Westchester County, N. Y., and his wife, Jerusha Bloomer, and two children, Samuel and Chloe, in 1769, and were three of the first six settlers of that town.

Extract from a pamphlet entitled "History of the Baptist Church," by Charles S. Wightman, 1873:

"Prominent among the leaders were Peter Underhill and Sarah, wife of John Townsend, who was his mother-in-law and who, having been a school teacher, went by the name of Madame Townsend. Although Mr. Underhill was designated as the Elder of the new church, Madame Townsend was manifestly the ruling spirit.

For awhile the church greatly prospered in its way. It enjoyed a great revival. Elder Underhill continued to preach at the new meeting house on the back road until, tired of certain irregularities, he with such of the members as survived the Revolutionary War united with the old church in the reorganization of a regular Baptist Church. Madame Townsend had died nine years previous to this event, on April 22, 1780. After this union in 1789, Peter Underhill and Benjamin Coles acted as co-pastors of the church, which now numbered twenty-five members."

Henry Durling (Nos. 484 and 488) made his will 5, 1, 1843, which was proven in 1847. He provides for his wife Phebe, but at her death his estate to be divided into nine parts and distributed as follows: To Sarah Waring, daughter of Joseph Silleck; to Jane Smith, wife of William, "now living with me"; to Peter S. Underhill, son of Isaac; to Joseph Storrs, "in remembrance," etc.; to Samuel Underhill of Cold Spring, "brother of my wife"; one share to be divided between Mary and Amy Bennett, children of Daniel Underhill, "late brother of my wife"; to Caleb Underhill, Mary Lockwood, Sally Underhill and Mary Ann Gerow, children and grandchildren of Baruch Underhill, "brother of my wife"; one divided between Henry Cheshire and Deborah Beebe, "my nephew and neice," and Lucinda Cheshire, wife of "my nephew, Elijah Cheshire." Executors, Peter S. Underhill of Brooklyn and Caleb Wright and Joseph Storrs of Oyster Bay.

William U. Lee, a great-grandson of David Underhill, wrote from Medina, N. Y., Aug. 20, 1897, that he had in his possession one of David Underhill's letters (1797), in which he mentions calling on his tenants in Baltimore, Md., and receiving money from them and writes of settling with the tenants on the docks from whom he received seven hundred and fifty dollars.

Miss Elizabeth E. Underhill made the following statement while at the Park Avenue Hotel in New York City, June 6, 1908: "David Underhill married Elizabeth Mott. I do not remember my father's grandmother, but I have heard him tell about her. Elizabeth Mott wore a plain bonnet and dressed in real Quaker fashion. They went in the drug business in 1829. My father was married and went into the drug business at No. 15 Peck Slip. My grandfather was David Underhill. He lived on Long Island at Cedar Swamp. His daughter was Aunt Betsey. Cornelia Thomas died long ago. William Lee is a splendid man. He is a favorite cousin of ours. Mary Buhler was my sister."

She also stated that Wm. Underhill was for many years in the Custom House and when General Jackson came into office he lost the position. "I have a letter written by him when I was about 11 years old. My father built a house at Glen Cove, where we went summers and then would go to the Quaker Meeting, where father would introduce us to the heads of the Meeting. That was near the old cemetery. My grandparents were married by Quaker ceremony, but all went over to the Universalist Church. Alfred was in business with my father; David, Jr., lives in the old home in Buffalo; Robert fell through a hatchway in Illinois and was killed; Eugene's monument is in St. John's Churchyard, New York; William kept house at 15 Peck Slip. The old grandmother lived with him. She was Doctor Mott's sister."

She continues: "Betsey, daughter of David Underhill, never married. She used to visit us dressed in real Quaker fashion, a large bonnet and shawl, which we all looked at."

The Westbury Friends' Records state that David Underhill in 1777, for not going on guard, had four bushels of rye taken from him and in 1778, "for myself and brother Solomon not standing guard, one and one-half bushels of wheat"; that David had certificate to New York, 4, 27, 1774; also that the first intentions of marriage of David and Elizabeth were 10, 27, 1773; the second, 1, 26, 1774, and accomplished 2, 23, 1774.

The Westbury Friends' Records state he died 2, 5, 1827; that he had a "certificate of unity" to visit Meetings to the northward, which he returned 3, 29, 1775, and had another 10 mo., 1783.

A memoir of Solomon Underhill, dealing mainly with his religious life, may be found in "The Friend," published in Philadelphia, 7 day, 2 mo., 1828. It states in telling of his early life that his elder brothers kept a distillery in which he was obliged to labor and was early convinced of the iniquity of the business and became so deeply impressed that he endeavored to dissuade his brothers from continuing in it; that his uneasiness with it increased until he believed it right for him to decline laboring with them further. "His solicitude for the preservation for a sound and living ministry amongst us was earnest and fervent and he made some observations respecting it near his close." Her marriage to Wm. Waring is recorded in the New York Friends' records.

Solomon Underhill and his wife Lydia removed from Westbury to New York 12, 27, 1780, and with son Isaac returned there 6, 5, 1782. The Friends' Records also state that Sarah, daughter of Solomon, was "for some time past under the care of a Friend in the New York Meeting, from Westbury, 2, 14, 1798."

Harris Underhill states that, as a boy, he knew Samuel Allen well; that he was a student of geology and astronomy; that he always wore, winter and summer, a broad-brim white beaver hat made by Knox, the hatter, corner of Broadway and Fulton street, costing ten dollars. During the cyclone of 1904 his two orchards were completely destroyed and it wiped out five houses which stood between his home and that of "the late Alfred Underhill, whose fourth wife, Hannah P., was living there."

Dr. John W. Underhill of Ohio wrote that Samuel Allen had a brother "who came to Ohio to teach young ideas how to shoot out on their books. He was a success in that. He was a Quaker and all that and exceedingly technical in scientific subjects. He went over to Kentucky and changed occupations, as they had no use for schools, and became a hotel keeper, which was a venturesome business in that country for a Northerner. He, too, wore a white beaver hat, and some of the boys played a trick on him and took his hat, and ever after he went bareheaded, and did a good business because of his even temper. He said he was a brother of Samuel. He came to see me, bareheaded and spare."

Swain, Esq., but formerly known as Underhill Mill. The course of the Bronx immediately below the mill is said to have been formerly changed by a large beaver dam near the foot of the Underhill garden. The above mill and the adjoining property, at an early period belonged to Lancaster Underhill. Throughout the trying period of the Revolutionary War, he resided on his farm and appeared to have suffered severely, both in person and estate. During many a severe winter night he lay concealed beneath the body of an oxcart (which he had covered with hay), and on each returning day blessed his good fortune that his house had escaped the flames. Near the mill is located the Bronx Railroad Depot (1847), about 4½ miles south of White Plains."

Liber G, p. 317, of "Administrations" at White Plains, N. Y., shows that Lancaster Underhill died intestate, and that on April 30, 1845, his son, Benjamin H., was appointed his administrator.

A tablet on the Avery Homestead in Mt. Pleasant, N. Y., after giving the births and deaths of himself and wife, has the following inscription: "From this house Captain Thaddeus Avery went forth to fight the cause of freedom. He and the neighboring gentlemen banded themselves together and offered their services and their lives to resist oppression and wrong."

On June 9, 1900, a silver tablet was placed over the old oven and fireplace in the above home by the New York City Chapter of the D. A. R., the inscription on it reading: "Capt. Thaddeus Avery was branded with hot irons in this room, and his wife threatened with death by the Hessians, when they refused to divulge the hiding place of the money of the Continental Army. Mrs. Avery baked bread in this oven for the Revolutionary soldiers. This hero and heroine were the grandparents of Mrs. R. Ogden Doremus, Second Regent of the New York City Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which organization affixed this tablet June 9th, 1900."

Anthony L. Underhill of New York City made his will Jan. 16, 1845, which was proven Dec. 9, 1847, and is recorded in New York City, Liber 95, p. 124 old, p. 127 new. He names the following heirs: Grandson, George March; son-in-law, Ferdinand Suydam; sons George, Charles, Henry; daughters, Antoinette March, Angelina Sykes, Emily Underhill, Clara Louisa Mumford; grandsons, Charles Suydam and Robert Underhill. Executors, sons George and Charles and daughter Antoinette. Witnesses, G. E. Baldwin, Wm. E. Dunscomb, A. D. Ditmars of Newtown, L. I.

The Underhill Society has in its collection the original of the following: "A. L. Underhill presents Capt. Spencer with the Quantity of ground reserved for a Burial ground by my Father, deceased, in the Town of Westchester, now occupied by Capt. Spencer, and also a convenient passage to get to it. The burial ground is to be Four Rods Square, being 66 feet each way. New York, 27th May, 1843."

From a letter in the Underhill Manuscript:

"Another brother of the Suydams was Ferdinand Suydam, who was born in 1786. He started business in New York on his own account at 37 Front Street in 1808. I have his signature as signed in 1805. He lived at No. 9 Bridge Street and he married a daughter of Anthony Lispenard Underhill, "who kept at 172 Front Street" (as written—J. C. F.). Old Andrew in 1790 lived at 167 Queen Street and his store was at 20 Peck Slip; his firm was Underhill and Bulckly. His brother David commenced business in 1793 at 78 Water Street. Old Andrew, I think, died about 1794, for the next year Anthony L. started business as a grocer at No. 170 Water Street and the same year David took his son into partnership under the firm name of David Underhill and Son, at 234 Water Street; they were ironmongers or hardware merchants. Old David lived at 337 Pearl Street, near Beekman Street. Anthony L. in 1797, while he was living at 31 Dey Street, took into partnership Benjamin Hustace, and the firm was for some years Underhill and Hustace at 172 Front Street. I believe it dissolved in 1802. Hustace lived next door to Underhill at 33 Dey Street. When they dissolved Hustace started next door to his old partner at 170 Front Street. Anthony L. moved his residence to 42 Dey Street and lived there a great many years. It was in that house Ferdinand Suydam married Eliza Underhill. David Underhill and Son kept steadily in the hardware business from 1795 to 1810, when they moved to 112 Maiden Lane. The old gent lived at 13 Oliver Street. The house went under about 1813.

Anthony L. kept his house at 42 Dey Street until 1817, when he moved next door to 44. He retained the old store No. 175 Front Street until 1819. In April of that year the Fulton Fire Insurance Co. was incorporated. Anthony L. Underhill was elected President and O. H. Hicks, Secretary. He continued President of it until the great fire in December, 1835, when the losses made the company go into liquidation. Still he continued to reside at 44 Dey Street until 1835, when he moved to 28 Courtlandt Street, but kept his office at the Insurance Company, No. 8 Wall Street.

In 1837 he had his place of business in Broad Street and following the uptown track, moved into Fourth Street. From that time he passed from a business life. I believe he died in 1847 at Saratoga Springs. From 1811 to 1847, a period of 36 years, he was a vestryman of Trinity Church. This mere fact is an unwritten story of a long Christian life. He was Assistant Alderman of the Third Ward from 1814 to 1816 and Alderman in 1817-1818. Ferdinand Suydam, who married Eliza Underhill, was of the firm of Suydam and Boyd, 21 South Street."

341 MARY (MARIA) ALLAIRE UNDERHILL, daughter of (108) Israel and Abigail (Lispenard) Underhill, was born March 19, 1766, and was married, June 21, 1788, by Rev. She died Aug. 1, 1851, and they are buried in a vault in the Zion Episcopal Church of Little Neck, L. I., now Douglaston, he being the founder of that church.

The Long Island Star, dated July 16, 1817, states that one Thomas Van Zandt (perhaps No. 897) was married in New York to Louisa Julia Underhill, whom the editor has not been able to identify.

The Underhill Society owns what is left of the original Bible record of Wynant Van Zandt, which reads as follows:

Maria Allaire Underhill was born the 19th March, 1766.

Wynant Van Zandt, Junr., was born August 11, 1767. Was married June 21, 1788, by Jeddediah Moorse, Presbyterian, at Harlem.

Also: "The above were slaves and raised at Westchester, N. Y., by Israel Underhill, father of Maria Allaire, who was the wife of Wynant Van Zandt, and presented to them when quite young in years."

The above Bible record had been torn out of the book and was found among the papers of the late James A. Underhill by his daughter, Mrs. George W. Alpers, of 77 Macon Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., as per D. Harris Underhill.

The Society has a copy of the portrait of Wynant Van Zandt, who founded the Zion Church at Little Neck, L. I., and which appeared in the St. George's Sword and Shield for June, 1897.

Samuel Underhill died intestate and his widow Alche and son John were made his administrators in 1826. On Nov. 4, 1826, she was made guardian of their minor children, George W., William I. and Solomon. (Administrations, Orange County, Liber E, p. 393, and Guardians, Liber A, pp. 157-9.)

On Oct. 9, 1832, Allche Underhill, John Underhill, John Underhill and wife Hannah of Plattekill, Ulster County, Stephen F. Underhill and wife Abigail, Isaac Underhill and wife Eliza Jane, Solomon and Daniel Underhill, all of Newburgh, convey property to Daniel Birdsall. (Orange County Deeds, Liber 46, p. 262.)

A letter from Deborah C. Fountain of Manchester, Mich., dated Sept. 8, 1885, states that she was a daughter of Garrison Underhill, whose wife was Zillah Underhill, daughter of Samuel of Newburgh, N. Y.; that she never heard of any relationship between her father and mother, whose children she named as Alcha F., Elizabeth H., Deborah C. (herself), Garrison, Sarah, Zillah, James C., Solomon, Phebe H. and Eugene B.

The only Underhill found to date marrying a Garrison is Isaac, ancestry not determined, who married Betsy, daughter of Richard and Jane (Gerow) Garrison, and lived in Plattekill, N. Y., about the close of the Revolutionary War, removing there from Westchester County. They would doubtless have son Garrison of proper age to marry Zillah Underhill in 1817.

Isaac Underhill and wife Eliza Jane of Newburgh, N. Y., conveyed April 1, 1842, land in Plattekill, N. Y., to Mary Lary. (Deeds, Ulster County, N. Y., Liber 58, p. 330.)

Adams Griffin and wife Rachel of Plattekill, N. Y., and Samuel Underhill and wife Allche of Newburgh convey to Wm. Ross, etc., Jan. 19, 1814. (Deeds, Orange County, N. Y., Liber R, p. 259.)

The above deed indicates that Allche, wife of Samuel Underhill, had a sister Rachel, wife of Adams Griffin.

Jan. 10, 1826, Uriah Drake and wife Ruth of Plattekill to Samuel Underhill of Newburgh, N. Y. Satisfied by John Underhill, administrator of said Samuel, deceased. Filed May 4, 1831. (Mortgages, Ulster County, N. Y., Liber 19, p. 660.)

John Underhill resided in Amawalk, N. Y., and was a Presbyterian. He is listed in New York in the Revolution in "Colony and State," p. 267, as a member of the Westchester County Militia (Land Bounty Rights), Third Regiment, under Capt. Samuel Haight.

D. Harris Underhill, in 1885, had the following to say about Jacob Underhill (940): "I remember seeing him when I was a boy about 10 years of age. He was a very large, fleshy man with a large head and bushy gray hair; was very quiet when in company and a great person for traveling around the country visiting his friends. He was of unsound mind and called 'Shaller Jake.' Every few months would see him coming in the yard of my grandfather's farm at Chappaqua (Charles R. Underhill), with his heavy cane, having walked a great distance that day; perhaps it was on a Saturday night and grandmother (Elizabeth C. Underhill) would greet him with 'How does thee do, Jacob?' He would always reply in his deep tone of voice, 'I am quite well, Cousin Elizabeth, but very tired,' and she would then invite him to have supper and stay over Sunday. He was very fond of reading his Bible, and most any time of day he could be heard reading it aloud on the back stoop, where he preferred to sit. He was not fond of work, and might be called lazy, for, as grandmother always set 'travelers' to work, she used to ask Jacob to saw wood, weed the garden, dig potatoes, etc., which he never liked very much, and sometimes would rather travel on than do any work. Grandmother would hear him reading his Bible and would address him thus: 'Jacob, I would like thee to dig some potatoes for dinner,' and he would inevitably get slowly up and make this reply, 'Well, Elizabeth, I guess I must be going,' and that would be

FROM THE MANUSCRIPT OF ABRAHAM S. UNDERHILL.

Conversation that Abraham S. Underhill and Abraham I. Underhill had.

Memoranda of conversation with Abraham I. Underhill in which he gave some account of the Underhill family (of his own times) from recollection:

ISAAC UNDERHILL

My father (Isaac Underhill) was born on his father's (Abraham) farm situated near White Plains, Westchester County, N. Y. (Yorktown, N. Y.). He was a man of great bodily strength and sound constitution. He was very industrious, even to old age, say, over 80. During his life he partly cleared up three farms near Saw Mill River, Nanahagan or Phillips Manor, now the town of Mount Pleasant. He was a man of good natural ability, but little improved by education, yet was a man of good judgment and was an elder of the Society of Friends for many years. His father (Abraham Underhill) lived at White Plains. Before father left White Plains he partly cleared the farms of his brothers Jacob and Abraham at Nanahagan, he going back and forwards by a footpath, which was the only road between the two places. The neighborhood was then inhabited by Indians and wild animals. He moved to Nanahagan about 1738, at which time the Indians had not yet left the neighborhood. He moved to Amawalk (Yorktown) in 1774. The Amawalk farm was cleared when he bought it, and was one of the first farms cleared in that part of the country.

During the Revolutionary War Washington's main army on its way from White Plains to New Jersey marched past the house, going from Pines Bridge to Peekskill. I frequently saw Washington pass during the time, so I knew him as well as I did anybody. He always had a lifeguard of twelve young gentlemen riding before him with drawn swords for protection and honor. They were said to be Virginians. I recollect perfectly well meeting him by the schoolhouse near Parker's and at another time a little south of the old Amawalk Meeting House, and also when he passed our house the two former times he was not with the Army. When I saw him pass our house it was when he proclaimed that he intended to take New York, and was making every exertion to collect men and stores for that purpose, but his real intention was to divert the British in New York to prevent their sending forces to Yorktown, Virginia, to relieve Lord Cornwallis. Washington went down as far as White Plains and then commenced forced marches to West Point, and so through New Jersey south to Yorktown, Virginia, and succeeded in capturing Cornwallis and all his army before he could be relieved from New York. A sergeant's guard was kept at our house almost during all the war.

Major Andre with lawyer Smith of Orange County, N. Y., called at my father's the day he was taken, at about 8 o'clock in the morning; they wanted breakfast. Andre was on his way from West Point to New York and made many inquiries respecting the road. His mind appeared to be very much impressed, so that he could not be still a moment. Smith ate breakfast which mother prepared for him, but Andre appeared very agitated, walked backwards and forwards before the front door, and ate nothing. He had on a blue light-bodied coat, made plain after the fashion of the New England farmers of the day. The New England farmers, having manufactories, wore good clothes, but those of this part of the country were unable to obtain good clothes, not having any fulling mills or manufactories. Smith went back north from our house and Andre went towards New York alone. He went by the way of Pines Bridge and Tarrytown. Near the latter place he was taken prisoner by Van Wart and others who were out on a scouting party.

In the time of the Revolution the British Light Horse came through this part of the country. They came from Crumpond to our house. They burned several houses, killed one or more men and wounded every man they met, taking them off prisoners to New York; they robbed every house and took off all the cattle they could find. A few weeks before a hurricane had passed over our house and took the roof off the back side. The British rode up very furiously with their swords drawn and demanded which party took the roof off the house. I replied, "the Upper Party," which they understood to mean the Whigs, the British being the lower party. They then placed a sentinel at the door, who prevented any of the party from going into the house or taking anything from us, which we considered as a remarkable Providential preservation.

In the Revolution robberies and murders were frequent in this part of the country. One night there were two strangers put up at our house from New England. In the dead of the night a man knocked at the door. Father asked who was there; the reply was a "friend." Father mistook the voice for that of a particular friend of his, but mother thought they were robbers beyond any doubt. Father got up and opened the upper half of the door and soon found his mistake, for they were robbers who had come to rob the house. Mother jumped out of bed the same time father did. While he was parleying with the man over the lower door the man stood outside with a gun in his hand and his companions at his heels. She woke up all her children, seven sons and four daughters (all as large as men), put men's coats and hats on the girls, all in not over three minutes, and marched them into the room where father was. So large a company struck such a damper on the robbers that they immediately retreated. We then looked for the strangers who had put up with us; was a long time before we found them; they were hid away under their bed, backside near the wall; they were very much frightened, having $1,500 with them (Continental money, which was then good—this was about 1776). They were very thankful for their deliverance. The same robbers had a short time before robbed a tenant house on our premises. It was afterwards found out who the robbers were; they were arrested, tried and punished by putting on them the chemises they had stolen from our tenant, putting them on horseback and marching them off in that style on the road starting from our farm. I was present when they marched away. One of the robbers was a neighbor and is still living (9 mo., 1840) in this neighborhood, but from shame has not showed himself out of his house these 30 years.

One evening, being detained at work in the fields, on my return towards the house and when a little west of the house, I suddenly (it being dark) found myself stepping on some men and was much frightened. These men (about 100) were lying flat on the ground. Their quarters were at the house now occupied by Joshua Carpenter. An officer stepped up to me and inquired who I was and where I was going. I replied that I lived in the house nearby and had been detained at work, that I was then on my way home. He made me promise to say nothing about what I had seen and then let me go. Their object was apparently to prevent a surprise or to intercept some enemy.

Joshua Husen was a notorious character in the Revolution. He was connected with the British Army, though a native of his town (Yorktown). He frequently passed through the American Army acting as a spy and carrying his information to Canada. Rochambeau's Army lay encamped in Yorktown about six weeks. It had not been there one week before Husen passed through it. He frequently lay in ambush and shot down American officers or others whom he disliked. All efforts to secure him were unsuccessful, though large rewards were offered for his apprehension. At length he with his confederates broke into the house of Seth Whitney (now Barney Montross), abusing and beating him bodily, and carried away everything they wanted. Husen told Whitney that he would come again and then would kill him. The old man (Whitney) fixed a bayonet to a rake handle, determined to kill Husen should he come again. At length Husen came once more, but for the last time. Whitney's wife told Husen he had better not come into the house, for her husband would kill him. But disregarding her, he tried to break in; when about half through the window Whitney stabbed him just below the breastbone, making a wound about one and one-half inches deep. Husen, notwithstanding, got into the room and beat Whitney until he was thought dead. Husen and his fellows then got on their horses and rode away. At first the family believed Whitney dead, but after a time they were successful in restoring him and he soon got well. When I saw him the day after the beating he was dreadfully bruised. Husen's wound proved much more serious than he at first supposed, for he bled internally, and when within 20 rods of our house he said, "I am a dead man," and fell from his horse dead. His comrades applied to some Tories in the neighborhood, who took the body and buried it about eighteen inches deep under an apple tree in Veil's orchard, on the east side of the road. The next day they dug another grave behind the hill in the woods southeast of William Smith's house, a very out-of-the-way place. To conceal the grave they cut down a tree, making it fall over the grave. Five months afterwards it became generally known that Husen was buried there. The neighbors dug him up and crowds of people came (some from a great distance) to see the body, for he was a terror to the whole country around. They wanted to satisfy themselves that he was really dead. I was proposing to hang the body on a gibbet, but it was partially put back into the grave, where it probably remained undisturbed. Several of the men who first buried him were afterwards discovered to be the same that robbed our tenant house and intended robbing us. Whitney, as a reward for killing Husen, was exempt from taxes during the remainder of his life. This Husen was of the same family as the man who was hanged on a gibbet for instigating the negroes' insurrection in New York City.

Rochambeau, while in our neighborhood, had his headquarters at my father's house. The generals always dined together, dining alternately at each others' quarters; once a week they dined at our house. Great preparations were made for the dinner, they having a French cook who had served in the kitchen of a French King, and he had ten assistants.

One morning a man came running to our house saying that the party of Americans under Col. Greene, who were quartered at Danford's (now Joshua Carpenter's), consisting of 50 men, were all killed or wounded. It appeared the British Light Horse, each rider with another behind him, had surprised the Americans immediately after they had called in the sentinels in the early morning and had killed or wounded them as they lay in their tents, which were picketed around the house. At this time there was a party of Americans stationed at our house commanded by a Lieutenant, but it was probably unknown to the British, or they might have cut them off at the same time. Had they attacked the house the family would have been in great danger, for some of the boys were in bed with the officers, and in the confusion it was scarcely possible that all would have escaped uninjured. I often thought of making the house musket-proof by casing the outside with logs.

The house of James Quinby (who married sister Hannah) at Westchester, now Pearsall's, was often robbed during the Revolution and the family had a place of concealment to which they fled whenever the house was attacked. One night Robert Underhill (my brother), James Underhill and Isaac Mekeel (who afterwards married sister Hannah when a widow) were at James Quinby's house when Robert proposed defending the house when the robbers came, provided James would assist him. That very night the robbers came, sure enough, but the heart of James failed him and he fled with the rest. Robert, however, provided himself with a large club and arranged the chairs along the entry. Then he commenced a violent attack on them, striking them with his club, stamping and making all the noise he could, as though there were fifty men inside the house. He struck against the door and dared the robbers to come on, saying, "We are ready for you," etc. He then went upstairs and blew a conch. The robbers fired a volley at the house, but missed him. They then went off; afterwards they reported that they thought the Devil was in the house.

The British Army had possession of New York. Their northern lines were at Kings Bridge; the American lines were at Croton River, about 25 miles north of the British lines. The district between was occasionally occupied by each party and by thieves and murderers, but few of the former inhabitants of this district chose to remain at home. There being no cattle to eat the pasture, the grass grew to a great height, so that it fell down and rotted on the ground from year to year.

In 1777, we being just above the American lines, the cowboys stole from us 14 head of cattle and drove them to Morrisania. Mother, on horseback, traced them to the British lines. She then determined to appeal to the British generals who were quartered at Harlem Heights. When she arrived at Kings Bridge she met standing as sentinel the same light horseman that was posted sentinel at the door of our house when the British came past after the roof of our house was blown off. He recognized her and she him. He kindly led her horse across the bridge. She gave him a Pistereen and went on her way to the General's quarters. She proved to the General's satisfaction that her husband was one of the people called Quakers, who took no part in the war. He then gave her an order to the cowboys either to return the cattle or pay for them. She went to Morrisania and showed the cowboys the order of the General and demanded the cattle. This put the robbers in a great rage and they threatened to kill her and her family. Mother thought it too dangerous to carry the money home with her through the neutral grounds and concluded to deposit it with Israel Underhill, a particular friend of hers, living at Westchester, who hid it in a stone wall on his farm and gave it back to mother after she reached home in safety. The object of her journey was, however, known to the people of our vicinity and the skinners afterwards came to the house and enquired how she succeeded about the cattle. She told them. They then tried by some kind of agreement to get the gold from her, for they dare not take it by force. Mother told them she had left it at Westchester. They told her she had done well, but was a fool for leaving the money at Westchester.

At another time the cowboys stole three horses from us and took them to Morrisania. Mother followed them again on horseback and went to the commanding officer, who compelled the robbers to give them up, so she returned home leading the three horses.

Brother Robert had a notion of entering into business and bought a quantity of goods on credit, offering them for sale in the east room (front) of father's house, brother Joshua being clerk for him. They remained there about one year. Robert then married Mary, daughter of Jesse Hallock, and moved his goods to her father's house on the farm now occupied by William Parker (1848), not far from Hallock's Mills; a year after he took Joshua and myself into partnership. Joshua being just about of age, we afterwards bought the farm and continued there about six years, carrying on a large business for that time, putting up four or five hundred barrels of pork and beef during a season. Sister Mary kept house for us until she married. In 1792 we took a lease from Van Cortlandt & Co. of the mill site at mouth of Croton River, and built a mill of six run of stone. After the mill was finished Joshua moved to New York to buy wheat for the mill and to sell the flour manufactured from it. Robert and myself lived at the mill to attend the business there. In 1804 Robert sold out his one-third of the mill and bought Tellers Point, to which place he moved his family and lived there until his death. He was an approved minister of the Society of Friends. Tellers Point yet belongs to two of his sons. Joshua continued to reside in New York until his death in 1839. The lease of the mill site expired in 1813. The improvements were appraised, each party selecting one appraiser and the two a third, namely: Van Cortlandt, a farmer by name Anderson; the Underhills, Samuel Mott, large flour merchant and miller in New York, and these two selected David Lydig, the large dealer in flour and most extensive mill owner in the city. Their appraisement the Van Cortlandts refused to abide by. A suit was commenced against them, which was not finally settled until 25 years had elapsed and all the original parties were dead. I removed to Amawalk and resided on the old homestead until I bought the farm adjoining belonging to the estate of my brother Moses, and on which I now live.

Memorandum of an interview had with Mrs. Merritt Trimble of 55 East 25th Street, New York City, daughter of Walter Underhill, son of Joshua Underhill, on Saturday afternoon, May 25, 1901:

By D. HARRIS UNDERHILL

Says she went to England and visited the house of Edward Underhill, the Hotgospeller. Gate house is still standing that came down from his time. She has a silhouette of Mary S. Underhill that belongs to Lizzie Wood, which she will loan with her consent.

The portraits of Joshua and Mary S. are in the possession of Mrs. Eliot (daughter of Abraham S. Underhill), who lives in Baltimore, but is now in Europe. Joshua Underhill bought No. 9 Cherry Street, New York, in 1802. Alexander Hamilton's garden was sold in lots and built to the corner of Dover Street.

The felt hat that Sarah Underhill, wife of Isaac Underhill, wore when she went to General Washington's headquarters is somewhere in the family.

Mrs. Merritt Trimble lived at 57 East 25th Street, next to her sister, Lydia G. Lawrence.

She was a very pleasant old lady and, after a talk on family matters, she gave me a typewritten account of her grandfather, Joshua Underhill, and his house, which she had written in 1890.

This article on Joshua Underhill and his house at No. 9 Cherry Street, New York, was written by Mrs. Merritt Trimble in 1890:

"What I remember about our grandfather's house: Written out for myself, my sisters and my cousins; therefore, while some of the incidents are entirely personal, I have put down almost everything that I distinctly remember, because the telling of my recollections may interest the others, even when the special occurrences concerned only myself; or what was said or done may be characteristic of our common relatives.

Our grandfather's house was on Cherry Street, at its entrance from Franklin Square. The lot was irregular in shape and I was always trying in my mind to twist the parlors into right angles. The entrance from the street was low, perhaps up two steps; the front room was the parlor, and the back parlor was used as the dining room. There the long table was set, at which infrequently our grandfather was seated with his eleven children and three sons and one daughter-in-law. Our Aunt Eliza always sat opposite to her father at the table. The provision was abundant and well cooked, although, of course, very plain. I remember they used to eat green peas when they were in season, and eat them from soup plates, served in a tureen. I also remember the delicious sponge cake which my aunt made.

Our grandfather was a stern, grave man, of strong prejudices and great uprightness. His gentle wife had died, leaving him with this large family of children, and, though he had most devoted and efficient help from his two daughters, the heavy duty of providing for them all rested on him. I remember my father once made out from my grandfather's books some approximations to the amount he had expended in the course of forty years in the support of his family, and it came to a great deal of money, so much that I am afraid to name the sum, as I remember it, simply and carefully and with unsparing personal exertion, as everything was done. There were eleven pair of little feet to provide shoes for and eleven heads to be covered as well as mouths to be fed. One child had died in infancy. Of those living seven were daughters, and four only were sons. While I knew that my grandfather was silent and might be severe, I have one personal recollection of him that always makes me smile. I was sitting by him on a high cushion in my chair at the foot of his long tea table one summer afternoon. I remember now how light and bright the room was when he said, "Sister, put some butter on thy sponge cake." It was unheard of indulgence for me, and I felt that I liked him, if I was afraid of him. I have no other distinct recollection of him except as he used afterward to sit at my father's table once a week to eat Nantucket chowder, which my mother had made for him, until he lay dead in the back parlor of the Market Street house, the winter my father and mother and Aunt Sarah were in the West Indies.

I have been told that when our grandparents moved to the Cherry Street house there were no buildings between them and the East River, and from the rear windows they could see across to Brooklyn Heights (where the year I was ten years old we spent the summer), but when I remember the house, what seemed to me then a deep garden, where Isabella and white sweet grapes ripened on a wooden arbor which covered a brick pathway to the farther end and ran across the foot of the yard, was shut in by great bonded warehouses with heavy iron shutters. These were a mystery and almost a terror to us children, and when I slept in the third story back room, I always looked out at them the last thing before my early bedtime and the first thing in the morning. Such double lady slippers as grew in that garden, coriopsis and blue campanula!

The tall wooden pump had a screen of red and white cypress flowers, with their delicate leaves all around it, trained on cords and running to the top, and I think I remember deep red dahlias with their velvet petals in the autumn. The basement entrance on the front was down a few steps into what was called the front cellar, and by the side of the door was the wooden pipe and great faucet of the Manhattan Water Co. The large kitchen was the back room, where a great deal of good food was prepared, and where I once fell into a tempest of rage when I found the volume of the "Arabian Nights," bound in the leather which was my heart's delight, half consumed in lighting the brick oven. My Aunt Eliza had thought it best to dispose of it in this way. I also remember where the whole family of sisters were gathered here, making our Aunt Mary's wedding cake. She, who sat by and was not allowed to share in the work, said she would like to have a ring in the bride's cake. The Irish cook, who had been a long time in the family, either in simplicity or mockery brought an iron ring on which flat-irons stood, and we all shouted with laughter.

Aunt Mary had a delicate gold ring in her cake, which I believe was given me years after by my Aunt Hannah, who probably received it at that time. I have one more recollection of the kitchen floor of that house. One of our uncles had some Guinea pigs and I remember with great disgust how the little ones burrowed in the cellar and entry. The second story front room was all across the house, twenty-five feet wide, with three windows, and in the closet of that room the great loaves of Aunt Mary's wedding cake were kept until it was time to frost them. I remember sleeping in the big bed with moreen curtains in that room, but the back room on the third floor was the place where I was most at home. The front room belonged to our uncles; and in his top bureau drawer our Uncle Abram kept rock candy which he gave us, and we adored him.

Anna Taber and I were very fond of making wonderful head-dresses of cut and curled newspapers, and the only drawback to this pleasure was that Aunt Ann always made us pick up the scraps. One day I was at work there alone and I was very much in hopes she would do it for me, so I said, "There is one thing I would very much like," but she replied, "If it is that I should pick up thy cuttings, thee must do it thyself." I felt frightened that she had read my thought.

There was a garret on the third floor, where were all sorts of treasures; among other things, the felt hat which perhaps our great-grandmother, Sarah Underhill (?), wore when she rode on horseback to Washington's headquarters to get back her cows which the cowboys had stolen. When I saw the hat I always remembered how she got them and drove them home. There was also a painful mysteriousness about the garret, because there were several low beds in the open space, where we were told colored men and women who were running away from cruel masters in the South sometimes slept, and were fed and sent on their way. I either remember, or so often imagined that I cannot distinguish it from memory, that I once saw two black faces with woolly heads on their way from this place to refuge.

Samuel Leggett was the next door neighbor to my grandfather's home. Then came the Tweed chair store and factory, where an English lady had a small school for little girls in the second story front room, to which I was sent during a long visit to my aunts, and we passed through the room where the chairs were to go upstairs, I remember Boss Tweed as a slender youth at his work. Our friends and acquaintances lived all around that neighborhood. Thomas Buckley, across Franklin Square, in what seemed to me then a very stately home. The Collins' grocery store, where the produce of free labor was sold, was on the corner. Washington's headquarters, a large double house, grand in its day, was across Cherry Street. It was afterwards Pond's music store. Samuel Wood's house was below on the same side. Hannah Hauxhurst's boarding house was farther down Pearl Street, with the Walton house next door. I remember some of the neighbors, who were my aunt's acquaintances, came in sometimes to call in very fine bonnets of Miss Lawson's make, and with handsome cloaks put on over untidy collars and sleeves, and how much better I thought my aunt's simple dress looked. The younger sisters wore short-waisted white dresses in the afternoon, which I thought were lovely. Our Aunt Jane was a very handsome woman, the beauty of the family.

Of the brothers and sisters of our grandfather and grandmother I only remember Great-Uncle Caleb, who lived at Amawalk with fair, handsome Aunt Susie, his wife; our Uncle Abram and pretty Aunt Rebecca; Uncle Robert's widow, Aunt Mary, at the Point; Aunt Hannah Mekeel, a very large woman; Uncle Moses and Aunt Rebecca Sutton, sitting side by side in their armchairs at their home at Croton Lake, and little bright-eyed Aunt Anne, Uncle Moses' widow and the mother of Abram M. Underhill. There were over sixty first cousins of my father's, most of whom I remember.

I was very much struck yesterday with the way in which our Aunt Sarah's countenance lost its individual expression and put on the family liniaments. This has made me think of what that family type was in the generation that has almost passed away, modified, of course, in each individual. I recognize its valuable and estimable qualities, and its integrity and love of truth, its loyalty and energy. I also realize the capacity for strong feeling, which requires equally strong good sense to control it. It has seemed to me that the most striking characteristics of our aunt, who has just passed away, was her good sense.

In 1815 Hannah I. Quinby made a will, which she never signed, and made her brothers Joshua and Caleb executors and in which she mentioned her daughters, Sarah and Elizabeth Quinby, not of age. No husband is named, but she states that if both daughters die before 21 years of age she wishes her estate divided into eight equal shares, and "my sisters, Rebecca Sutton and Mary Quinby, and my brothers, Robert, Abraham I., Joshua and Caleb Underhill, have one share each and that the heirs of my brother, Moses Underhill, have two shares between them." The date of her will cannot be correct (1815), for her marriage certificate distinctly states 1818, as is given in the Quaker Records of Amawalk; also she mentions her step-daughter, Amy Mekeel, in her will.

James Quinby made his will 26, 7, 1797, date of proof not given in the Underhill Manuscript, in which he names wife Hannah; sister, Elizabeth Bowne; sister, Phebe Barton; daughter Amy, not 18; son Aaron, not 21; mentions possibility of another child. Executors, brother Josiah and wife Hannah.

It is dated 14, 10 mo., 1818, at Westchester, N. Y., and the marriage was at a public meeting of the Society of Friends in that place.

Letter from James Quinby to his future wife, Hannah I. Underhill:

Loving Friend:

These lines I suppose are very unexpected to thee, as they were to me till of late, as I fully intended to have paid thee a personal visit, but my way at present seems much shut up. I hope the cause is nothing more than a fear of being thought too forward by some, which I ever hope to avoid and, thinking that Quarterly Meeting is shortly coming on, am in hopes of being favored with thy company, perhaps at Uriah Field's. Thou art a young woman I have a great regard for, and hope (if it is the Will of Providence) to be much nearer acquaintance with. It has not been a very small cross to bear, to have not paid thee the intended visit at this time, but so it is, the Cause I must leave, except it proceeds from what is already mentioned. Please to accept of my very affectionate love, which I feel in penning these lines, and if thou feels freedom, Remember me to thy father and mother, with thy brother Abraham, whom, I am informed, is expected to be at this Monthly Meeting of yours.

From thy affectionate friend,

JAMES QUINBY.

1170 Abram Hiram, born 1787, settled in 1809, Mt. Moriah, N. Y. He is not found in the Vermont vitals.

Letters written by Dr. John W. Underhill of Van Wert, Ohio, in 1886, state that Isaac in 1801 left Dorset and went to Chittenden County, Vt., where his eldest son Jacob had settled, but returned to Dorset shortly before he died; that in or about 1797 the Legislature gave the name of Underhill to the town where they resided, there being North and South Underhill as well as Underhill Center. North Underhill was changed to Underhill Station.

The first marble quarry in Vermont was opened by Isaac Underhill in 1785. He took special notice of the outcroppings of white stone about the premises of Reuben Bloomer in South Dorset, and thought that they would make good fire-jams, hearths, lintals and chimney-backs for the great fireplaces of the day. Accordingly he went to work with such crude methods as he could devise. As marble saws had not been introduced, the quarrying process was very laborious; only such places could be opened up as abounded in seamy strata from four to seven inches thick. He was later joined in this enterprise by Reuben Bloomer and John Manley.

His gravestone styles him Captain, but the Vermont Revolutionary War Rolls, page 156, simply state, "Col. Ira Allen's Regiment of Militia for services done in defense of the frontiers the 22nd of March, 1780, Isaac Underhill, 6 days, 60 miles."

413 JAMES UNDERHILL, son of (120) Abraham and Mercy (Paddock) Underhill, was born in 1761, and in 1791 married Love Sykes of Dorset, Vt., born Aug. 7, 1768, Suffield, Conn., and died Feb.

After the death of James Underhill, his widow with her children, under the protection of his brother David, moved in 1816 to Norwalk, Ohio. In 1836 or 1837 the family removed to Branch County, Mich., and settled near Coldwater and Algansee.

+1173 David, born 1798.
+1174 Mary, born 1803.

+1176 Isaac, born 1805.
1177 Altha, died Dorset, Vt., in March, 1814, aged 10 years; another account says 10 months.

James Underhill was a recruiting sergeant, page 792, Vermont Revolutionary War Rolls: "Acc't of Abraham Underhill, Nov. 22, 1781, for keeping James Underhill when sick in State Service, 67 days."

James Underhill enlisted in the 4th Sub-Legion of the United States Army on March 1, 1792, and was mustered in March 5, 1792, for the purpose of another northwestern campaign under the command of General Anthony Wayne. He drilled the soldiers of the Legion, and made himself useful other ways in military tactics, having had experience under his father, Capt. Abraham of Vermont, in the American Revolution. General Wayne recommended James as lieutenant to General Washington, but the appointment was not concurred in by the United States Senate, but on March 19, 1793, he received the commission with rank and pay to date from March 5, 1792. It did not reach him until after his arrival with the army at Fort Washington, Oct. 6, 1793. On July 28, 1794, the army commenced their march to what was later called Fort Defiance.

Twenty-four miles northeast of Fort Recovery General Wayne built and garrisoned a post which he named Fort Adams in honor of the Vice-President, Aug. 2, 1794. Here Lieut. Underhill, with one hundred picked men, were left in command for three months. In 1795 there was a general treaty. Fort Adams was situated 12 miles east of the Indiana State line in Mercer County, Ohio, in the town of Dublin, on the south side of St. Mary's River, about 11½ miles north of the present city of Van Wert, Ohio. Traces of the fort may still be seen.

Lieut. Underhill was honorably discharged June 7, 1796, and returned to his home in Dorset, Vt.

414 DAVID UNDERHILL, son of (120) Abraham and Mercy (Paddock) Underhill, was born in Westchester County, N. Y., and in 1816 removed to Ohio, where he was one of the founders of Norwalk and a major of the militia, and where he died Oct. 5, 1841. She died there Dec. 1, 1850.

+1185 David, born Aug. 10, 1808.
+1186 Sarah Louisa, born June 25, 1810.

The Council of Appointment, page 415, shows David was Second Lieutenant of Militia in Herkimer County, N. Y., in 1798, and page 647 another is appointed to take his place, as "he is about to move."

From the manuscript of Dr. J. W. Underhill of Van Wert, Ohio:

"In the county of Herkimer, N. Y., Major David settled in 1791, upon land in the town of Norway. He cleared up his farm and afterwards another in the same county before coming to Ohio in 1810.

He purchased thirty-six hundred (3,600) acres in Ridgefield Township, Huron County, Ohio, at seventy-five cents an acre in 1812, when he made a beginning on the land by building a log cabin on the banks of the Huron, where the saw mill still stands near the waterworks of Norwalk.

While at work he distinctly heard the engagement with British on the river below the fort, and went to his neighbor, Esquire Abbott, to consult about the surrender of General Hull at Detroit.

Family tradition further says "that a messenger soon after arrived with the report that the British and Indians had been seen landing at Huron and the inhabitants sought safety in immediate flight." They all started southward, but before traveling far were overtaken by a party of men, at first supposed to be forces of the enemy, but proved on inquiry to be the released prisoners of General Hull on their way to Mansfield.

They were the party which disembarked at Huron and the majority of the fleeing inhabitants returned to their homes.

Until the removal of his family in 1816 Major Underhill made an annual trip to his Western purchase, mostly bringing with him a stock of goods which he could sell on the journey, and taking back a stock of furs which he could sell on the journey.

In 1815 he was accompanied by his son-in-law, Horace Morse; Levi Cole and son, and Dr. Joseph Pierce on his western trip. In that year he built a part of his double log house, at the raising of which all the men in the country within a radius of fifteen miles attended, and yet the number, including the party mentioned, was only sixteen. He arrived with his family Feb. 22, 1816, his log cabin furnishing temporary shelter during his absence to Martin Kellogg and family.

Major David Underhill's was the usual stopping place for the judges and some of the lawyers (Platt and Benedict accommodating the rest) during the sessions of the Court in the early days of Norwalk.

A few years after his purchase the Major sold to some friends in the East all but six hundred and twenty acres at an advance upon cost of fifty cents an acre. He subsequently owned with two other men the third section of the town of Bronson, but disposed of that also.

In the fall of 1817 he erected a saw mill near where he lived, which was one of the first saw mills in the country, and which for many years did an extensive business.

During the first years of their settlement the family suffered much from ague. The country in its new and undrained condition was unhealthy, and the erection of the mill dam made it still worse, in the vicinity of the dwelling, as it caused an overflow of the river bottom.

In 1822 he removed to a more healthful location, that in which his son Isaac lived after his death in 1841, and which his family still occupies.

Major Underhill's career was one of great activity and usefulness, and he was esteemed as an honorable man and an enterprising citizen.

Isaac, his son, born in 1805, always remained at home with his father, followed his footsteps as a trader, and prospered in his speculations, and did not take to himself a wife until after his mother's death in 1850, consequently he was 51 years of age when Isaac M., his oldest son, was born in 1856.

He was greatly esteemed as a man of great excellence and purity of character by all who knew him.

David, his younger brother, was a bright young man when many years ago he was thrown from a horse, injuring his brain and otherwise shocking his system, gradually resulting in mental derangement, from which he never recovered. He died in 1882, aged 74 years."

He died there July 22, 1846, and they are buried in Maple Hill Cemetery, where his gravestone styles him "Honorable."

Issue (born in Dorset, Vt.):

+1234 Sally B., born Jan. 1, 1800.
+1235 Polley C., born March 17, 1803.
+1236 Asa Baldwin, born June 25, 1806.
+1237 Clarissa H., born Nov. 27, 1809.
1238 John, born Dec. 13, 1813.

After Asa Baldwin's death in 1806, the Baldwin homestead became the property of the Underhills and there, for nearly fifty years, John Underhill served the community in many conspicuous ways. He was Town Clerk in 1826, Town Representative from 1815 to 1822, inclusive; Probate Judge and Justice of the Peace. Charm and dignity characterized him. He was what one calls "a gentleman of the old school." Children loved him and were never happier than when in his arms. He was an Elder in the Quaker Society. The breeding of fine horses was one of his avocations, and he produced a stud which became famous throughout southwestern Vermont.

Asa Baldwin was Dorset's most conspicuous Tory. He acquitted himself as a loyal man should, not yet convinced of the wisdom of the Revolutionary cause. A great deal of courage it must have taken to oppose the prepondering public sentiment. When General Burgoyne was in Saratoga in 1777, Asa saddled the finest horse that he possessed and rode over to the British camp to declare his allegiance. He was a man of unusual charm and culture; we are glad to think of the good impression he made. Being graciously entertained by the General overnight, he undoubtedly established Dorset's reputation for wisdom and wit. We only hope that he proved himself a good sport when calling for his horse the next morning, for he was confronted by an old and sorry nag. "Surely," said Burgoyne, "a loyal subject will be glad to give a good horse to the King."

As a result of this episode he was considered a dangerous character and was arrested at his farm and taken to Bennington. The blow to his wife (first) was severe. She immediately packed a few articles and started for Bennington, one child in front of her on her horse and one behind. She overtook her husband before he reached the prison, but was subjected to the dire necessity of journeying alone from Bennington to the residence of her parents, somewhere in Dutchess County, N. Y. He was released Dec. 12, 1777. It is evident he did not immediately return to his farm, because his home was occupied during his absence by General John Strong, who had been driven from his home by the Indians. Asa Baldwin evidently saw the light in due time, because he came back to Dorset, became a respected citizen in the community, and held some of the town offices.

426 POLLY C. UNDERHILL, daughter of (122) Augustine and Jerusha (Bloomer) Underhill, was born July 16, 1775, and married in 1794 Charles Cushman, who died in Rhinebeck, N. Y., May 1, 1849. He was born in Bennington, Vt., June 24, 1773, son of Charles and Desire (Branch) Cushman of New Preston, Conn., and married, second, in 1804, Mrs. Ann Johnson of White Creek, N. Y. Rufus King graduated from Harvard in 1777; served in the Revolutionary War; Member of Congress from Massachusetts; United States Senator from New York State, and Minister to England for eight years.

Article copied from The Living Church, December 10, 1921:

The historic Grace Church of Jamaica, Long Island, gave a most unusual entertainment on the evening of November 16th. The meeting was held in the parish house, apart from the social gathering, which was also a feature of the evening, and was devoted to the dedication of the auditorium called the King Room, and the unveiling of a bronze tablet "in appreciation of services rendered" to the parish by five generations of the King family. In the early days of the Church, when it was struggling for its existence, the Hon. Rufus King, the first Ambassador to England, came to encourage and succor it by his interest, influence and generosity. The Governor of New York, John A. King, the son of Rufus King, continued his father's work in his devotion to the welfare of the parish, and a Senator of New York, John A. King, was again identified with the Church's interests. Miss Cornelia King and Miss Mary Rhinelander King gave most generously to the Church; and at the present time there are representatives of the King family who continue to manifest the interest in the Church and parish. This interest, started one hundred and twenty years ago, when Rufus King first settled in Jamaica, completed five generations of the King family who have contributed of their means and personal service to help make Grace Church the potential factor that it has become in Jamaica, Queens County and Long Island.

At the unveiling of the bronze tablet a dedicatory prayer was offered and the Doxology was sung. The tablet bore this simple inscription:

THE KING ROOM

Commemorating the devoted interest of five generations

This Tablet is erected by the children of the parish.

After the dedication of the tablet Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer read a paper of unusual historic interest dealing with various episodes in the King family history, and telling especially of what the women of the family, beginning with Mary Alsop King, the wife of Rufus King, have done for their country. To this family belong some of the women who blazed the trail for hospital work by nurses and other philanthropic work.

The address by the rector, the Rev. Rockland Tyng Homans, after paying tribute to the family in whose honor the entertainment was given, traced the history of the parish briefly, from its origin two hundred and nineteen years ago, to the present time, dwelling particularly on its historic position.

Rufus King, in the Revolutionary War in 1778, served as a volunteer with rank of Major in the expedition against Rhode Island. When peace came he was a member of the General Court of Massachusetts in 1783, and was a delegate to the old Congress sitting at Trenton, N. J., 1785-6. In 1787 he was a delegate to the Convention in Philadelphia, and was one of the members to whom was entrusted the duty of making the first draft of the Constitution of the United States. He was described at that time as the most eloquent man in the country. In 1789 he was elected to the State Legislature, where he was an earnest advocate of the Jay Treaty with Great Britain. Together with his close friend, Alexander Hamilton, he published a series of brilliant pamphlets on mercantile and maritime affairs. In 1796, in recognition of his endeavors for international amity, he was appointed Minister Plenipotentiary to Great Britain, a post he occupied during the administration of John Adams, and part of that of Thomas Jefferson, until 1804, when he returned home and purchased the Christopher Smith farm on Long Island. He intended to spend the remainder of his days as a country gentleman, but in 1813 he was elected to the Senate by a Legislature opposed to him politically. He was also, although an old man, nominated for Governor of New York and for the Presidency of the United States, in opposition to Monroe.

The Smith place he purchased is now known as the King Mansion, located in the heart of Jamaica, L. I. It was built about 1750 by Christopher Smith, and in 1896 was purchased by the town and is fitted up in part as a Colonial museum. The original fireplace and bake-oven are in the kitchen, and in the house may be seen excellent portraits of members of the King family. The rooms are furnished by different patriotic societies and are under the care of the King Manor Association.

The daughter, Henrietta F. Wanzer, born in Bethlehem, N. Y., April 12, 1874, was married in Slingerlands, N. Y., by Rev. Sturgess, June 22, 1904, to Theron S., born Jan. 12, 1877, La Grange, Dutchess County, N. Y., son of Cromline and Jane (Skidmore) Dean of that place. Issue (Dean): Alice Witbeck, born March 12, 1908, and Burtis Wanzer, born April 22, 1911.

Theron S. Dean of Burlington, Vt., writes on Feb. 20, 1927, that his great grandfather, Daniel Dean, born at Throggs Neck, Westchester County, N. Y., may have been related to the Underhills, particularly to Underhill Chatterton, as both went to Dutchess County soon after the Revolution and settled in Beekman, their part being later set off as Liberty and then La Grange. He married Elizabeth Leavens of Beekman; that he had never learned the ancestry of Daniel Dean; that Daniel occasionally "spoke in Meeting."

Phebe Underhill, wife of Moses Rushmore, did not learn to read and write until her eldest children went to school. For a number of years they lived on rented farms; once in Westerlo on the State road leading north from Chesterville to Albany, etc., where their son, Samuel Cary, was born. He was named for a neighbor and later dropped the name "Samuel" and was known as "Cary."

Phebe and her husband were buried in Friends' ground in Smith's Corners, which was a mere hamlet on the line between Rensselaerville and Westerlo.

Thomas, father of Moses Rushmore, was of the Long Island family and settled near Catskill, Greene County, N. Y. The Patroon Land Records show his purchase in what is now New Scotland, Albany County, about one mile east of the Village of New Salem, where the Bethlehem, later New Scotland Meeting House was located. Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, where many of his descendants are buried, covers part of his farm. He also owned a farm on Wolf Hill, on the Helderbergs, above New Salem Village, formerly known as Punkintown, where he located his sons after they married, the exact location of which is not now known.

On May 2, 1836, Moses Rushmore bought a 159-acre farm from William and Mary Campbell, lying between Rensselaerville and Westerlo, he living at time of purchase in Durham, Greene County, New York.

William H. Wanzer of 25 Bay View Street, Burlington, Vt., writes in 1927: "My sister, Mrs. Theron S. Dean, and I have two solid silver tablespoons, heavy, slightly worn from scraping the saucepan kettle, that belonged to Samuel Underhill and Phebe, his wife, married 1753. There were six. She willed them to three nephews, Wm. Davenport, Thomas Dodge and another. Wm. Davenport bought out the other two cousins' spoons for $1.50 each. William Davenport, born 1759, died 1826, married a Doty, not found in Doty family collections. This Wm. Davenport is my grandmother Rushmore's paternal grandfather. The other spoons are in possession of second cousins. My mother's aunt, who inherited them from her grandmother and aunt, thought Phebe's name was Davenport, but not certain. Evidently no issue."

John B. Coles in 1780 was a clerk for Thos. Buchanan & Co., but a few years later went into business on his own account at No. 12 Dock Street, now Pearl. In 1795, he was a large flour merchant and resided at No. 1 State Street, where the slip at Whitehall must have come within a few feet of his house. He served as Alderman 1797-1801 and 1815-1818. He resided at the above address until 1810, then moving to No. 2 State Street. His sons continued his business, later taking in their brother-in-law when the firm became Coles and Morris. One son Isaac U., resided in the old home at No. 1 State Street and Wm. at No. 2. In 1834 Isaac U. removed to 50 Bond Street, where he resided until 1851, and the old home was "hermetically sealed" for many years.

In 1825, he was appointed Collector of Customs and resided at Nos. 15 and 19 Peck Slip, from then until 1831, when he, with his wife and youngest children removed to Huron, Wolcott Township, N. Y., where their older children had already settled. Here he purchased a farm of 175 acres in 1832, on which he resided until 1852 when he sold it to Wm. Dunton of Wolcott and purchased a smaller one, one mile south of that town, on the road to Clyde, and died on that place. His first homestead at Huron, on the main road west of Wolcott, is now owned and occupied by Orrin M. Smith. The second has been razed and the farm is now owned by Albert Dobbin of Wolcott.

The following is a letter from William Underhill addressed to "'David Underhill and Son, The Port, New York," dated Baltimore, Dec. 19, 1797:

"Dear Father and Mother:

After leaving Wm. Seymour at Wilmington on 3rd day afternoon, I rode 21 miles that night and stayed at the head of Elk; next day, about 2 o'clock, crossed the Susquehannah on the ice which was so rotten that it was considered very dangerous, but I fortunately got over safe. Another horse in crossing a few hours later, fell through, but was got out after being considerably hurt. After crossing the Susquehannah I rode on, 12 miles, and stayed all night at Bush, a little town 26 miles from Baltimore, where I arrived next day at 3 o'clock. Soon after my arrival it began to rain which continued all that night and next day so I could not do any business until 7th day. I then went round and called on the tenants and received some money. On first day morning went to meeting, and in the afternoon dined with William Van Wyck.

Second day morning went round and settled with the tenants on the docks from whom I received 750 dollars. I have not yet settled with David Wilson, who has the care of the houses in old town, but expect this evening to receive from him 450 dollars. The corporation (city) has obliged two of the tenants on the docks to fill up their cellars on account of being prejudicial to the health of the city and which, with some other charges, has amounted to near 100 dollars.

On my arrival I immediately enquired for a city directory, to find Mr. Donah, but there being no such institution in this place, was obliged to take other methods. I enquired of my acquaintance, but could find no such man. At length, after going to a number of shopkeepers in that part of town which I thought most probably he lived, I found him in the same business he followed in N. York. After considerable persuasion and some threatening, he agreed to pay me 100 dollars in cash and give his notes at 3, 6 and 9 months for the rest; the greater part of which I believe we shall get, as he appears to be doing considerable business and to be very tenacious about the support of his credit.

I expect to set out for home tomorrow afternoon, and hope to be in N. York about the last of next week.

From your affectionate son,

WM. UNDERHILL."

A letter from Mary Elizabeth (Underhill) Rose of 302 S. Park Street, Streator, Ill., dated Dec. 26, 1895, states she is the only living member of John W. Underhill's family (1852), and that Samuel Underhill of Tonica, Ill., was her father's uncle (744); that James Hill's mother was Samuel's daughter.

744 SAMUEL UNDERHILL, son of (300) James and Clara (Quinby) Underhill, was born Nov. 14, 1795, in Dutchess County, N. Y., and married June 7, 1815, Deborah Story. He graduated from the Medical College in Albany in 1814. Removed to Massillon, Ohio, where he died Dec. 14, 1872.

Issue:

+1855 James Story, born 1816.
1856 Eliza.
1857 Mary Ann.

On April 7, 1838, Samuel and Deborah Underhill of Cleveland, Ohio, conveyed property to James S. Underhill of the same place. (Deeds, Cleveland, Liber Z, p. 289.)

On Dec. 1, 1847, Samuel Underhill and wife Deborah of La Salle County, Ill., conveyed property to James S. Underhill of Massillon, Ohio. (Deeds in Cleveland, O., Liber 42, p. 107.)

On March 9, 1848, James S. Underhill and wife Jane of Massillon, Stark County, Ohio, conveyed property to George Stewart. (Deeds in Cleveland, O., Liber 42, p. 107.)

Samuel Underhill attended the Albany Medical School and located first in Hudson, N. Y., where with his brother Abel he practiced medicine. About 1836 they removed to Ohio, where Samuel was physician to the social community at Zoar, while Abel practiced in Akron. Samuel later accepted the professorship of chemistry at Willoughby, but soon resigned and located in Cleveland, Ohio. He later bought a farm near Louisa or Hennepin, Ill., upon which he settled and he was also for a short period, professor of chemistry in St. Louis, Mo. At the end of three years and for many years prior to his death, he was a public lecturer and published works upon animal magnetism, clairvoyance, Spiritualism, etc.

The following items, taken from his book "Underhill on Mesmerism," by Samuel Underhill, M.D., LL.D., late professor of chemistry, etc., are of great interest. The book was published in 1868 and reprinted by a Mr. Weltmar of Nevada, Mo., in 1902, and the items given below were taken from it by Theron S. Dean in 1927.

Page 49, "I had published in 1829, a lecture on Mysterious Emotions, myself—"

Page 51, "My first lectures on the subject (Magnetism) were delivered at Willoughby (Ohio—about 20 miles northeast of Cleveland) to a medical class while occupying the chair of chemistry in that institution in 1834-5. I commenced my career of Public Lecturer, at Massillon (Ohio) in 1838."

(Think possibly he then lived in Cleveland, O.)

Page 135, he speaks of a son-in-law, Mr. Hill, and the death of the latter's daughter (his granddaughter). This in 1843.

Page 165, he speaks of having a slight knowledge of German, French and Latin.

Page 170, he says: "I was busy at work in my orchard digging potatoes, when for three days I was constantly conscious that a cousin in Westchester County, N. Y., was wanting something of me.

"I had stopped there the winter previous and found her insane. Had remained ten days and cured her. Had heard nothing from her for six months. I addressed her a letter demanding what she wanted. 'What art thou hagging me for? Tell me and if it is anything I can do, I will do it.' Now for the answer. 'I don't wonder at thy question at all for I have been so anxious to get a letter from thee, hoping thee would write a prescription for a difficulty of the kidneys—of which I am suffering, that I did not know how to wait.' "

(Note—he and the cousin used the "plain speech.")

Page 187, Referring to Spiritualism and Rappings: went with wife to Cleveland 6 mos. to investigate (evidently about 1852) became a writing medium myself and says: "Though I was now a preacher, among the Quakers or Friends, I got no money for preaching and made my living off my farm."

Page 188, At Galena (Illinois?) evidently preaching Spiritualism or knockings and was threatened with death by a crowd of men in hall.

Page 189, At Rock Island was fined $100. twice for preaching Spiritualism (?). States he then weighed 240 pounds, and with a man weighing 150 they stood on a table that lifted itself from the floor and moved across the room with them. The table itself weighed 150 pounds. Three children (mediums) surrounded the table.

a brother and a daughter, who had had excellent opportunities for investigation, affirming their conviction of the reality of spirits communing with mortals."

Evidently on the lecture tour when he was fined, his wife and a certain Abby Warner were with him—said Abby having been "prosecuted in Massillon (Ohio) for disturbing an Episcopal Church, on Christmas eve, by very loud rappings by which they contradicted much of what the preacher said."

"The above specially interesting to me because I attended Chappaqua Mt. Institute, a Quaker School in Westchester County, N. Y., in 1895-6 and the principal, Samuel Collins, had been very intimate with Horace Greeley and a lawyer named Williams, each of whom had a summer home near the village. The three attended seances, some together and according to the principal, Horace agreed with them that, if he died first and there was anything to Spiritualism, he would in some way communicate with the two survivors.

After some time had passed following Horace's death and no tidings, Mr. Williams said, "Now Horace is having such a good time he has forgotten to call back but I assure you Collins, that if I go next and there is anything to Spiritualism, I WILL NOT forget to let you know." But in 1895-6, Mr. Collins used to tell me he had never heard from either Horace or Williams.

Trusting that from all the foregoing you may find some stray item that will give you a clue,

Yours very sincerely,

THERON S. DEAN."

From the History of Cleveland, Ohio, Vol. 1, pp. 497-498:

DR. SAMUEL UNDERHILL

"Dr. Samuel Underhill, justice and publisher, was one of the most original characters of that day. He was a man of considerable education and delighted to be considered in advance of his age. He called himself a free-thinker and edited a small semi-weekly paper, The Liberalist, which was devoted to the spread of atheistic doctrines and arguments. The name of the paper he afterwards changed to The Bald Eagle, a journal noted for plunging its talons promiscuously into people, without regard to consequences, and it proved to be the Doctor's last journalistic venture. He said some harsh things about City Clerk Curtis and that official, without waiting for the tedious process of the law to right his wrongs, seized a sledgehammer and, rushing to the Doctor's office, proceeded to effectually reduce the primitive hand-press to metallic fragments. The Bald Eagle never recovered from the shock.

"Dr. Underhill kept well abreast of the new ideas of his time. When Mesmer's experiments were made known, he at once became an enthusiastic Mesmerist and talked very learnedly on the subject. He was also deeply interested in phrenology. At the time of the Canadian rebellion the doctor warmly espoused the cause of the rebels and would gladly have plunged this country into war on their behalf at a moment's notice.

"As a justice, the Doctor has handed down to posterity one learned decision which offers a most remarkable precedent. A citizen of Cleveland, a worthy man of German birth, desiring to visit the fatherland, placed all his earthly treasures, including his wife, in the care of a dear and trusted friend, and hied away across the ocean with a light heart. When he returned after a six months' sojourn he found, to his intense astonishment and grief, that the trusted agent had settled down on the property left in his care and, worst of all, had also assumed a proprietorship of the unobjecting wife. Astonishment and grief gave way to anger, and the injured husband sought Justice Underhill and began proceedings against the false friend. Sherlock J. Andrews, Esq., appeared for the plaintiff, and the defence was represented by Attorneys Moses Kelley and Hiram V. Willson. The case was briskly contested and then submitted to the justice. That astute official carefully summed up all the evidence and finally gave a verdict for the defendant. He said that as the principal had clothed the agent with absolute authority over all his belongings, desiring him to take his place in every particular, he (the justice) could not see that the agent had exceeded his authority in any respect. He therefore discharged the defendant. Not long before his death Dr. Underhill in 1859 renounced his atheistic belief. In person, the Doctor was a man of very large frame, stout, and with strongly marked features. For many years he was one of the noted characters pointed out on Cleveland streets."

1861 Clarence A., born 1872.

Abel Underhill was a graduate of the Albany Medical College and became a Spiritualist, and abstracts from his letters and his obituary given below are of interest.

Letters from Abel to Dr. John W. Underhill in 1885-1887:

"My grandfather was Nathaniel; father was James, born I think, in 1771 and aged 45 when he died. I have been told I was named after his cousin Abel, who lived since I can remember in Western, N. Y., I think east of Rochester, perhaps in Wayne County, but I am not certain. Then I knew Josiah Underhill, said to be related, in Hudson, N. Y. He taught school there for more than 20 years between 1810-1830. In the winter of 1822-3, I attended his select school. I think he taught the first school in that city. He had, I think, a nephew Abram who succeeded him.

My mother was Clara Quinby, daughter of Samuel of North Castle, N. Y. Soon after her marriage, moved to Dutchess County, in the now town of Hyde Park, four miles east of the Hudson River, near where the Crum Elbow Meeting House was located. My father was a blacksmith but had a farm here, where most of the family were born. There were 5 boys and 5 girls: (1) Nathaniel had 3 sons, John, James, Henry, and James lives in Canton, O., and has one son Arthur; (2) Samuel had one son James, who lives in Tonica, Ill., and has 3 sons, Samuel, James and Charles; (3) Abel lives in Akron and has son Clarence A.; (4) James has no living son; (5) Abraham.

Nathaniel, Samuel and Abraham all have farms. Samuel, Abraham and myself all studied and practised medicine. James still lives in Orange County, N. Y.; was a farmer and was 79 on March 5, last; I was 81 April 9, last, and sister Mary, living in Chicago, Ill., will be 88 this month; Abraham was over 70 when he passed on and Samuel near 78 and Ann over 50."

Another letter dated Akron, O., Sept. 5, 1885, states:

"I regret it will be impossible for us to be at your reunion on the 10th at Olmstead Falls. I am now engaged in marketing produce such as cucumbers, pickles, tomatoes, sweet corn and apples as well as melons, etc., and I go every other day to Akron and sometimes oftener. I have devoted much time for the last thirty years to the subject of Spirtualism. My wife is a good medium, they can control her physically, etc., so that we have free intercourse with friends in the next stage of being. I talk with spirits as freely as I do with persons. We live 2½ miles directly north of Akron. I am sending you a copy of The Algerine Captive, written by Dr. Updike Underhill, published in 1816, and ask that it be returned."

Another letter dated near Akron, O., Jan. 23, 1887, showing that he did not believe he or his family was descended from Capt. John, but having the old worn-out tradition of the three brothers, etc., and states:

"I still claim that our family are not from Capt. John. I learned from my mother that three brothers came over from England, one settled in New York, one on Long Island and one in Westchester County, N. Y. It is not necessary for me to repeat that I am a Spiritualist and that I have very free and satisfactory intercourse by talking with them and after having your last tracing from Capt. John, I asked for an interview with my father and mother, accordingly they came and in answer to my questions, and they said it was true, what my mother, etc., had said but appointed an evening the following week, when they would come again with our ancestors, even those who came from England. (My father died when I was 9 years old.) Accordingly they came and the story told me was proven true, etc., etc. This may not be satisfactory to you, but it is to me. I asked if there were any Underhills in Westchester County, not belonging to the three brothers, they said and thought there were, descended from Capt. John.

When a boy of about 12 to 15, I lived with my brother Dr. Samuel in Schoharie County, N. Y., and there I knew John Underhill, a Quaker, who had sons Joel and Solomon."

In a letter of April 11, 1887, he sends what appears to be a copy of a family Bible record, which dates, etc., agree with what is given in the Underhill Manuscript, and again mentions the spiritual interview with his parents.

In a letter of Jan. 21, 1887, to D. Harris Underhill, he practically repeats what is heretofore given.

The obituary notice of Dr. Abel Underhill, as taken from the Akron Daily Beacon of Sept. 12, 1887, is headed "Spirits at a Funeral. Dr. Underhill's own spirit with that of a late editor of the Cleveland 'Plain Dealer' present at the burial service yesterday" and reads as follows:

"The attendance at the funeral of the late Dr. Abel Underhill yesterday at his former residence on North Hill, about two and one-half miles north of this city, was one of the largest that has assembled in this section of the country for some time. He was known throughout Ohio as an advanced thinker and a leading Spiritualist. Many came by train during Saturday and some Sunday morning. The life of the man who had passed into the Spirit World was an even and at all times a well tempered man, he was always on the alert to keep up with the advancement of science and as a researcher for truth he sought light from whatever channel it was to be had. At the date of his death, which resulted from old age, Dr. Underhill was aged 83 years, five months and one day. He was born of Quaker parents in Dutchess County, N. Y. After passing through his school be began the study of medicine with his brother Dr. Abram (this should be Dr. Samuel) at Charleton, N. Y. After entering upon the practice of his profession he removed to Massillon, Ohio, studying carefully the work of his profession. In 1845 he became dissatisfied with the School of Medicine to which he had given his attention and interested himself in the water cure, achieving some remarkable results. Leaving Massillon, the doctor located in Cleveland and formed the acquaintance of J. W. Gray, Editor of the 'Plain Dealer.' After the death of Gray, Dr. Underhill came to Akron in 1863. He took up the subject of Spiritualism in earnest, for a thorough investigation in 1848. Satisfied with the results obtained, be became a firm believer and an ardent advocate of the 'new theory.' So successful was he in his work as a medium that around him centered all the believers in Spiritualism then residing in Northern Ohio and Underhill's Grove was from that time on known as the general meeting place, the last meeting being held in July last. In 1863 the doctor wedded in Quaker ceremony, Miss Electa Sandford of Hudson, the wedding taking place upon the farm owned by the doctor. Sanction to this union of hearts was given by the presence of General Lucius V. Bierce, now deceased, and at the time a Justice of the Peace. Mrs. Underhill, a son Clarence aged 16 years, and an adopted daughter survive him."

The paper then gives in full, the talk given by Mrs. Fanny O. Heizer of Ravenna, who spoke at length as a Spiritualist and said later that while she talked that Dr. Underhill was standing in spirit form by his wife and named others long since passed on who were also present in the same way. The paper continues, "Among the Spiritualists present were a number from abroad including John W. Underhill, ex-probate judge of Stark County, and his family, now residing in Canton, Ohio."

grandmother was the most beautiful woman he had ever known. There used to be chests in her grandfather's garret marked "U. S.," which were thought to stand for the United States, but proved to be meant for Underhill and Spencer, and had contained goods sent from New York to that firm; that her grandfather was one of the first wardens of St. John's Church in Canandaigua, which was not established until some years after his marriage.

The Council of Appointment, p. 924, shows Punderson B. Underhill was vice-sergeant of militia in New York County in 1807.

He was secretary to the commission which was charged with the adjustment of our difficulties with Spain and furnished leading articles for the Tri-States Union, a weekly paper of Port Jervis, N. Issue:

+2260 George Edgar, born Oct. 22, 1821.
+2261 James Austin, born Aug. 23, 1823.

Henry Underhill was a volunteer in the Mexican War and present at the Battle of Buena Vista, for which service he received 160 acres of land and a pension. He engaged in 1823 in the cotton business with his brother-in-law, John I. Mumford, at No. 1 Tontine Coffee House, and at the dissolution of the firm, moved to St. Louis, Mo., where he spent ten years. From there he went to San Antonio, Texas, and joined the army.

At the conclusion of the war he remained in Texas, and after the breaking out of the Civil War, his family were unable to hear from him. He passed some time with the Indians and when with the "Comanches" in Texas was honored with the sobriquet "Marmooski" or "Big Eyes."

The following letter was received from him, written from "John Scott's Farm, ten miles from Burnet, Texas," dated Jan. 23, 1866, showing that he was then in touch with his family:

"My dear son: About ten days since I wrote you and sent the letter to Burnet to be forwarded. As we have no mail this side of Austin, we cannot depend on receiving or forwarding letters with safety or dispatch, as you will perceive, when I inform you your letter of the 29th of October, 1865, and the Brooklyn Daily Eagle of Dec. 25th, together with the tracts and Herald with the account of the great fire came to hand only yesterday. The letter, tracts and newspapers were perused with great satisfaction except the unpleasant information of the deaths of my good sisters. Since the close of the Rebellion I have learned many things referred to in your letter—the rascality of Great Britain, the attempts to burn New York and the cruelty of the South to our soldiers, the attempt to assassinate the cabinet and the murder of President Lincoln. I agree with you that hanging was too good for the scoundrels and wish General Sherman had executed his wish to shovel 'Nassau' into the ocean. Having once crossed the Atlantic as a sailor boy in the James Monroe, a famous privateer in the War of 1812, I have a good knowledge of craft of all kinds and can hold a yarn with the gallant captain who is a member of your household. As soon as I can dispose of the little property I possess in Texas, for the fire and the war have reduced it almost to zero, I shall bid farewell to the climate and band of murders that outnumber the Union men who do not yet feel safe in the woods alone or alone on the roads. The mail contracts will be let next month from various parts of Texas to the different courthouses."

The eldest son of Henry Underhill, after hearing of his father's safety, invited him to come north and make his home with him. This he reluctantly did in 1866, after an absence of 33 years, and died surrounded by the surviving members of his family. He left one brother and one sister, three great grandchildren, two grandchildren and one son, James A.

Henry Underhill of New York City made his will May 4, 1866, which was proven Dec. 2, 1885, and recorded in New York, Liber 358, p. 181. He mentions: sons, George Edgar and James Austin Underhill, making them executors. Witnesses: Samuel A. Hays, M. Diefendorf and Thaddeus F. McCarthy.

888 ANGELINA UNDERHILL, daughter of (340) Anthony Lispenard and Clarina (Bartow) Underhill, was born at 44 Dey Street, New York City, Sept. 17, 1799, and married May 15, 1820, in New York City, at 44 Dey Street, by Rev. William P. Berrian, James, born Dec. 10, 1793, Dover, Del., died suddenly May 26, 1855, in St. Joseph, Mo., and buried in Mount Mora Cemetery, St. Louis, Mo., son of Dr. James Sykes, an eminent surgeon and physician. She died May 8, 1862, in Philadelphia and was buried in her father's vault in Trinity Churchyard, New York City. Their marriage is recorded in Trinity Church records.

Issue (Sykes):

The following account, from a newspaper clipping, of his life was furnished by Agnes White, his sister:

"General George Sykes, commanding the 20th Infantry, died Feb. 8, 1880, at Fort Brown, Texas, where his regiment has been stationed since 1877.

He was one of the oldest officers in the Regular Army in active service. He was appointed a cadet in the Military Academy at West Point, from his native state, Delaware, July 1, 1838, entered the army July 1, 1842, with the rank of brevet 2nd Lieut. of the 3rd Infantry. He served in the Florida War and at the first mutterings of the Mexican War the 3rd Regiment was ordered to Texas. It remained there until 1846, when the war with Mexico actively began and in this, young Sykes distinguished himself and was promoted to the rank of First Lieut., Sept. 21, 1846, and on the same day engaged in the Battle of Monterey, where he showed bravery and coolness. He participated in the twenty days' seige of Vera Cruz, March 9-29, 1847, and in the two days' battle of Cerro Gordo, April 17-18, of the same year. For gallant and meritorious conduct in this latter engagement, he was breveted Captain, April 18, 1847. He actively participated in the Battle of Centreras, Aug. 19-20, 1847; of Churubusco on the following day and in the operations before the City of Mexico and the capture of that important point, Sept. 12-14, 1847. After the capture of the city, he was made Commissary of Brevet Major General Twiggs' Division and served in that capacity to the end of the war. From this time until the beginning of the Civil War, Capt. Sykes was constantly in service in the more sparsely settled districts of the country, fighting Indians or escorting exploring expeditions or protecting the frontiers. In 1857, he was detailed on the expedition to explore the headquarters of the Gila, which were supposed to be teeming with gold and at the end of this expedition he again returned to Fort Fillmore. In 1858 he was ordered to frontier duty at Los Munas, N. M., and from there the following year to Fort Defiance in the same Territory. His last transfer previous to the breaking out of the Civil War was to Fort Clark, Texas, where he remained during 1860 and the early part of 1861. His record during the Rebellion was a noble one. He served throughout the war in the Union Army and on May 14, 1861, was raised to the rank of Major and assigned to the 14th Infantry. He was engaged in the Battle of Bull Run, July 21, 1861, and did not lose his head in the disastrous retreat of the Union Army on that occasion.

He brought his command back in good order and on Sept. 28, 1861, was made Brig. Gen'l of United States Volunteers. In March, 1862, he was attached to the Army of the Potomac and began active work. He was engaged in the seige of Yorktown, the Battle of Gaines's Mill, June 27, and the Battle of Malvern Hill, July 21. For the former he was made Brevet Colonel. He participated in the march from Fredericksburg to Bull Run in August and the Battle of Manassas, Aug. 29-30. In the Maryland campaign he fought bravely at the Battle of Antietam, Sept. 17, the skirmish of Shepherdstown, Va., Sept. 19. For his bravery in these engagements he was promoted to the rank of Major General, United States Volunteers, Nov. 29, 1862. He was engaged in the Battle of Fredericksburg Dec. 12-13, 1862, and the Battle of Chancellorville, May 2-4, 1863. In the Pennsylvania Campaign of June and July, 1863, he was assigned to the command of the 5th Corps and was an active participant in the three days' battle of Gettysburg, July 1-3. For his service at Gettysburg he was promoted to rank of Lieut. Col. of the 5th Regular Infantry, Oct. 16, 1863.

After the Pennsylvania Campaign he was kept in command of the 5th Corps and was engaged on the Rappahannock, the Rapidan and the movement on Centreville, October, 1863. He fought in the action at Rappahannock Station, Nov. 7, and in the engagement on the Rapidan and Mine Run, Nov. 24 to Dec. 1. These closed his active service in the field during the war. March 13, 1865, he was made brevet Brig. Gen'l, United States Army, and on the same date, for gallant and meritorious services in the field during the Rebellion, he was gazetted Brevet Major Gen'l, United States Army. Since the war he has constantly been in service, in fact, during his 42 years of army life he has had very little leisure time. From March 2 to Aug. 12, 1866, he was in command of a detachment of recruits for New Mexico, his old field of labor. From Aug. 12, 1866, to April 27, 1867, he was in command of his regiment at Fort Sumner, N. M., and from March 27 to June 27, 1867, in command of the entire district in New Mexico. In June he received leave of absence for three months, the only instance on record of his asking such a favor. At the expiration of this season of rest, he served on the examining board in this city from Aug. 1 to Dec. 31, 1867. He was promoted to the colonelcy of the 20th Infantry Jan. 12, 1868, and was in command of the District of Minnesota and from April 20, 1869, to Dec. 20, 1877, at Fort Snelling, Minn.

He was transferred to Fort Brown, Texas, and given command of the District of the Rio Grande Dec. 27, 1877, and here he remained until his death."

The description of his funeral in Brownsville, Texas, was given in great detail by "the Cosmopolitan Daily Telegrams" of that place, Wednesday, Feb. 18, 1880.

2264 Anna M., was born in Cambridge, Md., March 21, 1826, and married May 18, 1847, in St. Louis, Mo., George Clinton, son of General Philip Reed of Revolutionary fame. James Sykes Reed, son, was residing in Portland, Oregon, in 1901. Anna M. died in 1894 and was buried in that place.

Trinity Church Vital Records state that Enoch C. March was born in New Haven, Conn., and died in Jersey City, aged 67 years, buried April 24, 1860, which does not agree with what are apparently the family records.

The marriage of Enoch C. March to Augusta Antoinette Underhill (as recorded) is on record in Trinity Church and Rev. Wm. The following letter, dated Dec. 28, 1899, was written by (2563) Lydia G. Lawrence, daughter of Walter Underhill, who was residing at 57 East 25th Street, New York City:

"The great Christmas pressure has made it impossible for me to send what little information I have to give, until my return to New York.

I live half the year at Palisades, Rockland County, New York, and my life is much more complicated for that reason. I am sorry that I cannot give much information about my father's immediate ancestors, although I remember that before I was married, we sometimes entertained nearly a hundred cousins, etc., in the house, where I now live, built by my father, when there was very little city north of 25th Street. We lived before that down in East Broadway, and my father was sent to Congress by those who wished to avoid war, when the quarrel about slavery, made it seem inevitable. He would have advocated the purchase of the slaves by the Government and the transportation of all that were not valuable citizens to Liberia and the establishment there of schools and churches and industries.

During our residence in Washington, only two years, he made friends with both Northerners and Southerners and found many of both who seemed to agree with him. But the war was inevitable, although Alexander Stevens, afterward Vice-President of the Confederacy, had long and friendly talks with my father and seemed to agree that war would cost the country much more than the purchase of the slaves. When my father returned to New York he started the Bank for Merchants and Traders Savings and busied himself very much with the House of Refuge, the Public Schools, the Eastern Dispensary, etc.

He was a real New Yorker and lived in good health until over seventy years of age, leaving four children. My brother, a lawyer, who married the eldest daughter of C. A. Dana of the New York Sun; my sister, who married Merritt Trimble, President of the New York Hospital and of the Bleecker Street Savings Bank, and my sister Annie, unmarried.

I remember my grandfather Underhill as a powerful looking man, the father of eleven children, but the only portrait of him, I think, that exists, is owned by his son Abraham's daughter, Mrs. W. Eliot of Baltimore, Md. He was tall and broad-shouldered and so was every child he had, excepting the youngest daughter.

The house is a very Underhill place, simple and very comfortable, and my husband, Henry E. Lawrence, would not allow its Quaker look to be changed. * * * My children have lived half their lives in New York and have travelled a great deal over the ocean and in our own country. I have one daughter and an only son, who love the country better than they do the city."

Walter Underhill was a member of the Board of Managers of the Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents (House of Refuge), 1845 to 1866, and Treasurer and Vice-President of same, 1857-1866, and for the last thirteen years of his life President of the Mechanics and Traders Insurance Company of New York City. Letter dated Goodwin's Ferry, Yates County, N. Y., 13, 9, 1850, from Elizabeth C. Underhill to her son Moses Underhill, 447 Broadway, New York City:

"Agreeably to thy request I sit down to inform thee, and thy worthy Brothers and Sisters, how we get along. Thy Father got comfortably to Hector, but arrived so much sooner than I had looked for him, that he had to walk from Frog's Point, to Aaron Mekeel's, a distance of six miles, and found we had gone to Scipio, however disappointed he was, yet he visited around there until the time appointed for me to come, which was, the day after he arrived.

I was very much surprised when I found him with Aaron at Frog's Point waiting for me to land from the steamboat, but I can't tell you how glad I was to see him, so we visited till to-day the 13th, when Joshua Mekeel brought us to Goodwin's Ferry, where we took the ferry-boat and crossed the Seneca Lake two miles, as the steamboat does not stop on that side. Had a pleasant sail over, sailboat, and wind enough to rock some. We are now waiting for the steamboat at the ferry-house. I am sitting by a table with pen and ink that I have found there and using it without leave or license and John Robertson, was kind enough to give thy Father some paper, so I can improve the time, till we leave for Geneva, which is 28 miles. I wrote home twice, but one had not arrived there when thy Father left. There sits a doctor and a gentleman and his sister, talking about consumption, in the room where I sit and that is about all that I can write now but say that Father is well and my cold getting better slowly. I shall send this letter, perhaps after we get to Buffalo, on the falls of Niagara, as you will want to hear from us when we arrive there. We have waited near two hours and now the boat is coming and I must close."

"Buffalo. We got on board the steamboat and a very indifferent one it was too, but we got along to Geneva in time for the cars, then on to Buffalo, and put for the Exchange Hotel, only a few steps from the depot, went immediately to our room, paid one dollar for lodging only, in 3rd story. In the morning thy Father went in search of Aunt Jane and soon found her and brought her with him. Oh, how glad she was to see me. We called on Anna Hatfield a few minutes, then to the cars, for Niagara Falls and back to Buffalo in the evening and had a fine time. Aunt Jane went with us. To-day have been to Samuel Carey's Meeting. This afternoon had a very pleasant ride around the City with Aunt Jane and her husband and now by candle light I am finishing this letter and will put it in the office, on our way to the cars, to-morrow morning on our way to Waterloo, where we expect to stay to-morrow night. Aunt Jane wishes thee or A. or W. to say to her son Jacob that she is well and that Elizabeth's bracelet is not here. I want thee to let thy Brothers see this letter and then enclose it and direct it to Chappaqua for Hannah and Joshua. My cold is getting better and we are enjoying ourselves here with them very much.

Uncle Abram is as kind and as clever as he can be and to all appearances she has done well. He is a white headed Englishman of 70 years, tho' a smart man and has a grocery store. As there are only two in the family they will board with Anna Hatfield this winter and let their house. I got Hannah's letter when I got back to Hector. Was glad to hear from home altho' thy Father told me how nicely you or they were getting along and all well. We saw Solomon Griffen at the falls, just starting for Pellham Quarterly Meeting in Canada. We did not see Clarisa tho' she was there, nor even asked how she was, we were in such a rush and hurry to see all we could, our time was so limited. Phebe G. went home from Buffalo, last 6th day and most likely got home to-day. They have been to Ohio Yearly Meeting and Phebe is expected at Scipio Quarterly Meeting but she has gone and left it. Sarah and Hannah were at Scipio when I was there, taking sights of comfort, and will come home with us, which will be I suppose in a little more than one week. Sarah Sutton is at Scipio too and now I must conclude as the clock has just struck 8, so with my love to you all, without being named, I bid you farewell. From thy affectionate Mother.

If any of you should write, direct your letters to Scipio, as we may possibly attend Abraham Underhill's wedding next week. Do write immediately on getting this letter Hannah, and say we may stay so long. It seems as tho' I have been away from home a great while. I must close. I have opened my letter to say, direct thy letter to Charles R. Underhill, Scipio, Cayuga County, New York State, Sherwood's Corner Post Office, care of James Otis."

On the back of this letter in pencil, her son Moses on 9, 19, 1850, in sending the letter to his sister Hannah, states "Jenny Lind is singing to crowded houses here. I have not heard her yet but don't know but we shall before she goes home across the big pond."

"Return Underhill resided on the east road about a mile north of Dorset, Vt., at the foot of Sykes Hill and owned one of the two saw mills which were built in 1840, across the road, beside the brook, opposite his home. Remnants of the foundation still exist. He and Ira Sykes are said to have made the first circular saw in 1840. He later had a "marble mill" and Underhill and Strong secured the contract for building the Custom House at Erie, Penn., which made a new industry for Dorset. Marble was split, sawed, finished and loaded, then hauled by horses to Whitehall, N. Y., and then Comstock, a distance of twenty-five miles, then on to Erie. They also furnished marble for the Erie, Penn., bank at a cost of twenty thousand dollars, a large sum for those days."

The following notes are taken from a letter written to Dr. John W. Underhill of Van Wert, Ohio, by his aunt Delight Bradford, of Olmstead, O., Oct. 21, 1882:

"I took the records you took home with you from cemetery stones in Dorset, Vt. This William Underhill, born 1741, I think is grandfather's brother, he and Mary his wife are buried by the side of grandfather and grandmother. I never heard grandfather speak of having a grandfather in Dorset but often heard him speak of Uncle William who lived a short distance from the home of us all. Abram Underhill who died July 26, 1796, age 66 years, and Mercy, died Jan. 1, 1810, aged 76, are my father's parents, our grand parents. Father has one brother buried there whose grave I did not find, his name was William.

The names of the others I found are Abram, James, Isaac, brothers of father, Aunt Mercy Underhill who died Dec. 26, 1794, in her 20th year and was father's sister, Aunt Phebe Clark, father's sister, and Uncle David of Norwalk. You ask whose daughter was Grandma Mercy. She was a Paddock and Sheldon Paddock of Ridgeville is a descendant of her brother. Polly Underhill who died in 1855, aged 71 years, was Uncle Abram's wife and Mercy Loret Underhill was their daughter. She died May 3, 1824. I was at her funeral. Phebe Underhill, aged 1 year, is brother Abram's first child."

From another letter April 10, 1886, from Delight Bradford to Dr. Underhill:

"You ask in regard to Judge John Underhill. He is own cousin to my father and I think son of Uncle(?) Austin Underhill. I recall visiting them with father and mother when I was about five years old. Uncle Austin was then an old man, his hands trembled badly. I was too young to remember about their family, but Judge John and all the family were accustomed to visiting our house. His sons I think were two, Alpheus and Asa. Asa did live in Eaton, but has gone west. I think they had three sisters, the youngest named Clarissa. I think the Judge has brother Jacob who died near Lake Champlain or Lake George. I will try to speak of my grandfather's family. Uncle Isaac was oldest. I can think of but two of their children, Isaac and Hannah. She lived with her brother in Manchester and died there. The next, David. His wife's maiden name was Polly Osborn, he had three daughters and two sons, Isaac and David that I was acquainted with. You speak of Uncle William as marrying an Underhill, that is a mistake, her name was Dorcas Mead. She has relatives here in town. Mrs. Chancy Mead was a niece of Aunt Dorcas. They had but two daughters, Phebe and Mercy. Uncle William was a great laborer in the Masonic fraternity. Uncle James's wife's maiden name was Love Sykes. The next, Abram, his wife was Polly Harmon and they had son Harmon whose sons live, two of them, in Freemont. Then my father.

I went to see your Uncle Charles but he said you had all he knew about. Aunt Phebe married George Clark. She and Aunt Mercy both older than father."

Another letter dated May 7, 1886:

"The William you speak of lies beside my grandfather with their wives in Dorset cemetery. He may be the father of grandfather as you make him 39 years older than grandfather. Brother Return has always said he was, but he being called Uncle Billy, I thought he was brother of my grandfather. Judge John Underhill of Dorset, Vt., I think was a son of Uncle Austin, who I thought was grandfather's brother. I think Lucy Green can give you the records of Uncle George's family. Charles and Jane were here last Monday."

The parents of Philo Bradford were early settlers in Bath on Western Reserve, Ohio, in or about 1813; from there removed to Brickville, Cuyahoga County, Ohio, and then to Olmsted, Ohio, then called Middleburgh, later Lenox and now Olmstead in honor of a Mrs. Olmstead of Connecticut who presented a library to the town, and in 1835 the Legislature changed its name at her request. Hosea Bradford was born in July, 1773, and raised in Springfield, Vt.

William Barnes Underhill was known as "General," the origin of which is said by his descendants to have been due to some military service performed by him in the War of 1812.

From 1823 to 1831, he had a partner named Joel Savage, but for the next 25 years he kept a general store of his own in Champlain Village. The store was burned, but in 1877 his home was standing in good condition. Late in life he was a custom house officer.

Felt. The father of Mercena Corbin was Joseph, a Revolutionary soldier and pensioned for his enlistments in 1776 and 1779 in Killingly, Conn., and Williamstown, Mass. His third wife survived him many years, the last twenty-five of which she spent at the home of her stepson, Charles W. Underhill, in Winchester, Mass., where she died Nov. 19, 1891. She was buried in Champlain, N. Y., beside her husband and his other wives."

At the age of 16 years he was received into the Presbyterian Church of that city, of which church his parents were members. He graduated from Amherst College in 1845 and spent eight years thereafter in teaching, two years in Massachusetts and six in Mississippi. In the spring of 1854 he removed to California and spent the next six years in mercantile pursuits in the city of Stockton. He then applied himself to the study of law, to which he had previously devoted his leisure time and was admitted to the bar in December, 1860. In 1868 he was elected County Judge of San Joaquin, Calif. At the close of his term of office in 1868, he was employed by the Central Pacific Railroad Company, as attorney, to secure the right of way for the road they were then building, and by the Southern Pacific Railway Company, and to attend to other real estate matters and holds that position at the present time.
